Part 1 (ss 1-12) The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission

Section 1, Sch 1 provide that there will be a new body corporate called the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission and set out how the Commission will be structured. Section 2 sets out the main objective of the Commission, which is to maximise the number of effective child maintenance arrangements in place, and also sets out two subsidiary objectives, which are to encourage and support parents to make and keep their own maintenance arrangements, and to support the making of applications for child support maintenance under the Child Support Act 1991 and to enforce maintenance arrangements made under that Act where appropriate. The 2008 Act s 3 sets out that the Commission has functions relating to child support transferred to it from the Secretary of State, and any other functions conferred under this Act or other legislation. By virtue of s 4, the Commission is under a duty to take such steps as it considers appropriate to raise awareness among parents of the importance of taking responsibility for the maintenance of their children and if they live apart, making appropriate maintenance arrangements. Section 5 places a duty on the Commission to provide relevant information and guidance to help establish effective and appropriate maintenance arrangements for children who live apart from one or both of their parents. Under s 6, the Secretary of State has regulation-making powers to enable the Commission to charge fees in connection with the exercise of its functions. The Commission may make arrangements with a government department or prescribed public body, for the functions of one of them to be exercised on their behalf by the other, or for one to provide administrative, professional or technical services to the other: s 7. By virtue of s 8, the Commission may contract out any of its functions to another person or organisation. Section 9 requires the Commission to produce a report for each financial year, which must deal with the activities of the Commission in the financial year for which it is prepared, and include the report prepared by the non-executive functions committee. Under s 10, the Secretary of State may give written guidance and directions to the Commission regarding the exercise of its functions. Section 11 sets out that the Secretary of State must review the status of the Commission as a Crown body, as soon as is reasonably practicable after the end of an initial three-year period, and may review any other time after that if he considers it appropriate. Section 12 sets out the definition of 'child' for these purposes and makes provision for the Secretary of State to make regulations about when a child is to be regarded as living apart from a parent.

Part 2 (ss 13, 14) Transfer of child support functions etc to the Commission

Section 13, Schs 2, 3 transfer most of the functions under the Child Support Act 1991 from the Secretary of State to the Commission, including functions relating to calculation, collection and enforcement. By virtue of the 2008 Act s 14, the Secretary of State may make one or more schemes to transfer property, rights and liabilities which he is entitled or subject, in connection with the transferred functions, or under arrangements entered into in preparation for the coming into force of the Commission's functions.

Part 3 (ss 15-45) Child support etc

Section 15 repeals the Child Support Act 1991 ss 6, 46. The 2008 Act s 16, Sch 4 amend legislation regarding how maintenance calculations are performed. Section 17 provides a regulation-making power to the Secretary of State in relation to the supersession of decisions. By virtue of s 18, the Commission must, on receipt of an application from a person with care to vary a maintenance calculation, consider any information or evidence that is available to it or take steps to obtain further information or evidence, if it appears that further information would affect a decision to vary a maintenance calculation. Section 19, Sch 5 make provision for the movement of existing cases onto the new calculation rules and provide that the Commission may require the parties in existing cases to choose whether to remain in the statutory scheme under the new calculation rules or to leave the scheme as far as future liability is concerned. Section 20 makes it clear that regulations as to the method by which payments of child support maintenance are to be made can include deduction from earnings orders as an initial method of collection. What will be considered as 'earnings' for the purpose of deduction from earnings orders is defined by s 21. Section 22 enables the Commission to deduct child support maintenance from the non-resident parent's account. Provision made by s 23 relates to lump sum deduction orders, which enable the Commission to collect payments from a non-resident parent's account held with a deposit-taker, or from money due or accruing to them from a third party; such orders may be used only to collect arrears and not ongoing maintenance. By virtue of s 24, the Commission may apply to a court to prevent a non-resident parent who has failed to pay maintenance from disposing of or transferring property, if it is being done to avoid paying child support maintenance. Section 25 introduces a new liability order which will be made administratively by the Commission and which will certify the amount owed by the non-resident parent, and will be the first step to enforcement action. Section 26 removes the requirement that an order from a county court needs to be obtained before an application for a charging order or a third party debt order can be made; such an application can now be made where an administrative liability order has been made. Under s 27, the Commission has the power to apply to a court to disqualify a non-resident parent for holding or obtaining a travel authorisation. The Commission also has the power to apply to a magistrates' court for a curfew order to be made against a non-resident parent who fails to pay maintenance: s 28. By virtue of s 29, the Commission may make a separate application to a magistrates' court to commit a non-resident parent to prison for failure to pay child support maintenance. Section 30 enables the Commission to make a separate application to a magistrates' court to disqualify a non-resident parent for holding or obtaining a driving licence if they fail to pay child support maintenance. Section 31 provides the Secretary of State with regulation-making powers enabling the Commission to offset liabilities to pay child support maintenance, including arrears, in prescribed circumstances. Under ss 32, 33, the Commission may accept partial payments of maintenance arrears from a non-resident parent in final settlement of the whole arrears, and may write off arrears in certain circumstances. Section 34 provides regulation-making power to the Secretary of State, to enable the Commission to enter into arrangements with other persons or organisations under which liability in respect of arrears of child support maintenance becomes debt due to such a person or organisation. Section 35 applies in relation to Scotland and relates to registered maintenance agreements. Provision dealing with offences relating to the provision of information is made by s 36. Section 37 allows for the offset of maintenance liabilities where two parents of the same children each have care for one or more of those children. By virtue of s 38, the Secretary of State has the power to make regulations to enable arrears of child support maintenance to be recovered from the estate of a deceased non-resident parent. Section 39 enables a party to family proceedings to disclose information relating to those proceedings to the Commission or to a person providing services to the Commission without such a disclosure being a contempt of court, unless a court dealing with the proceedings directs that the section does not apply. Provision made by s 40 relates to the disclosure of information to credit reference agencies. Section 41 enables the power to pilot any regulation-making power under the 1991 Act. The definition of 'child' in the 1991 Act is substituted by the 2008 Act s 42. Section 43 provides for the write off of outstanding liability in respect of interest and fees. Information sharing gateways are set out by s 44, Sch 6. Section 45 amends the provisions concerning liable relatives and the exclusion of the parental duty to maintain contained in the Social Security Administration Act 1992.

Part 4 (ss 46-54) Lump sum payments: mesothelioma etc

Section 46 provides for the Secretary of State to make a lump sum payment to either a person with diffuse mesothelioma, or to their dependant if the person with diffuse mesothelioma is deceased. The conditions that must be satisfied by persons with mesothelioma, and by a dependant of a person who, immediately before their death, suffered from mesothelioma in order for a lump sum payment to be made are set out by s 47. Section 48 sets out how a claim for a lump sum payment is to be made. By virtue of s 49, the Secretary of State may reconsider a decision not to make a lump sum payment where there is a change in circumstances that may affect the claim since the decision was taken, or a decision to make or not to make a lump sum payment if the original decision was made in ignorance or based on error about the facts of the case. A person who has made a claim for a payment under s 46, will have a right of appeal to an appeal tribunal against a decision made by the Secretary of State on the claim, or a decision made following a reconsideration: s 50. Section 51 provides a right of appeal to a Social Security Commissioner against any decision of an appeal tribunal under s 50, on the ground that the decision was wrong in law. Section 52 concerns how lump sum payments are to be made to a person under the age of 18, or a person who lacks capacity within the meaning of the Mental Capacity Act 2005 in relation to financial matters. By virtue of the 2008 Act s 53, the Secretary of State has the power to make regulations by statutory instrument, which includes power to make such incidental, supplementary or transitional power as the Secretary of State thinks fit. The Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 is amended by the 2008 Act s 54 so as to provide the Secretary of State with powers to make regulations providing for the recovery of lump sum payments made under the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979, the new scheme or those made on an extra-statutory basis following the rejection of a claim made under that Act.

Part 5 (ss 55-63) General

Section 55 provides that, where the Secretary of State is empowered to make regulations, these are to be made by statutory instrument. Section 56 deals with interpretation, and s 57, Sch 7 contain minor and consequential amendments. Repeals are dealt with by s 58, Sch 8, and s 59 makes transitional provision. Financial provision is made by s 60. Section 61 deals with extent, s 62 makes provision for commencement, and s 63 specifies the short title.

Part 1 (ss 1-99) Pension scheme membership for jobholders

Chapter 1 (ss 1-33) Employers' duties

Section 1 defines 'jobholder'. If a jobholder is an active member of a qualifying scheme, the employer must not take any action, or make any omission, by which the jobholder ceases to be an active member of the scheme, or the scheme ceases to be a qualifying scheme: s 2. Under s 3, the employer must make prescribed arrangements by which the jobholder becomes an active member of an automatic enrolment scheme with effect from the automatic enrolment date, which is the first day on which s 3 applies to any person as a jobholder of the employer. Section 4 provides that the Secretary of State may by regulations provide that in prescribed cases the automatic enrolment date is a later date. The employer must make prescribed arrangements by which the jobholder becomes an active member of an automatic enrolment scheme with effect from the automatic re-enrolment date: s 5. Section 6 deals with the timing of automatic re-enrolment. A jobholder who is not an active member of a qualifying scheme, may by notice require the employer to arrange for the jobholder to become an active member of an automatic enrolment scheme: s 7. If the jobholder gives notice under s 8, the jobholder is to be treated for all purposes as not having become an active member of the scheme on that occasion and any contributions paid by the jobholder, or by the employer on behalf or in respect of the jobholder, on the basis that the jobholder has become an active member of the scheme on that occasion must be refunded in accordance with prescribed requirements: s 8. Section 9 provides that a worker without qualifying earnings may by notice require the employer to arrange for the worker to become an active member of a pension scheme that satisfies the requirements of s 9. Under s 10, the Secretary of State must make provision by regulations for all jobholders to be given information about the effect of these provisions. Section 11 specifies the information to be given to the Pensions Regulator. The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that ss 2-9 do not apply in the case of an employer of any description until such date after the commencement of ss 2-9 as is prescribed in relation to employers of that description: s 12. A person's qualifying earnings in a pay reference period of 12 months are the part of the gross earnings payable to that person in that period that is more than £5,035 and not more than £33,540: s 13. Section 14 provides that the Secretary of state must in each tax year undertake a review of the qualifying earnings band. The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision for determining a person's earnings in any pay reference period and make provision for determining the first date of each pay reference period in relation to a person: s 15. Section 16 defines what a qualifying scheme is in relation to a jobholder. Section 17 specifies what an automatic enrolment scheme is in relation to a jobholder. An occupational pension scheme is defined, for the purposes of Pt 1, by s 18. For the purposes of Pt 1, a personal pension scheme is a pension scheme that is not an occupational pension scheme: s 19. A money purchase scheme that has its main administration in the United Kingdom satisfies the quality requirement in relation to a jobholder if under the scheme certain conditions are met: see s 20. Subject to specified conditions, a defined benefits scheme that has its main administration in the United Kingdom satisfies the quality requirement in relation to a jobholder if the jobholder is in contracted-out employment: s 21. A scheme satisfies the test scheme standard in relation to a jobholder if the pensions to be provided for the relevant members of the scheme are broadly equivalent to or better than the pensions which would be provided for them under a test scheme: s 22. Section 23 provides that a test scheme is an occupational pension scheme which satisfies certain requirements. A hybrid scheme that has its main administration in the United Kingdom satisfies the quality requirement in relation to a jobholder if it satisfies either the requirements for a money purchase scheme under s 20, subject to any prescribed modifications or the requirements for a defined benefits scheme under ss 21-23, subject to any prescribed modifications: s 24. The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision as to the quality requirement to be satisfied in the case of certain occupational pension schemes: s 25. Section 26 provides the conditions which are to be met for the scheme to satisfy the quality requirement in relation to a jobholder. The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision as to the quality requirement to be satisfied in the case of a personal pension scheme to which s 26 does not apply: s 27. Section 28 provides for certification that the quality requirement is satisfied. Section 29 provides for transitional periods for money purchase and personal pension schemes. A transitional period for defined benefits and hybrid schemes is prescribed by s 30. Where a jobholder is an active member of a qualifying scheme and a freezing event occurs in relation to the scheme, the jobholder does not, for the purposes of ss 1-33, cease to be an active member of the scheme, and the scheme does not, for those purposes, cease to be a qualifying scheme, by virtue of any relevant provision: s 31. The trustees of an occupational pension scheme may by resolution modify the scheme: s 32. Section 33 deals with the deduction of contributions to a scheme from a person's remuneration.

Chapter 2 (ss 34-49) Compliance

Contravention of any of the employer duty provisions does not give rise to a right of action for breach of statutory duty: s 34. Under s 35, the Regulator may issue a compliance notice to a person if the Regulator is of the opinion that the person has contravened one or more of the employer duty provisions. The Regulator may issue a third party compliance notice if it is of the opinion that a person has contravened one or more of the employer duty provisions, the contravention is or was, wholly or partly, a result of a failure of another person to do any thing, and that failure is not itself a contravention of any of the employer duty provisions: s 36. The Regulator may issue an unpaid contributions notice to an employer if it is of the opinion that relevant contributions have not been paid on or before the due date: s 37. Section 38 makes provision as to the calculation and payment of contributions in relation to a compliance notice issued to an employer in respect of a contravention with regard to continuity of scheme membership, a failure to comply with an enrolment duty or an unpaid contributions notice. Section 39 defines 'relevant contributions'. Section 40 specifies the circumstances under which the Regulator may issue a fixed penalty notice to a person. Further, in specified circumstances, the Regulator may issue an escalating penalty notice to a person: s 41. Any penalty payable under s 40 or s 41 is recoverable by the Regulator: s 42. Under s 43, the Regulator may review a notice to which s 43 applies on the written application of the person to whom the notice was issued or if the Regulator otherwise considers it appropriate. A person to whom a notice is issued under s 40 or s 41 may, if certain conditions are satisfied, make a reference to the Pensions Regulator Tribunal in respect of the issue of the notice or the amount of the penalty payable under the notice: s 44. Section 45 provides for offences of failing to comply. Section 46 deals with offences by bodies corporate. Proceedings for an offence under s 45 alleged to have been committed by a partnership or an unincorporated association may be brought in the name of the partnership or association: s 47. Section 48 provides for offences of providing false or misleading information. In relation to the monitoring of employers' payments to personal pension schemes, see s 49.

Chapter 3 (ss 50-59) Safeguards: employment and pre-employment

An employer contravenes s 50 if any statement made or question asked by or on behalf of the employer for the purposes of recruitment indicates that an application for employment with the employer may be determined by reference to whether an applicant might opt out of automatic enrolment: s 50. The Regulator may issue a compliance notice to an employer if the Regulator is of the opinion that the employer has contravened s 50: s 51. Under s 52, the Regulator may issue a penalty notice to an employer if the Regulator is of the opinion that the employer has contravened s 50, or has failed to comply with a compliance notice under s 51. As to the review of notices and references to the Pensions Regulator Tribunal see s 53. An employer contravenes s 54 if the employer takes any action for the sole or main purpose of inducing a worker to give up membership of a relevant scheme without becoming an active member of another relevant scheme within the prescribed period or inducing a jobholder to give a notice under s 8 without becoming an active member of a qualifying scheme within the prescribed period: s 54. Section 55 provides for the right not to suffer detriment. A worker may present a complaint to an employment tribunal that the worker has been subjected to a detriment in contravention of s 55: s 56. The right of an employee not to be unfairly dismissed is provided: s 57. Under s 58, any provision in any agreement is void in so far as it purports to exclude or limit the operation of any provision of Pt 1, or to preclude a person from bringing proceedings under s 56 before an employment tribunal. Section 59 makes provision as to the jurisdiction of the Employment Appeal Tribunal.

Chapter 4 (ss 60-66) Supplementary provision about compliance and information-sharing

Section 60 provides the requirement to keep records. Under s 61, the Regulator has powers to require information and to enter premises. Section 62 substitutes the Pensions Act 2004 s 88 so as to provide for the disclosure of tax information. As to information for private pensions policy and retirement planning, see the 2008 Act s 63. Section 64 provides a penalty for disclosure. Section 65 makes provision in relation to the Regulator's objectives to maximise compliance with duties, and s 66 deals with the functions of the Pensions Ombudsman.

Chapter 5 (ss 67-78) Duty to establish a pension scheme

The Secretary of State is required by s 67 to establish a pension scheme and to make provision for its administration and management. An order under s 67 establishing a scheme must provide for the trustee corporation to be a trustee on the coming into force of the scheme: s 68. Section 69 provides that if an order under s 67 establishes a scheme, the Secretary of State must by order under s 67 require the trustees to make and maintain arrangements for consulting the members of the scheme and participating employers about the operation, development and amendment of the scheme. An order under s 67 must prescribe the maximum amount of contributions that may be made by or in respect of a member in any tax year: s 70. The Secretary of State may not make any order under s 67 relating to a scheme, except the order establishing the scheme and an order taking effect at the same time as that order, without the consent of the trustees: s 71. Under s 72, a person who proposes to make rules under s 67 must publish a draft of the rules and invite comments. The Interpretation Act

1978 applies in relation to rules under the 2008 Act s 67 as if they were contained in a deed not made under an enactment: s 73. Section 74 provides that the Secretary of State must appoint a person to review, in relation to a scheme established under s 67, the effect of provision made under s 70, the effect of any restrictions on rights to transfer into the scheme or transfer out to another pension scheme and such other matters as the Secretary of State may direct. Section 75, Sch 1 establish the body corporate known as the trustee corporation. The functions of the trustee corporation are to act as a trustee of any scheme established under s 67 and any other functions it is given by or under an enactment in connection with the scheme: s 76. The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that legislation applying in relation to a person as trustee of a pension scheme, or as director of a company which is a trustee of a pension scheme, applies in relation to the trustee corporation, or its members, with any modifications prescribed in the regulations: s 77. Section 78 provides interpretation for ss 67-78.

Chapter 6 (ss 79-86) Personal Accounts Delivery Authority

Section 79 specifies the functions of the Personal Accounts Delivery Authority. The Authority must have regard to certain principles including that participation in qualifying schemes should be encouraged and facilitated, the burdens imposed on employers as a result of Pt 1 should be minimised and the cost of membership of a scheme established under s 67 should be minimised: s 80. The Secretary of State may give the Authority guidance or directions about the discharge of its functions: s 81. Section 82 amends the Pensions Act 2007 Sch 6 in order to provide that the Secretary of State may, with the consent of the Treasury, give financial assistance to the Authority. The 2008 Act s 83 makes provision as to the disclosure of information by the Regulator. Section 84 makes provision in relation to the non-executive committee of the Authority. The 2007 Act Sch 6 is amended in relation to executive members: 2008 Act s 85. Section 86 provides that the Secretary of State may by order provide for the winding up and dissolution of the Authority.

Chapter 7 (s 87) Stakeholder pension schemes

Section 87 makes provision in relation to stakeholder pension schemes.

Chapter 8 (ss 88-99) Application and interpretation

Section 88 interprets 'employer', 'worker' and related expressions for the purposes of Pt 1. Section 89 makes provision as to agency workers. A person who holds office as a director of a company is not, by virtue of that office or of any employment by the company, a worker for the purposes of Pt 1, unless the person is employed by the company under a contract of employment and there is at least one other person who is employed by the company under a contract of employment: s 90. Section 91 makes provision with regard to crown employment. A person serving as a member of the naval, military or air forces of the Crown is not, by virtue of anything done in assisting those activities, a worker for the purposes of Pt 1: s 92. Section 93 provides that Pt 1 has effect in relation to employment as a relevant member of the House of Lords staff as it has effect in relation to other employment. Part 1 has effect in relation to employment as a relevant member of the House of Commons staff as it has effect in relation to other employment (s 94) and in relation to a person who holds the office of constable or an appointment as a police cadet, and does not hold that office or appointment under a contract of employment, as if the person were employed by the relevant police authority under a worker's contract (s 95). Subject to regulations under s 96, a person employed or engaged in any capacity on board a ship is not, by virtue of that employment or engagement, a worker for the purposes of Pt 1: s 96. Her Majesty may by Order in Council provide that, to the extent and for the specified purposes, the relevant provisions apply, with or without modification, in relation to a person in offshore employment: s 97. Section 98 provides for the extension of the definition of worker, and s 99 provides for the interpretation of Pt 1.

Part 2 (ss 100-106) Simplification etc

Safeguarded rights are abolished: s 100. Section 101, Sch 2 make provision as to the revaluation of accrued benefits. Section 102, Sch 3 make provision as to the consolidation of additional pension. Section 103 deals with the effect of entitlement to guaranteed minimum pensions. Section 104, Sch 4 make minor and consequential amendments in relation to additional pension. Section 105 provides for the extension of the assessed income period for those aged 75 or over in relation to state pension credit. As from the contracting-out abolition date, pension schemes are not required to make special provision in relation to the protected rights of members: s 106.

Part 3 (ss 107-123) Pension compensation

Chapter 1 (ss 107-120) Pension compensation on divorce etc

Pension compensation sharing is available under ss 107-120 in relation to a person's shareable rights to PPF compensation: s 107. Section 108 provides the interpretation for ss 107-120; in particular, 'PPF compensation' means compensation payable under the pension compensation provisions. Section 109 deals with the activation of pension compensation sharing. For the purposes of ss 107-120, a qualifying agreement is an agreement which has been entered into in such circumstances as the Secretary of State may prescribe by regulations, and is registered in the Books of Council and Session: s 110. Section 111 provides for the creation of pension compensation debits and credits. The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision about the calculation and verification of cash equivalents for the purposes of s 111: s 112. ### Part 1 (ss 1-37) Social security

Section 1 enables the Secretary of State to impose a requirement on claimants of jobseeker's allowance to participate in schemes designed to assist them to obtain employment, and in particular to require claimants to undertake work as part of a 'work for your benefit' scheme. Under s 2, the Secretary of State may require lone parents in receipt of income support to undertake work-related activity in certain circumstances as a condition of continuing to receive the full amount of benefit. Section 2 also requires the Secretary of State to provide persons in receipt of specified benefits who are required to attend work-focused interviews with an action plan. Section 3 makes provision exempting specified categories of lone parents from the requirement to attend work-focused interviews and undertake work-related activity. Section 4, Sch 1 deal with the entitlement of certain claimants to jobseeker's allowance without seeking employment, and s 5 removes entitlement to income support and income-related employment and support allowance for couples where one member is capable of work. Section 6 enables the Secretary of State to permit persons in receipt of statutory sick pay to claim income-related employment and support allowance instead of income support. Section 7 makes transitional provision and s 8 deals with the Parliamentary procedure for regulations imposing work-related activity requirements on lone parents of children under seven. Provision is made for income support to be abolished when there are no longer any groups of people that require it: s 9, Sch 2. By virtue of s 10, the Secretary of State may specify a work-related activity which a claimant of employment and support allowance in the work-related activity group must undertake as a condition of continuing to be entitled to the full amount of his allowance. Section 11, Sch 3 provide for claimants of jobseeker's allowance and employment support allowance who are dependent on drugs, and ss 12, 13 amend the contribution conditions for jobseeker's allowance and contributory employment and support allowance. The entitlement conditions for the higher rate mobility component of disability living allowance are amended by s 14 so as to entitle persons with a prescribed severe visual impairment, and s 15 abolishes the payment of adult dependency increases for all new claims for maternity allowance and carer's allowance. Under s 16, the Secretary of State may make arrangements with external providers to make loans to individuals who are receiving prescribed benefits or have prescribed needs ('external provider social loans'), and under s 17 he has power to restrict the availability of social fund loans in areas where external provider social loans are available. Section 18 deals with the supply of information in connection with external provider social loans. Sections 19, 20 provide that where goods and services covered by a community care grant are provided under arrangements that the Secretary of State has made with a supplier, he may require the grant to relate to specified goods or services and the payment of the grant to be made to that supplier. Section 21 provides for Parliamentary control of regulations relating to unauthorised disclosure of information in relation to external provider social loans or community care grants. By virtue of s 22, the Secretary of State may extend the range of situations in which payments of benefits on account can be made, and s 23 enables him to up-rate benefits for the tax year 2009-2010 even if the general level of prices has not increased. Section 24, Sch 4 extend the provisions relating to the loss of benefit where a claimant is convicted of benefit fraud, and s 25 introduces new benefit sanctions against claimants of jobseeker's allowance who are convicted of violent conduct in connection with their claim. A pilot scheme under which benefit sanctions have been applied to certain offenders who are in breach of specified community orders is brought to an end by s 26, and provision is made by s 27 for new pilot schemes for the calculation and payment of state pension credit to increase the number of eligible persons receiving the benefit. Section 28 extends the time limits for certain pilot schemes relating to working-age benefits, and s 29 provides for the exemption of victims of domestic violence from the jobseeking conditions of jobseeker's allowance for a prescribed period. Section 30 provides that where regulation-making powers in specified provisions enable circumstances to be prescribed that constitute good cause for failing to undertake mandatory activities, the regulations must always include the availability of childcare and the claimant's physical or mental health in the list of circumstances that must be taken into account. The well-being of children must be taken into account when agreeing the activities that a parent will undertake as part of a jobseeker's agreement or action plan for recipients of employment and support allowance: s 31. By virtue of s 32, specified functions of the Secretary of State under the Jobseeker's Act 1995 may be contracted out. Section 33 provides for the continuation of entitlement to jobseeker's allowance where a claimant fails to attend a mandatory interview without showing good cause for the failure to attend, subject to a delay in payment for a fixed period. Section 34 expands the scope of the sharing of social security and employment training information, and s 35 makes provision regarding the age at which persons will be required to attend work-focused interviews to reflect the equalisation of the state pension age for men and women. Section 36 requires the renaming of council tax benefit as council tax rebate, and s 37 makes minor legislative amendments.

Part 2 (ss 38-50) Disabled people: right to control provision of services

Section 38 states the purpose of the 2009 Act Pt 2 as being to enable disabled people to have a greater choice and control over the way in which relevant services are provided for them by defined public authorities. 'Relevant services' are defined in s 39 and public authorities are defined in s 40. Section 41 provides a general power for an appropriate authority to make regulations for the purpose of Pt 2, while s 45 defines 'appropriate authority' for these purposes, s 46 makes supplementary provision, and s 47 requires consultation on any proposed regulations. Section 42 sets out the provisions that may be included in regulations dealing with direct payments to disabled people. Section 43 provides for the making of regulations for the exercise of the rights to control the provision of services on behalf of persons who lack capacity within the meaning of the Mental Capacity Act 2005. Section 44 deals with the establishment of pilot schemes, and s 48 empowers the Secretary of State to repeal the exclusion of community care services from the definition of relevant services.

Section 49 deals with the control of regulations and orders by Parliament, and s 50 deals with interpretation.

Part 3 (ss 51-55) Child maintenance

Section 51, Sch 5 permit the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission ('the Commission') to order the disqualification of a person who has arrears of child maintenance from holding a driving licence or travel authorisation without applying to the court, and makes provision for appeals to the court against such disqualification orders. Sections 52, 53 provide for the Commission to pilot the powers of disqualification for two years and require the Secretary of State to report to Parliament on the operation of the pilot schemes. By virtue of s 54, the Commission may specify the intervals at which child support maintenance payments are made, having regard to the preferences indicated by the parent who does not reside with the children concerned. Section 55 extends the scope of offences relating to the provision of information.

Part 4 (s 56) Birth registration

Section 56, Sch 6 make provision for the joint registration of births where the parents of a child are neither married to each other nor civil partners of each other so as to increase the ways in which an unmarried father may register jointly with the child's mother, and confer additional rights and duties on both unmarried parents to enable unmarried fathers' details to be entered on the birth register in as many cases as possible.

Part 5 (ss 57-62) General

Section 57 empowers the Secretary of State to make consequential amendments and revocations of subordinate legislation, and repeals and revocations are made by s 58, Sch 7. Sections 59-62 deal with financial provisions, extent, commencement and short title.

1. Early legislation.

Compulsory insurance against unemployment and sickness was first introduced in 1912<sup>1</sup> and for contributory pensions in 1926<sup>2</sup>. Voluntary insurance for sickness and pensions was also permitted for persons on ceasing to be compulsorily insured and, conditionally, for certain other classes<sup>3</sup>.

The unemployment insurance scheme was originally administered by the Board of Trade<sup>4</sup> and later by the then Minister of Labour<sup>5</sup> while the administration of the health insurance scheme was mainly by former approved societies<sup>6</sup> under the supervision originally of the Insurance Commissioners<sup>7</sup> and later of the Minister of Health<sup>8</sup> who was also charged with the duty of administering the contributory pensions scheme<sup>9</sup>.

In 1945 all these functions were transferred to the Minister of National Insurance, now the Secretary of State for Social Security<sup>10</sup>. In 1948 the functions of the Minister of National Insurance under the old schemes were absorbed into the national insurance scheme<sup>11</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/1. INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL SECURITY/(1) HISTORICAL BACKGROUND/2. The 1945 and 1946 legislation.

2. The 1945 and 1946 legislation.

The outline of the modern social security system was broadly established between 1946 and 1948 when three major Acts came into force, namely the Family Allowances Act 1945, the National Insurance Act 1946 and the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act 1946<sup>1</sup>. The Family Allowances Act 1945 provided for weekly allowances payable to families which included more than one child. The National Insurance Act 1946 made provision for compulsory insurance against unemployment, sickness, retirement and loss of earnings through pregnancy, widowhood, orphanhood and death. The National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act 1946 provided a system of compulsory insurance against personal injury caused by accident arising out of and in the course of employment and against prescribed diseases due to the nature of a person's employment; in doing so, it repealed the workmen's compensation legislation and so removed the direct liability for compensation placed on employers by that legislation<sup>2</sup>.

The principal area not covered by the 1945 and 1946 legislation was that covered by what are now referred to as income-related benefits, that is residuary, means-tested benefits for the relief of poverty. For more than 300 years such public provision was made, on a local basis, through the poor law<sup>3</sup>; this was finally repealed by the National Assistance Act 1948 which created the national assistance scheme and so completed the social security system established following the Beveridge Report<sup>4</sup>.

1 All three Acts have been repealed and replaced.

2 This was however subject to the saving that the former workmen's compensation legislation continued to apply where the right to compensation arose in respect of employment before 5 July 1948; this saving is now contained in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 111, Sch 8 (as amended) ('Old Cases'): see PARA 167 post.

3 The poor law had been established, on the basis of earlier legislation, by 39 Eliz I c 3 (Poor) (1597) (repealed), re-enacted in the Poor Relief Act 1601 (repealed; amended (in particular) by the Poor Law Amendment Act 1834 (repealed) and finally consolidated in the Poor Law Acts 1927 and 1930 (repealed)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/1. INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL SECURITY/(1) HISTORICAL BACKGROUND/3. The 1965 and 1975 consolidations.

3. The 1965 and 1975 consolidations.

The 1945 and 1946 legislation was considerably amended, and was first consolidated in 1965. This was done in three statutes (since repealed), namely the National Insurance Act 1965, the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act 1965 and the Family Allowances Act 1965.

The period after 1965 saw further amendments and the creation of new benefits, mainly non-contributory benefits designed to compensate for illness or disability not arising out of employment; these included what became attendance allowance and non-contributory retirement pension. Invalidity pension was introduced as a contributory benefit. A further development, in the National Insurance Act 1966, was the introduction of earnings-related supplements to unemployment and sickness benefit, and to widow's allowance. National assistance was abolished and replaced by supplementary benefit in the Supplementary Benefit Act 1966.

The Social Security Act 1973 was intended to consolidate the amended legislation but in the event most of its provisions were repealed either on, or without ever, coming into force. This was because it was superseded by the 1975 consolidations which were effected by the Social Security Act 1975, the Social Security Pensions Act 1975, the Industrial Injuries and Diseases (Old Cases) Act 1975 and the Child Benefit Act 1975<sup>1</sup>. The law relating to supplementary benefit was consolidated in the Supplementary Benefits Act 1976.

4. Developments from 1975 to 1992.

Major changes in the social security system were made after 1979 in a long series of statutes aimed principally at controlling the social security budget, partly on political and partly on demographic grounds<sup>1</sup>. Efficiencies were sought in the administration of sickness benefit by the inception of statutory sick pay, whereby what would have been state sickness benefit for an employee incapable of work is paid out by the employer; originally, this was for a maximum period of eight weeks and was fully recouped by the employer<sup>2</sup>, but then it was extended to a maximum of 28 weeks<sup>3</sup> and the recoupment was withdrawn so that it now only applies when the employer's liability exceeds a set limit in any month<sup>4</sup>. This model of payment through the employer was then extended to statutory maternity pay<sup>5</sup>.

The adjudication of social security claims, especially appeals, was subject to major reform in 1984 with the abolition of the old system of local insurance tribunals and supplementary benefit appeal tribunals, and their replacement with social security appeal tribunals, administered through a Presidential system (now the Independent Tribunal Service), chaired by lawyers, and with appeal on a point of law to a social security commissioner<sup>6</sup>.

The present system of means-tested benefits was put into place by the Social Security Act 1986 which abolished supplementary benefit, family income supplement and the old system of 'single payments' to cover specific needs of those on supplementary benefit, and replaced them with income support<sup>7</sup> (the basic safety net benefit), family credit<sup>8</sup> (a progressive benefit for those in work with family responsibilities, aimed at lessening the 'poverty trap' of loss of benefit outweighing the financial advantages of taking up employment) and the social fund<sup>9</sup> (a system of state loans, separately administered, for those on means-tested benefits, and grants for maternity or funeral expenses)<sup>10</sup>.

The relationship between the receipt of social security benefits by an accident victim and the later receipt by that person of tort damages for the accident was subject to radical reform in 1989, with the imposition of a system of 'civil recoupment' of the total benefit received from the eventual damages, operated by the Compensation Recovery Unit<sup>11</sup>.

Benefits for people with disabilities were subject to fundamental review and reform. The old attendance allowance and mobility allowance were abolished (except for attendance allowance for those over the age of 65) and replaced by a disability living allowance which has a care component and a mobility component, the lowest levels of which are designed to apply to lesser degrees of disablement than the previous allowances<sup>12</sup>. In addition, disability working allowance is available to a disabled person taking on employment on a low wage; it is based largely on family credit<sup>13</sup>.

1 An early and significant example of this was the abolition of earnings-related supplements to certain benefits in the Social Security (No 2) Act 1980 (repealed).

2 Social Security and Housing Benefits Act 1982 (repealed). This necessitated the abolition of industrial injury benefit (which had been a weekly income-maintenance benefit, higher than ordinary sickness benefit, for those unable to work due to an industrial accident) so that employers did not have to administer, in effect, two levels of benefit.

3 Repealed by the Social Security Act 1985 (repealed).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/1. INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL SECURITY/(1) HISTORICAL BACKGROUND/6. Developments since the 1992 consolidations.

6. Developments since the 1992 consolidations.

Since the 1992 consolidations, four principal areas of social security law have been subject to fundamental change<sup>1</sup>. The first was sickness benefit, where concern had been caused by the trebling of the cost of invalidity benefit in two decades; sickness benefit and invalidity benefit were abolished from April 1995 and replaced by short-term and long-term incapacity benefit<sup>2</sup>. As part of this change, new statutory rules were introduced defining incapacity for work<sup>3</sup>; whereas for the first six months the test remains whether the claimant is fit for his own normal occupation, after that period the new 'all work' test applies which assigns points for various 'descriptors', that is, work-related activities, rather than looking more broadly and factually (as invalidity benefit had done) at whether there was work which the claimant could reasonably be expected to do<sup>4</sup>.

The second change was contained in the Jobseekers Act 1995 which, from October 1996, (1) abolished unemployment benefit and replaced it with contribution-based jobseeker's allowance<sup>5</sup>; and (2) in the case of claimants required to be available for work, replaced income support with income-based jobseeker's allowance<sup>6</sup>, so that income support became the residual benefit, restricted to those not required to be available for work<sup>7</sup>. Unlike the previous changes, these are contained in the Jobseekers Act 1995 itself, rather than operating by way of amendments to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992; this means that, for a full picture of the applicable benefits, these two statutes must be considered together.

The third set of changes is contained in the Social Security Administration (Fraud) Act 1997 which makes amendments to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 and the Social Security Administration Act 1992, mainly in relation to the administration of housing benefit and council tax benefit<sup>8</sup>.

Lastly, the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 abolishes the compensation recovery scheme introduced in 1990<sup>9</sup> and introduces a new system designed (a) to ensure that damages paid to a victim to compensate for pain and suffering can no longer be reduced to take account of benefit recovery; and (b) to make compensators liable for their own negligence by requiring them to repay in full benefits which have been paid in respect of an accident, injury or disease<sup>10</sup>.

At the date at which this volume states the law, a Social Security Bill had been committed to a standing committee in the House of Commons<sup>11</sup>. The explanatory and financial memorandum accompanying the Bill states that it makes provision for simplification of decision-making and appeals in social security, child support and vaccine damage payments; changes National Insurance provision to improve compliance, reduce avoidance and increase revenue; simplifies the award and review of social fund budgeting loans; permits the removal of the lone parent element of child benefit; and restricts entitlement in respect of the period before a claim<sup>12</sup>. With regard to the administration of the social security system, a number of outsourcing projects were under review at that date<sup>13</sup>.

1 In addition, the legal regime governing occupational pension schemes has been subject to fundamental reform by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 and the Pensions Act 1995: see PARA 551 et seq post.

2 Ie by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994, which made amendments to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, principally by adding ss 30A-30E and Pt XIIA (ss 171A-171G): see PARA 59 et seq post.

3 See PARA 65 et seq post.

4 See PARAS 68-75 post.

5 See PARAS 258-259 post. The maximum entitlement to the contribution-based jobseeker's allowance is six months, whereas the former unemployment benefit lasted for a year. After six months, continued entitlement becomes means-tested; moreover, during that first six months some of the rules of entitlement are now more akin to means-tested income support than to the old (rights-based) rules on unemployment benefit.

6 See PARAS 258-259 post. Many of the rules on income-based jobseeker's allowance (eg in relation to calculation of income and capital) are taken directly from income support law: see PARA 271 post.

7 See PARAS 176-177 post.

8 As to housing benefit and council tax benefit see generally HOUSING vol 22 (2006 Reissue) PARA 140 et seq; RATING AND COUNCIL TAX vol 39(1B) (Reissue) PARA 371 et seq. Other amendments made by the Social Security Administration (Fraud) Act 1997 relate to such matters as offences, penalties and overpayments (see ss 13-15; and PARAS 404-405 post); reviews and medical examinations (see ss 17, 18; and PARAS 375-376 post); national insurance numbers (see s 19; and PARA 337 post); and redirection of post (see s 20; and PARA 400 post).

(2) OUTLINE OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY SYSTEM

(i) In general

7. The benefits.

Benefits under the social security system have traditionally fallen into five categories:

- 1 (1) contributory benefits: these now comprise incapacity benefit<sup>1</sup>, state maternity allowance<sup>2</sup>, benefits for widows and widowers<sup>3</sup> and Category A and B retirement pensions<sup>4</sup>;
- 2 (2) non-contributory benefits: these now comprise attendance allowance<sup>5</sup>, severe disablement allowance<sup>6</sup>, invalid care allowance<sup>7</sup>, disability living allowance<sup>8</sup>, guardian's allowance<sup>9</sup> and Category C and D retirement pensions<sup>10</sup>;
- 3 (3) industrial injury benefit: this now comprises the disablement pension in relation to industrial accidents and diseases<sup>11</sup>;
- 4 (4) income-related benefits: these now comprise income support<sup>12</sup>, family credit<sup>13</sup>, disability working allowance<sup>14</sup>, housing benefit<sup>15</sup>, council tax benefit<sup>16</sup> and social fund payments<sup>17</sup>;
- 5 (5) child benefit<sup>18</sup>.

In addition, the social security legislation governs statutory sick pay and statutory maternity pay, though these are administered through the employer<sup>19</sup>. Jobseeker's allowance, contained in separate legislation, straddles categories (1) and (4) above, being partly contributory (the contribution-based jobseeker's allowance, payable for a maximum of six months) but in its residual form income-related and based on the income support model (income-based jobseeker's allowance)<sup>20</sup>.

Payments of certain benefits<sup>21</sup> are charged to income tax under Schedule E<sup>22</sup> whereas other payments<sup>23</sup> are not treated as income for any purpose of the Income Tax Acts<sup>24</sup>.

Social security benefits are not compensatory in nature and accordingly the payment of interest on arrears of benefits, when the delay in payment of the benefit was the result of unlawful discrimination, is not an essential component of the right under EC law to obtain the benefits to which a person is entitled<sup>25</sup>.

(ii) Finance

8. The National Insurance Fund.

The National Insurance Fund continues to be maintained under the control and management of the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup>. Accounts of the National Insurance Fund must be prepared in such form, and in such manner and at such times, as the Treasury may direct, and the Comptroller and Auditor General<sup>2</sup> must examine and certify every such account and must lay copies of it, together with his report on it, before Parliament<sup>3</sup>.

Any money in the National Insurance Fund may from time to time be paid over to the National Debt Commissioners<sup>4</sup> and be invested by them, in accordance with such directions as may be given by the Treasury, in any such permitted manner<sup>5</sup> as the Treasury may specify by an order of which a draft has been laid before Parliament<sup>6</sup>.

The National Debt Commissioners must present to Parliament annually an account of the securities in which money in the National Insurance Fund is for the time being invested<sup>7</sup>.

If, before the beginning of any tax year<sup>8</sup>, the Secretary of State with the consent of the Treasury by order provides that this provision is to have effect with respect to that tax year, there must be paid into the National Insurance Fund during that tax year, out of money provided by Parliament, such amounts as the Secretary of State may from time to time determine, not exceeding in aggregate the prescribed percentage<sup>9</sup> of estimated benefit expenditure<sup>10</sup> for the financial year ending with 31 March in that tax year<sup>11</sup>.

7 Ibid s 161(4).

8 'Tax year' means the 12 months beginning with 6 April in any year: see the Social Security Act 1993 s 4(1).

9 'The prescribed percentage' means such percentage, not exceeding 17%, as may be specified in the order: ibid s 2(3). With respect to the tax year 1997-98 the prescribed percentage is 4%: see the Social Security (Contributions) (Re-rating and National Insurance Fund Payments) Order 1997, SI 1997/544, art 6.

10 'Estimated benefit expenditure' in relation to a financial year means the amount estimated by the Government Actuary or the Deputy Government Actuary, before the beginning of that financial year, to be the aggregate of the amounts that may be expected to be paid out of the National Insurance Fund in that financial year under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 163(1)(a)-(d) (see PARA 10 post); and under the Employment Rights Act 1996 ss 167(1), 182 (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 557; EMPLOYMENT vol 40

11 Social Security Act 1993 s 2(2). As to the exercise of this power see note 9 supra. The Secretary of State may exercise this power only if he thinks it expedient to do so with a view to adjusting the level at which the National Insurance Fund stands for the time being and having regard to estimated benefit expenditure for the financial year ending with 31 March in the tax year to which the determination or order is to relate; and he must consult the Treasury before making any such determination: s 2(5), (6). Any such order must be made by statutory instrument and may not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House: s 2(8). Amounts payable under these provisions must be paid at such times and in such manner as the Treasury may direct: s 2(7).

Corresponding provision is made with regard to Northern Ireland: see s 3.

9. Destination of contributions.

Contributions<sup>1</sup> received by the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> and the additions paid out of money provided by Parliament<sup>3</sup> must be paid by him into the National Insurance Fund<sup>4</sup> after deducting from contributions of any class<sup>5</sup> the appropriate national health service allocation<sup>6</sup> in the case of contributions of that class<sup>7</sup>. From the national health service allocation in respect of contributions of any class there must be deducted such amount as the Secretary of State may estimate, in accordance with any directions given by the Treasury, to be the portion of the total expenses incurred by him or any other government department in collecting contributions of that class which is fairly attributable to that allocation, and the remainder must, in the hands of the Secretary of State, be taken as paid towards the cost (1) of the national health service in England; (2) of that service in Wales; and (3) of that service in Scotland, in such shares as the Treasury may determine<sup>8</sup>. The Secretary of State must pay any amounts so deducted into the Consolidated Fund<sup>9</sup>.

The sums paid to the Secretary of State by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue in respect of interest and penalties recovered by them in connection with contributions of any class<sup>10</sup> must also be paid, in accordance with any directions given by the Treasury, into the National Insurance Fund<sup>11</sup>.

The Secretary of State may make regulations modifying these provisions, in such manner as he thinks appropriate, in relation to the contributions of (a) members of Her Majesty's forces<sup>12</sup>; (b) mariners, airmen and certain other persons<sup>13</sup>; and (c) continental shelf workers<sup>14</sup> and in relation to any contributions which are reduced<sup>15</sup> because of the disapplication of certain statutory provisions<sup>16</sup> relating to redundancy payments<sup>17</sup>.

1 'Contribution' means a contribution under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19) (as amended) (see PARA 31 et seq post): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 191 (definition added by the Social Security Administration (Fraud) Act 1997 s 22, Sch 1 para 12).

2 The contributions referred to include those paid over to the Secretary of State by the Inland Revenue under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 16(4) (see PARA 51 post) and s 1(4), Sch 1 para 6(8) (see PARA 49 post), subject, as respects contributions from Northern Ireland, to s 16(5): s 162(2). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

4 As to the National Insurance Fund see PARA 8 ante.

5 As to the classes of contributions see PARA 34 et seq post.

6 'The appropriate national health service allocation' means: (1) in the case of primary Class 1 contributions (see PARA 36 post), 1.05% of the amount estimated to be that of so much of the earnings in respect of which those contributions were paid as exceeded the lower earnings limit but did not exceed the upper earnings limit; (2) in the case of secondary Class 1 contributions (see PARA 37 post), 0.9% of the amount estimated to be that of the earnings in respect of which those contributions were paid; (3) in the case of Class 1A contributions (see PARA 38 post), 0.9% of the amount estimated to be the aggregate of the cash equivalents of the benefits of the cars and car fuel used in calculating those contributions; (4) in the case of Class 2 contributions (see PARA 40 post), 15.5% of the amount estimated to be the total of those contributions; (5) in the case of Class 3 contributions (see PARA 42 post), 15.5% of the amount estimated to be the total of those contributions; and (6) in the case of Class 4 contributions (see PARA 43 post), 1.15% of the amount estimated to be that of the earnings in respect of which those contributions were paid; and 'estimated' means estimated by the Secretary of State in any manner which after consulting the Government Actuary or the Deputy Government Actuary he considers to be appropriate and which the Treasury has approved: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s

162(5), (6) (amended by the Social Security (Contributions) Act 1994 s 2(1), (2)). In the case of earners paid other than weekly, the reference in head (1) supra to the lower or upper earnings limit must be taken as a reference to the equivalent of that limit prescribed under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 8(3) (see PARA 36 post); Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 162(6A) (added by the Social Security (Contributions) Act 1994 s 2(1), (2)). The Secretary of State may, with the consent of the Treasury, by order amend any of heads (1)-(6) supra in relation to any tax year, by substituting for the percentage for the time being specified in that head a different percentage; but no such order may substitute a figure which represents an increase or decrease in the appropriate national health service allocation of more than: (a) 0.1% of the relevant earnings, in the case of heads (1) or (2) supra; (b) 0.1% of the relevant aggregate, in the case of head (3) supra; (c) 4% of the relevant contributions, in the case of heads (4) or (5) supra; or (d) 0.2% of the relevant earnings, in the case of head (6) supra: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 162(7), (8). 'Tax year' means the 12 months beginning with 6 April in any year: s 191; and see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1) which contains an identical definition, and additionally defines the expression '1978-79' as meaning the tax year beginning with 6 April 1978, and provides that any correspondingly framed reference to a pair of successive years is to be construed as a reference to the tax year beginning with 6 April in the earlier of them. ### (3) SETTING THE RATES OF CONTRIBUTIONS AND BENEFITS

15. Annual review of contributions.

In each tax year<sup>1</sup> the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> must carry out a review of the general level of earnings<sup>3</sup> in Great Britain<sup>4</sup>, taking into account changes in that level which have taken place since his last such review, with a view to determining whether, in respect of Class 2, Class 3 or Class 4 contributions<sup>5</sup>, an order should be made amending Part I of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992<sup>6</sup> to have effect in relation to the next following tax year<sup>7</sup>. For the purposes of any such review, the Secretary of State:

- 40 (1) must estimate the general level of earnings in such manner as he thinks fit; and
- 41 (2) must take into account any other matters appearing to him to be relevant to his determination whether or not such an order should be made, including the current operation of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992<sup>8</sup>.

If the Secretary of State determines, as a result of such a review, that having regard to changes in the general level of earnings which have taken place, and to any other matters taken into account on the review, an order should be made for the amendment of Part I of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, he must prepare and lay before each House of Parliament a draft of such an order framed so as to give effect to his conclusions on the review<sup>9</sup>. If, however, he determines as a result of such a review that, having regard to his conclusions in respect of the general level of earnings and otherwise, no such amendments are called for as can be made by such an order, and he determines accordingly not to lay any such draft before Parliament, he must instead prepare and lay before each House of Parliament a report explaining his reasons for that determination<sup>10</sup>.

An order under these provisions must be made so as to be in force from the beginning of the tax year following that in which it receives Parliamentary approval<sup>11</sup>, and to have effect for that year and any subsequent tax year<sup>12</sup>.

Provision is also made for annual reviews of earnings to establish whether the earnings factors relevant for certain purposes should be revalued<sup>13</sup>.

2 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'earnings' see, by virtue of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 192(2) PARA 33 post.

4 'Great Britain' means England, Scotland and Wales: Union with Scotland Act 1706, preamble art I; Interpretation Act 1978 s 22(1), Sch 2 para 5(a). For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, any reference to Great Britain includes a reference to the territorial waters of the United Kingdom adjacent to Great Britain and any reference to the United Kingdom includes a reference to the territorial waters of the United Kingdom: s 172 (applied by virtue of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 192(2)). 7 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 141(1). As to the application of this provision in relation to the tax year 1992-93 see s 141(7). An order made under s 141 may amend the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (as amended) by altering any one or more of the following figures: (1) the figure specified in s 11(1) (as amended) (see PARA 40 post) as the weekly rate of Class 2 contributions; (2) the figure specified in s 11(4) (as amended) (see PARA 40 post) as the amount of earnings below which regulations under that subsection may except an earner from liability for Class 2 contributions; (3) the figure specified in s 13(1) (as amended) (see PARA 42 post) as the amount of a Class 3 contribution; (4) the figures specified in s 15(3) (as amended) (see PARA 43 post) as the lower and upper limits of profits or gains which are to be taken into account for the purposes of Class 4 contributions; and if such an order contains an amendment altering either of the figures specified in s 15(3) (as amended) it must make the same alteration of the corresponding figure specified in s 18(1) (as amended) (see PARA 44 post): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 141(4), (5).

Where the Secretary of State lays before Parliament a draft of an order under s 141, he must lay with it a copy of a report by the Government Actuary or the Deputy Government Actuary on the effect which, in that actuary's opinion, the making of such an order may be expected to have on the National Insurance Fund: s 142(1). Where the Secretary of State lays before Parliament a draft of such an order, then if the draft is approved by a resolution of each House, the Secretary of State must make an order in the form of the draft: s 142(1). As to laying documents before Parliament see generally PARLIAMENT vol 34 (Reissue) PARA 941.

11 For this purpose, the order is to be taken as receiving Parliamentary approval on the date on which the draft of it is approved by the second House to approve it: ibid s 142(3).

16. Other powers to alter contributions.

Without prejudice to the provision for annual review<sup>1</sup>, the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> may at any time, if he thinks it expedient to do so with a view to adjusting the level at which the National Insurance Fund<sup>3</sup> stands for the time being and having regard to the sums which may be expected to be paid from the fund in any future period, make an order amending Part I of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992<sup>4</sup> by altering any one or more of certain specified<sup>5</sup> figures<sup>6</sup>. This power is subject to statutory restrictions<sup>7</sup>.

Such an order must be made so as to be in force from the beginning of the tax year following that in which it received Parliamentary approval<sup>8</sup>, and to have effect for that year and any subsequent tax year<sup>9</sup>.

The Secretary of State also has power to make an order at any time for the purpose of adjusting amounts payable by way of primary Class 1 contributions<sup>10</sup> or secondary Class 1 contributions<sup>11</sup>; and he may by order alter the number of secondary earnings brackets below the highest bracket specified<sup>12</sup> in relation to secondary Class 1 contributions<sup>13</sup>.

2    As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

3    As to the National Insurance Fund see PARA 8 ante.

4    Ie the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19) (as amended): see PARA 36 et seq post.

5    The specified figures are: (1) the percentage rate specified (a) as the initial primary percentage in ibid s 8(2)(a) (see PARA 36 post); (b) as the main primary percentage in s 8(2)(b) (as amended); (2) the percentage rate for secondary Class 1 contributions specified as the appropriate rate for Bracket 4 in s 9(3) (as amended) (see PARA 37 post); (3) the figure specified in s 11(1) (as amended) as the weekly rate of Class 2 contributions (see PARA 40 post); (4) the figure specified in s 13(1) (as amended) as the amount of a Class 3 contribution (see PARA 42 post); (5) the percentage rate for Class 4 contributions specified in s 15(3) (as amended) (see PARA 43 post); and if such an order contains an amendment altering the percentage rate for Class 4 contributions specified in s 15(3) (as amended), it must make the same alteration of the percentage rate specified in s 18(1) (as amended) (see PARA 44 post): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 143(2), (3). Such an order may, if it contains an amendment altering the figure specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 11(1) (as amended) as the weekly rate of Class 2 contributions and the Secretary of State thinks it expedient in consequence of that amendment, amend s 11(4) (as amended) by altering the figure there specified as the amount of earnings below which regulations under s 11(4) (as amended) may exempt an earner from liability for Class 2 contributions: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 143(3).

6    Ibid s 143(1). Where (in accordance with s 190: see PARA 30 post) the Secretary of State lays before Parliament a draft of an order under s 143, he must lay with it a copy of a report by the Government Actuary or the Deputy Government Actuary on the effect which, in that actuary's opinion, the making of such an order may be expected to have on the National Insurance Fund: s 144(1). As to laying documents before Parliament see generally PARLIAMENT vol 34 (Reissue) PARA 941.

7    No order may be made under ibid s 143 so as (1) to increase for any tax year (a) the percentage rate of the initial or main primary percentage; or (b) the percentage rate for secondary Class 1 contributions, to a percentage rate more than 0.25% higher than the percentage rate applicable at the end of the preceding tax year for the primary percentage or secondary Class 1 contribution in question; or (2) to increase the percentage rate for Class 4 contributions to more than 8.25%: s 143(4). For the meaning of 'tax year' see PARA 9 note 6 ante.

8 The order is to be taken as receiving Parliamentary approval on the date on which the draft of it is approved by the second House to approve it: ibid s 144(2).

10 See the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 145(1). Without prejudice to s 141 or s 143, the Secretary of State may make such order (1) amending the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 11(1) (as amended) by altering the figure specified in that subsection as the weekly rate of Class 2 contributions; (2) amending s 13(1) (as amended) by altering the figure specified in that subsection as the amount of a Class 3 contribution, as he thinks fit in consequence of the coming into force of an order made or proposed to be made under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 145(1): s 145(4).

An order under s 145 or s 146 (see the text and notes 11-13 infra) may make such amendments of any enactment as appear to the Secretary of State to be necessary or expedient in consequence of any alteration made by it: s 147(1). Where (in accordance with s 190) the Secretary of State lays before Parliament a draft of such an order, he must lay with it a copy of a report by the Government Actuary or the Deputy Government Actuary on the effect which, in that Actuary's opinion, the making of such an order may be expected to have on the National Insurance Fund: s 147(1). An order under s 145 or s 146 must be made so as to come into force (a) on a date in the tax year in which it receives Parliamentary approval; or (b) on a date in the next tax year; and is taken as receiving Parliamentary approval on the date on which the draft of it is approved by the second House to approve it: s 147(3), (5). Such an order has effect for the remainder of the tax year in which it comes into force and for any subsequent tax year (subject to the effect of any subsequent order under Pt IX (ss 141-148) (as amended)): s 147(4).

11 See ibid s 145(2). The order may amend the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 9(3) (as amended) by altering any one or more of the following (1) the upper weekly earnings figure specified in respect of Bracket 1; (2) the weekly earnings figures specified in respect of Brackets 2-4; and (3) the percentage rates specified as the appropriate rates for Brackets 1-3; but no such order may be made to alter any of the percentage rates specified as the appropriate rates for Brackets 1-3 in s 9(3) (as amended) to a rate higher than the percentage rate which at the time the order comes into force is specified as the appropriate rate for Bracket 4: see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 145(2), (3)(b). Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/1. INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL SECURITY/(3) SETTING THE RATES OF CONTRIBUTIONS AND BENEFITS/17. Annual up-rating of benefits.

17. Annual up-rating of benefits.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> must in each tax year<sup>2</sup> review the sums payable by way of the principal benefits<sup>3</sup>, in order to determine whether they have retained their value in relation to the general level of prices obtaining in Great Britain<sup>4</sup> (estimated in such manner as the Secretary of State thinks fit)<sup>5</sup>. If it appears to him that the general level of prices is greater at the end of the period under review than it was at the beginning of that period, he must lay before Parliament the draft of an up-rating order:

- 42 (1) which increases each of certain specified sums<sup>6</sup> by a percentage not less than the percentage by which the general level of prices is greater at the end of the period than it was at the beginning<sup>7</sup>; and
- 43 (2) if he considers it appropriate, having regard to the national economic situation and any other matters which he considers relevant, which also increases by such a percentage or percentages as he thinks fit any of the sums payable by way of the principal benefits which are not specified sums for the purposes of head (1) above<sup>8</sup>; and
- 44 (3) stating the amount of any sums payable by way of the principal benefits but which the order does not increase<sup>9</sup>.

An order under these provisions must be framed so as to bring the alterations to which it relates into force in the week beginning with the first Monday in the tax year or on such earlier date in April as may be specified in the order<sup>10</sup>. It may make such transitional provision as the Secretary of State considers expedient in respect of periods of entitlement to family credit, to disability working allowance or to statutory sick pay running at the date when the alterations come into force<sup>11</sup>.

Where a member of an appropriate personal pension scheme<sup>12</sup> or a money purchase contracted-out scheme<sup>13</sup> continues in employment after attaining pensionable age<sup>14</sup> and the commencement of his pension under the scheme is postponed, the above provisions have effect as if the guaranteed minimum pension<sup>15</sup> to which he is treated as entitled<sup>16</sup> were subject to increases in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Pension Schemes Act 1993<sup>17</sup> and as if the amounts of any such notional increases were subject to annual up-rating in the same way as if they were sums<sup>18</sup> payable to a person who is also entitled to a Category A or Category B retirement pension<sup>19</sup>.

If the Secretary of State is satisfied that a mistake (whether in computation or otherwise) has occurred in the preparation of the previous order under the above provisions, he may by order vary the amount of any one or more of the sums payable by way of certain principal benefits<sup>20</sup> by increasing or reducing it to the level at which it would have stood had the mistake not occurred<sup>21</sup>. Where the amount of any such sum is so varied, then for the purposes of the next annual review and up-rating order, the amount of the sum must be taken to be, and throughout the period under review to have been, its amount as so varied<sup>22</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'tax year' see PARA 9 note 6 ante.

3 le the sums mentioned in the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150(1) (amended by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 190, Sch 8 para 28; the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 2(3); and the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), Sch 2 para 64). Those sums are the sums: (1) specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 4 (as amended) (rate of benefits etc); s 44(4) (as amended) (see PARA 569 post); and s 111, Sch 8 paras 2(6)(c), 6(2)(b) (see PARA 167 post); (2) specified in regulations under s 30B(7) (as added) (see PARA 62 post); (3) specified in regulations under s 72(3) or 73(10) (see PARA 109 post); (4) which are the additional pensions in the long-term benefits; (5) which are the increases in the rates of retirement pensions under Sch 5 (as amended) (see PARA 585 post); (6) which are payable (a) by virtue of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 15(1) (see PARA 892 post) to a person who is also entitled to a Category A or Category B retirement pension, including sums payable by virtue of s 17(2) (see PARA 893 post); or (b) payable to such a person as part of his Category A or Category B retirement pension by virtue of an order made under these provisions or made under corresponding previous legislation; (7) specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 80(4) (as amended) (see PARA 590 post); (8) falling to be calculated under Sch 7 para 13(4) (see PARA 165 post); (9) prescribed for the purposes of s 128(5) (see PARA 204 post) or s 129(8) (see PARA 220 post) or specified in regulations under s 135(1) (see PARA 174 post); (10) specified by virtue of s 145(1) (see PARA 255 post); (11) specified in s 157(1) or in regulations under s 166(3) (statutory sick pay and statutory maternity pay: see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARAS 498 et seq, 365 et seq respectively); (12) specified in regulations under the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 4(2) or (5) (see PARAS 268, 272 post): see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150(1)(a)-(k) (as so amended).

Any increase under s 150 (as amended) of the sums mentioned in head (4) supra must take the form of a direction that those sums must be increased by a specified percentage of their amount apart from the order and must apply, subject to s 156 (as substituted: see PARA 578 post) and only in relation to additional pensions calculated under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 45 (as amended) (see PARA 569 post) by reference to final relevant years which are earlier than the tax year preceding that in which the order comes into force, or, if the order comes into force on or after 6 May in any tax year, earlier than that year: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 151(1) (amended by the Pensions Act 1995 s 130(2)). Any increase of the sums mentioned in heads (5) or (6) supra must take the form of a direction that those sums must be increased by a specified percentage of their amount apart from the order and must apply only in relation to sums calculated under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 5 (as amended) by reference to periods of deferment which have ended before the coming into force of the order: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 151(2). An increase in a sum such as is specified in head (6)(b) supra must form part of the Category A or Category B retirement pension of the person to whom it is paid and an increase in a sum such as is specified in head (6)(a) supra must be added to and form part of that pension but does not form part of the sum increased: s 151(3). As to Category A and Category B retirement pensions see PARA 568 et seq post.

4 For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

5 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150(1).

6 le the sums to which ibid s 150(3) (as amended) applies. Those sums are sums (1) specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 4 Pt I, Pt III paras 1-6, Pt IV or Pt V (all as amended); or (2) mentioned in note 3 head (1) supra (excluding sums specified in Sch 4 (as amended)) or in note 3 heads (2)-(6) or head (8) supra: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150(3) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 ss 2(3), 9(4)).

7 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150(2)(a)

8 See ibid s 150(2)(b).

9 Ibid s 150(2)(c). Section 150(2) does not require the Secretary of State to provide for an increase in any case in which it appears to him that the amount of the increase would be inconsiderable; and he may, in providing for an increase in pursuance of s 150(2), adjust the amount of the increase so as to round any sum up or down to such extent as he thinks appropriate: s 150(4), (5). Where s 150(2) requires the Secretary of State to lay before Parliament the draft of an order increasing any sum that could be reduced under section 154(1) (see PARA 18 post), the order may make such alteration to that sum as reflects the combined effect of that increase and of any reduction that could be made under s 154(1): s 150(6).

If the Secretary of State considers it appropriate to do so, he may include in the draft of an up-rating order, in addition to any other provisions, provisions increasing any of the sums for the time being specified in regulations under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt VII (ss 123-137) (as amended) (see PARA 173 et seq post) or under the Jobseekers Act 1995 (see PARA 258 et seq post) or which are additions to income support under regulations made under the Social Security Act 1986 s 89 (repealed): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 150(7) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 Sch 2 para 64). Any increase under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150 (as amended) of any of the sums which are additions to income support mentioned in s 150(7) (as amended) must take the form of a direction that any such sum must be increased by a specified percentage of its amount apart from the order: s 151(6).

The Secretary of State must lay with any draft order under s 150 (as amended) a copy of a report by the Government Actuary or the Deputy Government Actuary giving that actuary's opinion on the likely effect on the National Insurance Fund of such parts of the order as relate to sums payable out of that fund: s 150(8). If a draft order laid before Parliament in pursuance of s 150 (as amended) is approved by a resolution of each House, the Secretary of State must make the order in the form of the draft: s 150(9). ### 17A. Annual up-rating of basic pension etc and standard minimum guarantee.

As to commencement of the following provisions see Pensions Act 2007 s 30(1)(a); and NOTE 10.

The Secretary of State must in each tax year review the following amounts in order to determine whether they have retained their value in relation to the general level of earnings obtaining in Great Britain (1) the amount of the basic pension<sup>1</sup>; (2) the specified amounts in the case of Category B, C or D retirement pensions<sup>2</sup>; (3) the specified amounts in the case of industrial death benefit<sup>3</sup>; and (4) the amounts of the standard minimum guarantee for the time being prescribed<sup>4</sup>. Where it appears to the Secretary of State that the general level of earnings is greater at the end of the period under review than it was at the beginning of that period, he must lay before Parliament the draft of an order which increases each of the amounts referred to above<sup>5</sup> by a percentage not less than the percentage by which the general level of earnings is greater at the end of the period than it was at the beginning<sup>6</sup>. The Secretary of State must lay with a draft order under these provisions a copy of a report by the Government Actuary or the Deputy Government Actuary giving that Actuary's opinion on the likely effect on the National Insurance Fund of any parts of the order relating to sums payable out of that Fund<sup>7</sup>. If a draft order laid before Parliament under these provisions is approved by a resolution of each House, the Secretary of State must make the order in the form of the draft<sup>8</sup>. An order under these provisions must be framed so as to bring the increase in question into force in the week beginning with the first Monday in the tax year following that in which the order is made<sup>9</sup>.

Consequential and related amendments are made<sup>10</sup>.

1 In the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150A 'the amount of the basic pension' means the first amount specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44(4) (weekly rate of Category A retirement pension): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150A(10) (s 150A added by Pensions Act 2007 s 5(1)).

2 In the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150A 'the specified amounts in the case of Category B, C or D retirement pensions' means (1) the amount specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 4 Pt 1 para 5, and (2) the amounts specified in Sch 4 Pt 3 paras 6 and 7: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150A(10).

3 In ibid s 150A 'the specified amounts in the case of industrial death benefit' means (1) the amounts specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 4 Pt 5 para 10 (apart from the amount of the initial rate), and (2) the amount specified in Sch 4 Pt 5 para 11: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150A(10).

4 Ibid s 150A(1), referring to the standard minimum guarantee for the time being prescribed under the State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 2(4), (5)(a), (b). For the purposes of any review under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150A(1) the Secretary of State must estimate the general level of earnings in such manner as he thinks fit: s 150A(8). See further NOTE 10.

5 Ie referred to in ibid s 150A(1).

6 Ibid s 150A(2). This does not require the Secretary of State to provide for an increase in any case if it appears to him that the amount of the increase would be inconsiderable: s 150A(3). The Secretary of State may, in providing for an increase in pursuance of s 150A(2), adjust the amount of the increase so as to round the sum in question up or down to such extent as he thinks appropriate: s 150A(4).

7 Ibid s 150A(5). If a draft order under s 150A is combined with a draft up-rating order under s 150 (see PARA 17), the report required by virtue of s 150A(5) may be combined with that required by virtue of s 150(8): s 150A(9).

8 Ibid s 150A(6).

9 Ibid s 150A(7).

10 See Pensions Act 2007 s 5(2), Sch 1 Pt 5.

The Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150A and the amendments made by the Pensions Act 2007 Sch 1 Pt 5 (paras 19-32), so far as relating to the amounts referred to in heads (1)-(3) in the text, have effect in relation to the designated tax year and subsequent tax years (with the result that the first review to be carried out under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150A(1) in relation to those amounts is to be carried out in the designated tax year): 2007 Act s 5(3). 'The designated tax year' means such tax year as the Secretary of State may designate by an order made before 1 April 2011: s 5(4). The Secretary of State must exercise his power under s 5(4) in such a way as to secure that the tax year immediately following the designated tax year is one that begins before the relevant dissolution date: s 5(5). 'The relevant dissolution date' means the latest date on which, having regard to the maximum period for which a Parliament may exist, the Parliament in existence at the time of exercise of the power could be dissolved: s 5(6).

The Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150A and the amendments made by the 2007 Act Sch 1 Pt 5, so far as relating to the amounts mentioned in head (4) in the text, have effect in relation to the tax year in which the Pensions Act 2007 is passed and subsequent tax years: s 5(7).

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> is to be under an additional duty to review the level of child benefit<sup>2</sup> in April of each year, taking account of increases in the Retail Price Index and other relevant external factors<sup>3</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/1. INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL SECURITY/(4) COMPUTATION OF BENEFITS AND EARNINGS/19. Effect of alteration of rates of benefit; in general.

(4) COMPUTATION OF BENEFITS AND EARNINGS

19. Effect of alteration of rates of benefit; in general.

Where the rate of any benefit under Parts II to V of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992<sup>1</sup> is altered<sup>2</sup>, then, subject to such exceptions or conditions as may be prescribed<sup>3</sup>, where:

- 45 (1) the weekly rate of such a benefit is altered to a fixed amount higher or lower than the previous amount; and
- 46 (2) before the commencing date<sup>4</sup> an award of that benefit has been made (whether before or after the passing of the relevant Act or the making of the relevant order), except as respects any period falling before the commencing date, the benefit becomes payable at the altered rate without any claim<sup>5</sup> being made for it in the case of an increase in the rate of benefit or any review of the award in the case of a decrease, and the award has effect accordingly<sup>6</sup>. Where the weekly rate of such a benefit is altered and before the commencing date (but after that date is fixed) an award is made of the benefit, the award either may provide for the benefit to be paid as from the commencing date at the altered rate or may be expressed in terms of the rate appropriate at the date of the award<sup>7</sup>.

Where in consequence of the passing of an Act, or the making of an order, altering the rate of disablement pension<sup>8</sup>, regulations are made varying the scale of disablement gratuities<sup>9</sup>, the regulations may provide that the scale as varied is to apply only in cases where the period taken into account by the assessment of the extent of the disablement in respect of which the gratuity is awarded begins or began after such day as may be prescribed<sup>10</sup>.

Subject to such exceptions or conditions as may be prescribed, where:

- 47 (a) for any purpose of any Act or regulations, the weekly rate at which a person contributes to the cost of providing for a child<sup>11</sup>, or to the maintenance of an adult dependant<sup>12</sup>, is to be calculated for a period beginning on or after the commencing date for an increase in the weekly rate of benefit; but
- 48 (b) account is to be taken of amounts referable to the period before the commencing date, those amounts must be treated as increased in proportion to the increase in the weekly rate of benefit<sup>13</sup>.

Regulations may be made applying the above provisions for the purposes of graduated retirement benefit<sup>14</sup>.

2 le altered (1) by an Act subsequent to the Social Security Administration Act 1992; (2) by an order under s 150 (as amended) or s 152 (see PARA 18 ante); or (3) in consequence of any such Act or order altering any maximum rate of benefit: s 155(1).

3 'Prescribe' means prescribe by regulations: ibid s 191; and see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1), containing an identical definition for the purposes of Pts I-VI (ss 1-122) (as amended). As to the making of regulations generally see PARA 30 post.

4 For these purposes, 'the commencing date' means the date fixed for payment of benefit at an altered rate to commence: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 155(1).

5 'Claim' is to be construed in accordance with 'claimant': ibid s 191; and see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1). 'Claimant', in relation to contributions under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19) (as amended) (see PARA 31 et seq post) and to benefit under Pts II-IV (ss 20-93) (as amended) means (1) a person whose right to be excepted from liability to pay, or to have his liability deferred for, or to be credited with, a contribution, is in question; (2) a person who has claimed benefit; and includes, in relation to an award or decision, a beneficiary under the award or affected by the decision: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 191. In relation to industrial injuries benefit (ie benefit under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt V (ss 94-111) (as amended) (see PARA 126 et seq post) other than under Sch 8 (as amended) (see PARA 167 post)), 'claimant' means a person who has claimed such a benefit and includes (a) an applicant for a declaration under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 44 (see PARA 129 post) that an accident was or was not an industrial accident; and (b) in relation to an award or decision, a beneficiary under the award or affected by the decision: s 191. For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pts I-VI (as amended), however, 'claimant', in relation to benefit other than industrial injuries benefit, means a person who has claimed benefit; and in relation to industrial injuries benefit (ie benefit under Pt V (as amended) other than under Sch 8 (as amended)), means a person who has claimed that benefit: s 122(1).

7 Ibid s 155(4).

8 As to disablement pension see PARA 141 et seq post.

9 As to disablement gratuities see PARA 161 post.

10 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 155(5).

11 There is no statutory definition of 'child' for these purposes; but for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pts I-VI (as amended), 'child' means a person under the age of 19 who would be treated as a child for the purposes of Pt IX (ss 141-147) (as amended) (see PARA 237 et seq post) or such other person under that age as may be prescribed: s 122(1). For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, a person is over or under a particular age if he has or, as the case may be, has not attained that age and is between two particular ages if he has attained the first but not the second; and the time at which a person attains a particular age expressed in years is the commencement of the relevant anniversary of the date of his birth: s 173.

19 Effect of alteration of rates of benefit; in general

TEXT AND NOTES--Rates of awards of retirement pension or graduated retirement benefit may be increased in anticipation of a pensions up-rating order: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 155A (added by Social Security Act 1998 s 76; and amended by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 12 para 25; and Pensions Act 2007 Sch 1 para 24 (in force in part: see ss 5(3)-(7), 30(1)(a)).

For the effect of alteration of rates of an employment and support allowance (see PARA 75A) see Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 159C (added by Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 10(23)). Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 159C amended: Pensions Act 2007 Sch 1 para 28 (partly in force: see ss 5(3)-(7), 30(1)(a)). See also Social Security Act 1998 Sch 2 para 6(b)(iv) (added by Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 17(8)).

NOTE 2--Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 155(1) amended: Pensions Act 2007 Sch 1 para 23 (partly in force: see ss 5(3)-(7), 30(1)(a)).

NOTE 6--The Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 155(3) does not apply if a question arises as to (1) either the weekly rate at which the benefit is payable by virtue of the Social Security Benefits Up-rating Order 2009, SI 2009/497, or whether the conditions for receipt of the benefit at the altered rate are satisfied, until that question has been determined in accordance with the provisions of the Social Security Act 1998 s 8 (see PARA 356A.1) (Social Security Benefits Up-rating Regulations 2009, SI 2009/607, reg 2); (2) either the weekly rate at which guardian's allowance is payable by virtue of the Guardian's Allowance Up-rating Order 2009, SI 2009/797, or whether the conditions for receipt of that allowance at the altered rate are satisfied, until that question has been determined in accordance with the provisions of the 1998 Act s 8 (Guardian's Allowance Up-rating Regulations 2009, SI 2009/810, reg 2).

NOTE 11--'Child' now has the same meaning as in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt 9 (see PARA 239): s 122(1) (definition substituted by Child Benefit Act 2005 Sch 1 para 8(2)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/1. INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL SECURITY/(4) COMPUTATION OF BENEFITS AND EARNINGS/20. Computation of earnings; in general.

20. Computation of earnings; in general.

The computation of earnings is relevant for many purposes of social security legislation and earnings may be computed differently for different purposes. For the purposes of Parts II to V of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992<sup>1</sup> and any associated regulations, the earnings of a claimant are to be calculated by determining the weekly amount of his earnings in accordance with regulations<sup>2</sup>. A claimant may be deemed to have notional income in two cases:

- 49 (1) where a claimant's earnings are not ascertainable at the date of determination of the claim or any subsequent review, the adjudicating authority is to treat him as possessing such earnings as is reasonable in the circumstances of the case, having regard to the number of hours worked and the earnings paid for comparable employment in the area<sup>3</sup>;
- 50 (2) where a claimant performs a service for another person and that person either makes no payment of earnings or pays less than that paid for a comparable employment in the area, the adjudicating authority is to treat the claimant as possessing such earnings (if any) as is reasonable for that employment unless the claimant satisfies the authority that the means of that person are insufficient for him to pay or to pay more for the service<sup>4</sup>.

1 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt II (ss 20-62) (as amended) (contributory benefits); Pt III (ss 63-79) (as amended) (non-contributory benefits); Pt IV (ss 80-93) (as amended) (increases for dependants); Pt V (ss 94-111) (as amended) (benefit for industrial injuries, though in the case of the latter there are excluded industrial injuries and diseases (old cases)); and PARA 54 et seq post.

2 See the Social Security Benefit (Computation of Earnings) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/2745, reg 3(1). The whole of the claimant's earnings are to be counted (including any notional earnings) except any sums which are to be disregarded or deducted: reg 3(2).

The 1996 Regulations replace the Social Security Benefit (Computation of Earnings) Regulations 1978, SI 1978/1698 (revoked). Whereas the previous regulations were cast in general terms, the 1996 Regulations are more specific in relation to the methods of calculation and are in line with the modern rules on calculating income for the purposes of the income-related benefits, in particular those relating to income support: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967 (as amended); and PARA 176 et seq post.

3 See the Social Security Benefit (Computation of Earnings) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/2745, reg 4(1).

4 See ibid reg 4(2). This does not apply to a claimant who is engaged by a charitable or voluntary organisation or who is a volunteer if the authority is satisfied that it is reasonable for him to provide his services free of charge: reg 4(2). This provision mirrors that applying for income support purposes under the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 42(6) (as amended): see PARA 192 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/1. INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL SECURITY/(5) SPECIAL PROVISIONS/21. Disqualifications and adjustments.

(5) SPECIAL PROVISIONS

21. Disqualifications and adjustments.

Except where regulations otherwise provide, a person is disqualified for receiving any benefit under Parts II to V of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992<sup>1</sup>, and an increase of such benefit is not payable in respect of any person as the beneficiary's<sup>2</sup> wife or husband, for any period during which the person:

- 51 (1) is absent from Great Britain<sup>3</sup>; or
- 52 (2) is undergoing imprisonment or detention in legal custody<sup>4</sup>.

However, in the case of absence from Great Britain, the disqualification is materially qualified by regulations applying to claims by persons abroad<sup>5</sup> and by reciprocal agreements with countries outside the United Kingdom<sup>6</sup> as well as by European Community law<sup>7</sup>.

Regulations may provide:

- 53 (a) for suspending payment of such benefit to a person during any period in which he is undergoing medical or other treatment as an in-patient in a hospital or similar institution<sup>8</sup>;
- 54 (b) for a person who would be entitled<sup>9</sup> to any such benefit but for the operation of any provision of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 or the Social Security Administration Act 1992 to be treated as if entitled to it for the purposes of any rights or obligations (whether his own or another's) which depend on his entitlement, other than the right to payment of the benefit<sup>10</sup>.

In relation to jobseeker's allowance<sup>11</sup>, regulations may provide that in prescribed circumstances<sup>12</sup> a claimant who is not in Great Britain may nevertheless be entitled to a contribution-based jobseeker's allowance, and may make provision as to the circumstances in which a person is to be treated as being or not being in Great Britain<sup>13</sup>.

1    Ie under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt II (ss 20-111) (as amended): see PARA 54 et seq post. For the meaning of 'benefit' see PARA 13 note 8 ante.

2    'Beneficiary', in relation to any benefit, means the person entitled to that benefit: ibid s 122(1).

3    Ibid s 113(1)(a). For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

4    Ibid s 113(1)(b). This means imprisonment as a result of criminal proceedings: Decision R(S)8/79. It applies to such imprisonment or detention anywhere in the world: R v National Insurance Comr, ex p Warry [1981] 1 All ER 229, sub nom R v National Insurance Comr, ex p Insurance Officers [1981] ICR 90, DC. There are exceptions to the general rule in the Social Security (General Benefit) Regulations 1982, SI 1982/1408, reg 2 (as amended), reg 3.

5    The Secretary of State may make regulations modifying the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pts I-V (as amended), and any provision of the Social Security Administration Act 1992 Pt II (ss 17-70) (as amended) which replaces provisions of the Social Security Act 1975 Pt III (repealed), in such manner as he thinks proper, in their application to persons who are or have been outside Great Britain at any prescribed time or in any prescribed circumstances: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 119. For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 19 note 3 ante. The Social Security Benefit (Computation of Earnings) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/2745, are partly made in the exercise of this power. See also, by virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(2), the Social Security Benefit (Persons Abroad) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/563 (as amended), which contain modifications in relation to (1) incapacity benefit, severe disablement allowance, unemployability supplement and maternity allowance; (2) widow's benefit, child's special allowance, guardian's allowance and retirement pension; (3) up-rating of benefits; (4) disablement benefit and industrial death benefit; (5) attendance allowance; (6) invalid care allowance; (7) accidents happening or prescribed diseases contracted outside Great Britain; (8) employment on the continental shelf; (9) the Channel Islands; (10) an adult dependant; and (11) child dependants. As to amending and other regulations which partly have effect under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 119 see 40 Halsbury's Statutes (1997 Reissue) 395-396.

6 Such reciprocal agreements are made under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 179 (as amended): see PARA 28 post.

7 See eg Case C-215/90 Chief Adjudication Officer v Twomey [1992] ECR I-1823, [1992] 2 CMLR 571, ECJ; and as to EC social security law see PARA 45 et seq post.

8 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 113(2); and the Social Security (Hospital In-Patients) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/555, regs 3-6 (as amended), which provide for an initial downward adjustment of personal benefits after six weeks, then a further adjustment after 52 weeks in hospital. 'Personal benefit' means that benefit, pension or allowance which, apart from regulations, is payable to a person, otherwise than in respect of another person who is a child or an adult dependant: reg 2(1). There are adjustments in relation to dependency benefits where the beneficiary or dependent spouse has been in hospital for more than six weeks, or where a child dependant has been in hospital for more than 12 weeks: see regs 8-13 (as amended). 'Dependency benefit' means that benefit, pension or allowance which apart from regulations is payable to a person in respect of another person who is a child or an adult dependant, including child's special allowance (see PARA 54 post): reg 2(1).

9 'Entitled', in relation to any benefit, is to be construed in accordance with (1) the provisions specifically relating to that benefit; (2) in the case of a benefit specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 20(1) (as amended) (see PARA 54 post), s 21 (as amended) (see PARA 55 post); and (3) the Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 1-3, 68 (as amended) (see PARAS 337, 347, 371 post): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1).

11 As to jobseeker's allowance see PARA 258 et seq post.

12 For these purposes, 'prescribed' means specified in or determined in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State: Jobseekers Act 1995 s 35(1). For the prescribed circumstances see the Jobseeker's Allowance Regulations 1996, SI 1996/207, regs 165-167 (as amended).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/1. INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL SECURITY/(5) SPECIAL PROVISIONS/28A. Exchange of information with overseas territories.

28A. Exchange of information with overseas territories.

Where it appears to the Secretary of State that there are arrangements in force<sup>1</sup> for the exchange of relevant information<sup>2</sup> between him and any authorities in a country outside the United Kingdom ('the overseas country'), and that the arrangements and the law in force in the overseas country are such as to ensure that there are adequate safeguards in place against any improper use of information disclosed by the Secretary of State under the following provisions, then, for the purpose of facilitating the carrying out by authorities in the overseas country of any function relating to anything corresponding to, or in the nature of, a social security benefit, the Secretary of State may make any such disclosure of relevant information to authorities in the overseas country as he considers necessary to give effect to the arrangements<sup>3</sup>. It is the duty of the Secretary of State to take all such steps as may be reasonable for securing that relevant information disclosed to him in accordance with the arrangements is not used for any purpose for which its use is not expressly or impliedly authorised by or under the arrangements<sup>4</sup>.

1 These provisions do not apply where provision is in force under the Social Security (Administration) Act 1992 s 179 (see PARA 28) for giving effect to the arrangements in question: s 179A(4) (s 179A added by the Social Security Fraud Act 2001 s 5(1)).

2 'Relevant information' means any information held by the Secretary of State or any authorities in a country outside the United Kingdom for the purposes of any functions relating to, or to anything corresponding to or in the nature of, a social security benefit: Social Security (Administration) Act 1992 s 179A(6).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/1. INTRODUCTION TO SOCIAL SECURITY/(5) SPECIAL PROVISIONS/29. Christmas bonus.

29. Christmas bonus.

Any person who in any year:

- 75 (1) is present or ordinarily resident<sup>1</sup> in the United Kingdom<sup>2</sup> or any other member state at any time during the relevant week<sup>3</sup>; and
- 76 (2) is entitled to a payment of a qualifying benefit<sup>4</sup> in respect of a period which includes a day in that week or is to be treated as entitled<sup>5</sup> to a payment of a qualifying benefit in respect of such a period, is entitled<sup>6</sup> to payment in respect of that year of the sum of £10 or such larger sum as the Secretary of State may by order specify<sup>7</sup>. Any person who is a member of a couple and is entitled to such a payment in respect of a year is also entitled to an additional payment<sup>8</sup> in respect of that year if:

- 77 (a) both members have attained pensionable age not later than the end of the relevant week; and
- 78 (b) the other member satisfies the condition mentioned in head (1) above; and
- 79 (c) Either he is entitled or treated as entitled<sup>9</sup>, in respect of the other member, to an increase in the payment of the qualifying benefit or the only qualifying benefit to which he is entitled is income support<sup>10</sup>.

Any such payment is to be made by the Secretary of State<sup>11</sup> and only one sum is payable in respect of any person<sup>12</sup>.

Where the only qualifying benefit to which a person is entitled is income support, he is not entitled to a payment under heads (1) and (2) above unless he has attained pensionable age not later than the end of the relevant week<sup>13</sup>.

A sum so payable is not treated as benefit for the purposes of any enactment or instrument under which entitlement to the relevant qualifying benefit arises or is to be treated as arising<sup>14</sup>. A payment and the right to receive a payment:

- 80 (i) under these provisions or any corresponding enactment in Northern Ireland; or
- 81 (ii) under regulations relating to widows which are made by the Secretary of State under any enactment relating to police and which contain a statement that the regulations provide for payments corresponding to payments under these provisions, must be disregarded for all purposes of income tax and for the purposes of any enactment or instrument under which regard is had to a person's means<sup>15</sup>.

A determination by the competent authority<sup>16</sup> that a person is entitled or not entitled to payment of a qualifying benefit in respect of a period which includes a day in the relevant week is conclusive for these purposes<sup>17</sup>. Any other question arising under these provisions must be determined by the Secretary of State whose decision is final, except that he may reverse the decision on new facts being brought to his notice or if he is satisfied that the decision was given in ignorance of, or was based on a mistake as to, some material fact<sup>18</sup>.

1 As to ordinary residence see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1260.

2 For these purposes the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man and Gibraltar are to be treated as though they were part of the United Kingdom: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 149(1). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' generally see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

3 'The relevant week', in relation to any year, means the week beginning with the first Monday in December or such other week as may be specified in an order made by the Secretary of State: ibid s 150(4). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

A person is not taken to be entitled to a payment of a war disablement pension for these purposes unless not later than the end of the relevant week he has attained the age of 65: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 149(4) (amended by the Pensions Act 1995 Sch 4 para 8). As to when a person attains a particular age see PARA 19 note 11 ante.

5 A person is treated for these purposes as entitled to a payment of a qualifying benefit if he would be so entitled: (1) in the case of a qualifying benefit other than income support, but for the fact that he or, if he is a member of a couple, the other member is entitled to receive some other payment out of public funds; (2) in the case of income support, but for the fact that his income or, if he is a member of a couple, the income of the other member was exceptionally of an amount which resulted in his having ceased to be entitled to income support: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 149(2). References for these purposes to a 'couple' are references to a married or unmarried couple; and for this purpose 'married couple' and 'unmarried couple' are to be construed in accordance with Pt VII (ss 123-137) (as amended) (see PARA 175 note 1 post) and any regulations made under it: s 150(3).

(6) REGULATIONS AND ORDERS; IN GENERAL

30. In general.

Subject as follows, regulations, orders and schemes under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 and regulations and orders under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 must be made by the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> and the powers to make them are exercisable by statutory instrument<sup>2</sup>. However, regulations with respect to proceedings before the commissioners (whether for the determination of any matter or for leave to appeal to or from the commissioners) must be made by the Lord Chancellor<sup>3</sup>. With certain exceptions<sup>4</sup>, any power conferred by those Acts to make an Order in Council, regulations or an order may be exercised:

- 82 (1) Either in relation to all cases to which the power extends, or in relation to those cases subject to specified exceptions, or in relation to any specified cases or classes of case;
- 83 (2) so as to make, as respects the cases in relation to which it is exercised:
  1. (a) the full provision to which the power extends or any less provision (whether by way of exception or otherwise);
  2. (b) the same provision for all cases in relation to which the power is exercised, or different provision for different cases or different classes of case or different provision as respects the same case or class of case for different statutory purposes;
  3. (c) any such provision either unconditionally or subject to any specified condition; and where such a power is expressed to be exercisable for alternative purposes it may be exercised in relation to the same case for any or all of those purposes; and powers to make an Order in Council, regulations or an order for the purposes of any one provision of the Act in question are without prejudice to powers to make regulations or an order for the purposes of any other provision<sup>5</sup>.

Without prejudice to any specific provision in those Acts and subject to certain exceptions<sup>6</sup>, a power conferred by either of those Acts to make an Order in Council, regulations or an order includes power to make thereby such incidental, supplementary, consequential or transitional provision as appears to Her Majesty, or the authority making the regulations or order, as the case may be, to be expedient for the purposes of the Order in Council, regulations or order<sup>7</sup> and also includes power to provide for a person to exercise a discretion in dealing with any matter<sup>8</sup>.

A statutory instrument containing, whether alone or with other provisions, regulations made under or by virtue of certain specified statutory provisions<sup>9</sup>, regulations prescribing payments for certain purposes<sup>10</sup>, or an order under certain provisions<sup>11</sup> may not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before Parliament and been approved by a resolution of each House<sup>12</sup>. A statutory instrument not subject to this requirement and containing any order, regulations or scheme made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 by the Secretary of State<sup>13</sup>, or any regulations or order made under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 by him, or order made thereunder by the Lord Chancellor, is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament<sup>14</sup>.

Subject to certain exceptions<sup>15</sup>, any power under the Jobseekers Act 1995 to make regulations or orders is exercisable by statutory instrument<sup>16</sup> and may be exercised:

- 84 (i) Either in relation to all cases to which it extends, or in relation to those cases subject to specified exceptions, or in relation to any specified cases or classes of case;
  - 85 (ii) so as to make, as respects the cases in relation to which it is exercised:
- 4. (A) the full provision to which the power extends or any less provision (whether by way of exception or otherwise);
  - 5. (B) the same provision for all cases in relation to which it is exercised, or different provision for different cases or different classes of case or different provision as respects the same case or class of case for different purposes of that Act;
  - 6. (C) any such provision either unconditionally or subject to any specified condition<sup>17</sup>.

Where any such power is expressed to be exercisable for alternative purposes it may be exercised in relation to the same case for any or all of those purposes<sup>18</sup>. Any such power includes power to make such incidental, supplemental, consequential or transitional provision as appears to the Secretary of State to be expedient; and to provide for a person to exercise a discretion in dealing with any matter<sup>19</sup>. Any power to make regulations or an order for the purposes of any provision of that Act is without prejudice to any power to make regulations or an order for the purposes of any other provision<sup>20</sup>.

Certain regulations<sup>21</sup> under the Jobseekers Act 1995 may not be made unless a draft of the statutory instrument containing them has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House<sup>22</sup>. Any other statutory instrument made under that Act<sup>23</sup> is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament<sup>24</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/2. CONTRIBUTIONS/(1) IN GENERAL/32. Meaning of 'employed earner' and 'self-employed earner'.

32. Meaning of 'employed earner' and 'self-employed earner'.

'Employed earner' means<sup>1</sup> a person who is gainfully employed<sup>2</sup> in Great Britain<sup>3</sup> either under a contract of service<sup>4</sup>, or in an office (including elective office) with emoluments chargeable to income tax under Schedule E<sup>5</sup>.

'Self-employed earner' means<sup>6</sup> a person who is gainfully employed<sup>7</sup> in Great Britain otherwise than in employed earner's employment (whether or not he is also employed in such employment)<sup>8</sup>.

Regulations may provide:

- 91 (1) for employment of any prescribed<sup>9</sup> description to be disregarded in relation to liability for contributions otherwise arising from employment of that description<sup>10</sup>;
- 92 (2) for a person in employment of any prescribed description to be treated, for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, as falling within one or other of these categories of earner, notwithstanding that he would not otherwise fall within that category<sup>11</sup>.

Where a person is to be treated by reference to any employment of his as an employed earner, then he is to be so treated for all purposes of the 1992 Act and references throughout that Act to employed earner's employment are to be construed accordingly<sup>12</sup>.

1 le for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19) (as amended) (see PARAS 31 ante, 33 et seq post) and also in Pts II-V (ss 20-111) (as amended) (see PARA 54 et seq post).

2 'Employment' includes any trade, business, profession, office or vocation, and 'employed' has a corresponding meaning: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1). 'Gainful employment' connotes an obligation to pay by way of remuneration for services which the person is contractually bound to render under a contract of service: Vandyk v Minister of Pensions and National Insurance [1955] 1 QB 29, [1954] 2 All ER 723.

3 For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

4 'Contract of service' means any contract of service or apprenticeship whether written or oral and whether express or implied: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1). As to the interpretation of its meaning as a common law concept see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARAS 2, 4.

5 Ibid s 2(1)(a). For the circumstances in which the emoluments of an office are chargeable under Schedule E (PAYE) see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 605 et seq; and in particular, Edwards (Inspector of Taxes) v Clinch [1982] AC 845, [1981] 3 All ER 543, HL. The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 2(1)-(3) is subject to the provision made by s 95 as to the employments which are to be treated, for the purposes of industrial injuries benefit, as employed earner's employments (see PARA 128 post): s 2(4).

6 See note 1 supra.

7 A person is treated as a self-employed earner as respects any week during any part of which he is such an earner (without prejudice to his being also treated as an employed earner as respects that week by reference to any other employment of his): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 2(5). 'Week', except in relation to disability working allowance (see PARA 218 et seq post) means a period of seven days beginning with Sunday: s 122(1).

8 Ibid s 2(1)(b).

9 For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 19 note 3 ante.

10 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 2(2)(a); and see note 11 infra.

11 Ibid s 2(2)(b). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made, but, by virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(2), the Social Security (Categorisation of Earners) Regulations 1978, SI 1978/1689 (as amended), partly have effect as if so made, and:

- 1 (1) deem office cleaners, certain agency workers, employees of a spouse, certain lecturers, teachers and instructors, and ministers of religion to be employed earners (see reg 2, Sch 1 Pt I (as amended));
- 2 (2) deem certain examiners, moderators and invigilators to be self-employed earners (see Sch 1 Pt II);
- 3 (c) disregard employment by a close relative in the home, employment by a spouse (other than for the purposes of the spouse's employment), any employment as a self-employed earner where that is not the person's ordinary employment, employment as an election returning officer, employment in or by visiting forces, employment as a member of a designated international headquarters or defence organisation and employment as a Queen's Gurkha officer or as any other member of the Brigade of Gurkhas of a person who was recruited in Nepal (see Sch 1 Pt III (as amended)).

In addition, reg 5, Sch 3 (as amended) provides for prescribed persons to be treated as the secondary Class 1 contributor in respect of persons in prescribed employments; these are largely the employments covered by Sch 1 (as amended), but with the addition of a barrister's clerk (deemed to be employed by the head of chambers) and employees of a foreign employer (deemed to be employed by the host employer to whom the personal service of the employee is made available). As to secondary Class 1 contributions see PARA 37 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/2. CONTRIBUTIONS/(1) IN GENERAL/33. Calculation of earnings.

33. Calculation of earnings.

'Earnings' includes<sup>1</sup> any remuneration or profit derived from an employment<sup>2</sup> and 'earner' is to be construed accordingly<sup>3</sup>. The following are treated for these purposes as remuneration derived from employed earner's<sup>4</sup> employment:

- 93 (1) any sum paid to or for the benefit of a person in satisfaction (whether in whole or in part) of any entitlement of that person to statutory sick pay<sup>5</sup> or statutory maternity pay<sup>6</sup>; and
- 94 (2) any sickness payment<sup>7</sup> made to or for the benefit of the employed earner and in accordance with arrangements under which the person who is the secondary contributor<sup>8</sup> in relation to the employment concerned has made, or remains liable to make, payments towards the provision of that sickness payment (that is to say, contractual sickness pay)<sup>9</sup>;
- 95 (3) any sum paid to or for the benefit of an employed earner which is chargeable to tax<sup>10</sup> as consideration for certain restrictive undertakings<sup>11</sup>;
- 96 (4) any payment made by a body corporate to or for the benefit of any of its directors where that payment would, when made, not otherwise be earnings for the statutory purposes<sup>12</sup> but where regulations make provision for it to be so treated<sup>13</sup>.

The amount of a person's earnings for any period, or the amount of his earnings to be treated as comprised in any payment made to him or for his benefit, is to be calculated or estimated<sup>14</sup> in such manner and on such basis as is prescribed<sup>15</sup>. The basic principle is that the amount is to be calculated on the basis of the person's gross earnings from the employment<sup>16</sup> or, as the case may be, employments concerned<sup>17</sup>, less any amounts that are specifically stated to be disregarded<sup>18</sup>. For the purposes of Class 1 contributions, regulations may make provision as to the intervals at which payments of earnings are to be treated as made<sup>19</sup>.

With a view to securing that liability for the payment of earnings-related contributions is not avoided or reduced by a secondary contributor following (in the payment of earnings) any practice which is abnormal for the employment in question, the Secretary of State<sup>20</sup> may, if he thinks fit, determine any question relating to a person's earnings-related contributions where any such practice has been or is being followed, as if the secondary contributor concerned had not followed any abnormal pay practice, but had followed a practice or practices normal for that employment<sup>21</sup>. In addition, the Secretary of State may, where he is satisfied as to the existence of any practice in respect of the payment of earnings whereby the incidence of earnings-related contributions is avoided or reduced by means of irregular or unequal payments, give directions for securing that such contributions are payable as if that practice were not followed<sup>22</sup>.

Regulations may provide that any employment protection entitlement<sup>23</sup> is to be deemed for the purposes of Parts I to V of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992<sup>24</sup> to be earnings payable by and to such persons as are prescribed and to be so payable in respect of such periods as are prescribed and that those periods, so far as they are not periods of employment, are to be deemed for those purposes to be periods of employment<sup>25</sup>.

1    le for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19) (as amended) (see PARAS 31-32 ante, 34 et seq post) and Pts II-V (ss 20-111) (as amended) (see PARA 54 et seq post): s 3(1).

2 For the meaning of 'employment' see PARA 32 note 2 ante.

3 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 3(1).

4 For the meaning of 'employed earner' see PARA 32 ante.

6 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 4(1)(a). As to statutory maternity pay see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 365 et seq.

7 For these purposes, 'sickness payment' means any payment made in respect of absence from work due to incapacity for work: ibid s 4(3) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11, Sch 1 para 1, Sch 2).

8 For the meaning of 'secondary contributor' see PARA 35 note 9 post.

9 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 4(1)(b). Where the funds for making sickness payments under arrangements of the kind mentioned in head (2) in the text are attributable in part to contributions to those funds made by the employed earner, regulations may make provision for disregarding, for those purposes, the prescribed part of any sum paid as a result of the arrangements: s 4(2). For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 19 note 3 ante.

Regulations may make provision as to the manner in which, and the person through whom, any sickness payment which, by s 4(1), is to be treated as remuneration derived from employed earner's employment is to be made: s 1(4), Sch 1 para 11(1). In any case where regulations so made have the effect of requiring a registered friendly society (within the meaning of the Friendly Societies Act 1974) to make amendments to its rules, the amendments may, notwithstanding any provision of those rules, be made in accordance with the procedure prescribed by regulations made by the Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies for these purposes: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 11(2).

15 Ibid s 3(2). Regulations made for these purposes above may prescribe that payments of a particular class or description made or falling to be made to or by a person must, to such extent as may be prescribed, be disregarded or, as the case may be, be deducted from the amount of that person's earnings: s 3(3). See generally the Social Security Benefit (Computation of Earnings) Regulations 1996, SI 1996/2745. See also, by virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(2), the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591 (which are subject to frequent amendment).

16 Ibid reg 18(1). Payments by way of any beneficial interest in any asset are governed by reg 18(2)-(9), Sch 1A (added by SI 1991/2505 and further amended).

17 Earnings from separate employed earner's employments (with one or more employers) in any one week may be aggregated and treated as a single payment, unless that is not reasonably practicable: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 1(4), Sch 1 para 1 (as amended) and PARA 35 post; and the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, regs 10-12 (as amended). A single payment made in respect of two or more employed earner's employments under different secondary contributors may be apportioned between them: reg 13. Where there is a joint payment of earnings to a husband and wife, the share of each is to be determined on the same basis as that used for income tax purposes, or otherwise on such basis as may be approved by the Secretary of State: reg 16. Earnings paid after pensionable age are not to be aggregated: see reg 20A (as added). For the meaning of 'pensionable age' see PARA 562 post.

18 These are set out in extenso in ibid reg 19 (as amended); in addition, certain payments by trustees are to be disregarded under reg 19A (added by SI 1987/1590) and certain payments to directors are to be disregarded under the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 19B (added by SI 1987/2111 and further amended).

For the position where the earnings period changes see reg 14; and for the treatment of holiday pay see reg 15 (substituted by SI 1984/77).

20 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

21 See the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 21(2). The Secretary of State may determine any such question as if application had been made for such a determination: reg 21(3). However, these provisions do not apply for the purpose of any decision of the Secretary of State in so far as that decision relates to contributions based on payments made more than one year before the beginning of the year in which that decision is given: reg 21(1).

22 Ibid reg 22.

23 For these purposes, 'employment protection entitlement' means (1) any sum, or a prescribed part of any sum, (a) payable in respect of arrears of pay in pursuance of an order for reinstatement or re-engagement under the Employment Rights Act 1996; (b) payable by way of pay in pursuance of an order under that Act or under the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992 for the continuation of a contract of employment; (c) payable by way of remuneration in pursuance of a protective award under the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidation) Act 1992; and (2) prescribed amounts which the regulations provide are to be treated as related to any of those sums: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 112(2), (3) (s 112(3) amended by the Employment Rights Act 1996 s 240, Sch 1 para 51(1), (4)).

If, for any period commencing with or falling after 3 July 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in the Employment Option in a capacity other than that of employee, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment, other than a trading receipt, made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: SI 1998/217 art 2(1), (3), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425).

Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed

The tax avoidance principles laid down in WT Ramsay Ltd v IRC (see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 22) have been applied to determine whether bonuses given to directors were payment of earnings for national insurance purposes: NMB Holdings Ltd v Secretary of State for Social Security (2000) 73 TC 85 (object of transaction as a whole was tax avoidance: cash receipts obtained by directors characterised as payments in cash, not in kind).

TEXT AND NOTE 19--Now refers to regulations made by the Inland Revenue: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 2, amended by Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 3 para 32.

NOTE 19--Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 1(4) amended: Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 1 para 5, Sch 10. 1979 Regulations regs 2-6B, 14, 15 now SI 2001/1004 regs 2-9, 18, 19 (reg 3 amended by SI 2002/2366).

TEXT AND NOTE 21--1979 Regulations reg 21 now SI 2001/1004 reg 30 (substituted by SI 2002/2366). Now, if an officer of the Board is satisfied that a secondary contributor has followed or is following a practice in the payment of earnings which is abnormal for the employment in question ('an abnormal pay practice'), and, by reason of that practice the liability for earnings-related contributions is or has been avoided or reduced, the officer may, and if requested to do so by the earner or the secondary contributor must, decide any question relating to a person's earnings-related contributions as if the secondary contributor had not followed an abnormal pay practice, but had followed a practice normal for the employment in question: SI 2001/1004 reg 30(1), (2). However, a decision under this provision does not apply to contributions based on payments made more than one year before the beginning of the year in which that decision is given: reg 30(3). 'The Board' means the Commissioners of Inland Revenue, and subject to the Inland Revenue Regulation Act 1890 s 4A (see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 31), includes any officer or servant of theirs: SI 2001/1004 reg 1(2).

TEXT AND NOTE 22--Now SI 2001/1004 reg 31 (substituted by SI 2002/2366). Now, in addition, if an officer of the Board is satisfied that a practice exists as to the making of irregular or unequal payments of earnings, and, by reason of the practice the liability for earnings-related contributions is avoided or reduced, he may, and if requested to do so by either the earner or the secondary contributor must, decide whether to issue a direction to secure that the same contributions are payable as would be payable if the practice were not followed: SI 2001/1004 reg 31(1). Such a direction (1) must specify the date from which it is to have effect, which must not be earlier than that on which it is given; (2) must have effect until the direction is superseded by the giving of a further direction, or an officer of the Board is satisfied that the practice has ceased, or has ceased to have the effect of avoiding or reducing liability for earnings related contributions; and (3) must be given to the earner and the secondary contributor concerned: reg 31(2). A direction need not be given to an earner if the officer of the Board is for any reason unable to ascertain his identity or whereabouts: reg 31(3).

TEXT AND NOTE 23--For 'Regulations may' read 'The Treasury may by regulations made with the concurrence of the Secretary of State': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 112(1) (amended by Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 3 para 21).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/2. CONTRIBUTIONS/(1) IN GENERAL/33A. Earnings: power to make provision in consequence of retrospective tax legislation.

33A. Earnings: power to make provision in consequence of retrospective tax legislation.

Where a provision of specified income tax legislation<sup>1</sup> which relates to income tax chargeable under the relevant employment income provisions<sup>2</sup> is passed or made so as to have retrospective effect ('the retrospective tax provision') and it appears to the Treasury to be appropriate to make regulations under a relevant power<sup>3</sup> for the purpose of reflecting the whole or part of the provision made by the retrospective tax provision, such regulations may be made so as to have retrospective effect if it appears to the Treasury to be expedient, in consequence of the retrospective tax provision, for the regulations to have that effect<sup>4</sup>.

Regulations made under a relevant power may affect, for the purposes of any contributions legislation<sup>5</sup> for the purposes of which the regulations are made, the earnings in respect of an employment paid to or for the benefit of an earner at a time before the regulations are made<sup>6</sup>. In such a case, references in any relevant contributions legislation<sup>7</sup>, or any provision made under such legislation, which relate to the earnings, in respect of the employment, paid to or for the benefit of the earner at the relevant time<sup>8</sup>, or the amount of such earnings so paid at that time, are to be read, in so far as they so relate, as references which relate to the revised earnings<sup>9</sup> or, as the case may be, the amount of those earnings<sup>10</sup>. Also, any matter which, at the time when the regulations are made, has been determined for the purposes of any relevant contributions legislation, or any provision made under any such legislation, wholly or partly by reference to the earnings, in respect of the employment, paid to or for the benefit of the earner at the relevant time, or the amount of such earnings so paid at that time, is to be redetermined as it would have been determined at the time of the original determination if it had been determined wholly or partly, as the case may be, by reference to the revised earnings or the amount of those earnings<sup>11</sup>.

The Treasury may by regulations made with the concurrence of the Secretary of State make such provision as appears to it to be expedient for specified purposes<sup>12</sup> in consequence of any provision made by or by virtue of regulations made so as to have retrospective effect<sup>13</sup>. Such regulations may, in particular, make provision modifying any provision of any enactment<sup>14</sup> or for any provision of any such enactment to apply in such cases, and with such modifications, if any, as the regulations may prescribe<sup>15</sup>. Such regulations may also be made so as to have retrospective effect, but must not have effect in relation to any time before 2 December 2004<sup>16</sup>. In such a case, where the matter has been determined before the time when the regulations are made, the regulations may provide for the matter to be redetermined accordingly<sup>17</sup>.

If, ignoring this provision, the operative provisions<sup>18</sup> would directly or indirectly have effect in any case so as to remove a person's entitlement<sup>19</sup> to a contributory benefit, contribution-based jobseeker's allowance or statutory payment, or to reduce the amount of any such benefit, allowance or payment to which a person has an entitlement, those provisions are to be read with such modifications as are necessary to ensure that they do not have that effect<sup>20</sup>.

1    Ie a provision of the Income Tax Acts (see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 21).

2    Ie under the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003 Pts 2-7 (ss 2-554): see INCOME TAXATION.

3    A 'relevant power' means a power to make regulations under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 3, 4(6) or 4A: s 4B(3) (ss 4B, 4C added by National Insurance Contributions Act 2006 s 1(1)).

4 1992 Act s 4B(1), (2). It does not matter whether the retrospective tax provision in question in question was passed or made before 30 March 2006 (ie the day on which the 2006 Act came into force), but nothing in the 1992 Act s 4B(2) authorises regulations to be made which have effect in relation to any time before 2 December 2004: s 4B(4), (5). The power conferred by s 4B(2) is without prejudice to any powers conferred by or by virtue of any other provision of the 1992 Act or of any other enactment, including any instrument made under an Act: s 4B(12).

A statutory instrument containing, whether alone or with other provisions, regulations made by virtue of s 4B(2) or 4C (see TEXT AND NOTES 12-20) must not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before Parliament and been approved by a resolution of each house: s 176(1) (amended by 2006 Act s 1(2)(a)). In the case of a statutory instrument containing, whether alone or with other provisions, regulations made by virtue of the 1992 Act s 4B(2), the draft of the instrument must be laid before Parliament before the end of the period of 12 months beginning with the appropriate date: s 176(2A) (s 176(2A)-(2C) added by 2006 Act s 1(2)(b)). The 'appropriate date' means, where the corresponding retrospective tax provision was passed or made before 30 March 2006, 30 March 2006, and in any other case, the date on which the corresponding retrospective tax provision was passed or made: 1992 Act s 176(2B). 'The corresponding retrospective tax provision', in relation to the regulations, means the retrospective tax provision mentioned in s 4B(1) in relation to which the regulations are to be made by virtue of s 4B(2), or, where there is more than one such tax provision, whichever of those provisions was the first to be passed or made: s 176(2C).

5 'Contributions legislation' means any Part of the 1992 Act or any provision of such a Part: s 4B(13).

6 Ibid s 4B(6).

7 'Relevant contributions legislation' means any contributions legislation for the purposes of which the regulations have the effect mentioned in ibid s 4B(6): s 4B(7).

8 'The relevant time' means the time, mentioned in ibid s 4B(6), before the regulations are made: s 4B(7).

9 'The revised earnings' means the earnings, in respect of the employment, paid to or for the benefit of the earner at the relevant time as determined after applying the regulations: ibid s 4B(7).

10 Ibid s 4B(7), (8).

11 Ibid s 4B(7), (9). The matters referred to may include whether Class 1 contributions are payable in respect of earnings paid to or for the benefit of the earner in a tax week and the amount of any such contribution: s 4B(10). As to Class 1 contributions see PARAS 34-37. Section 4B(7)-(10) are subject to any express provision to the contrary, including any such provision made by regulations under s 4C(1): s 4B(11).

12 Those purposes are (1) any purpose relating to any contributions; (2) any purpose relating to any contributory benefit or contribution-based jobseeker's allowance; (3) any purpose relating to any statutory payment; (4) any purpose relating to minimum payments, within the meaning of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 (see PARA 878), by employers to occupational pension schemes; (5) any purpose of Pt III Ch II (ss 40-49) (see PARAS 909-917); and (6) such other purposes as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Treasury with the concurrence of the Secretary of State: 1992 Act s 4C(2). As to contributory benefits see PARA 54 et seq. As to contribution-based jobseeker's allowance see PARA 266 et seq. 'Statutory payment' means statutory sick pay, statutory maternity pay, ordinary statutory paternity pay, additional statutory paternity pay or statutory adoption pay, or any other payment prescribed by regulations made by the Treasury with the concurrence of the Secretary of State: s 4C(11) (amended by Work and Families Act 2006 Sch 1 para 5). References in any relevant legislation, or any provision made under any such legislation, which relate to (a) the earnings in respect of the employment, paid to or for the benefit of the earner at the relevant time, or (b) the amount of such earnings so paid at that time, are to be read, to the extent they would not otherwise be and in so far as they so relate, as references which relate to the revised earnings or, as the case may be, the amount of those earnings: Social Security, Occupational Pension Schemes and Statutory Payments (Consequential Provisions) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/1154, reg 14(2). Any matter which, at the time when the relevant retrospective contributions regulations are made, has been determined for the purposes of any relevant legislation, or any provision made under any such legislation, wholly or partly by reference to (i) the earnings, in respect of the employment, paid to or for the benefit of the earner at the relevant time, or (ii) the amount of such earnings so paid at that time, is to be re-determined, to the extent it would not otherwise be, as it would have been determined at the time of the original determination if it had been determined wholly or partly, as the case may be, by reference to the revised earnings or the amount of those earnings: reg 14(3). 'Relevant legislation' means legislation relating to purposes mentioned in heads (2)-(5) above; 'retrospective contributions regulations' means regulations made by virtue of the 1992 Act s 4B(2), and, in relation to an amount retrospectively treated as earnings, 'the relevant retrospective contributions regulations' means the regulations which treated that amount as earnings; 'the relevant time' means the time before the relevant retrospective contributions regulations are made; and 'the revised earnings' means the earnings, in respect of the employment, paid to or for the benefit of the earner at the relevant time as determined after applying the relevant retrospective contributions regulations: SI 2007/1154 reg 14(1).

13 The regulations made in accordance with ibid s 4B(2) (see TEXT AND NOTE 4): s 4C(1). The powers conferred by s 4C are without prejudice to any powers conferred by or by virtue of any other provision of the 1992 Act or any other enactment and, in particular, any modification of any provision of an instrument by regulations made under s 4C(1) is without prejudice to any other power to amend or revoke the provisions of the instrument, including the modified provision: s 4C(9), (10). 'Enactment' includes an instrument made under an Act: s 4C(11).

14 'Any enactment' includes the 1992 Act and any enactment passed or made on or after 30 March 2006: s 4C(3)(a), (11).

15 Ibid s 4C(3)(b).

16 Ibid s 4C(4). In particular, regulations so made by virtue of s 4C(4) may affect any of (1) liability to pay contributions, including liability to pay Class 1 contributions at a reduced rate by virtue of the 1993 Act Pt III Ch II; (2) the amount of any contribution, including the amount of any such reduced rate contribution and of any related rebate under s 41(1D) (see PARA 911) or s 42A(2C) (see PARA 912); (3) entitlement to a contributory benefit or contribution-based jobseeker's allowance; (4) the amount of any such benefit or allowance; (5) entitlement to a statutory payment; (6) the amount of any such payment; (7) liability to make minimum payments within the meaning of the 1993 Act (see PARA 878) to occupational pension schemes; (8) the amount of any such payment; (9) liability to make payments under s 42A(3) (see PARA 912) or to pay minimum contributions under s 43 (see PARA 913); (10) the amount of any such payment or contribution: 1992 Act s 4C(5).

17 Ibid s 4C(6).

18 'The operative provisions' are ibid s 4B(7)-(10) (see TEXT AND NOTES 7-11 above) and any provision made by virtue of s 4B(2) (see TEXT AND NOTE 4 above) or under s 4C(1) (see TEXT AND NOTES 12, 13 above): s 4C(8)(a).

19 A person's entitlement includes any future entitlement which the person may have: ibid s 4C(8)(b).

20 Ibid s 4C(7).

See further PARA 304.

Also for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A) if, during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 2 April 1999, a person is participating in the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus within the self employment route and that person receives either a mandatory top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed and any such payments made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated as a grant and not as a training allowance: New Deal (25 plus) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1999, SI 1999/779, reg 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The self-employment route' means receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilots for 25 plus; and 'the intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged over 25 years immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work: SI 1999/779 reg 1(2).

Further, for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A) if, for any period or periods commencing with or falling after 9 April 2001, during which a person is participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus, that person receives, or is eligible to receive, a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period or those periods and in respect of his participation as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of facilities is to be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/970, art 2(2). Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

Also, for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A), if during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 13 September 2001 a person is participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents within the self-employment route and that person receives, or is eligible to receive, either a top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, any such payments made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of those facilities are to be treated as a training premium: New Deal (Lone Parents) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/2915, art 2(1), (2). 'The New Deal for Lone Parents' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are lone parents are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'lone parent' means a person who has no partner and who is responsible for, and a member of the same household as, a child or young person; 'the self-employment route' means receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents: SI 2001/2915 art 1(2).

34-45 The Classes of Contributions

There is a new Class of contribution, Class 1B: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 10A; and PARA 39A.

34 Earnings limits for Class 1 contributions

TEXT AND NOTES--Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 5 substituted by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 9 para 1; and amended by Pensions Act 2007 s 7(3), Sch 7 Pt 4 (in effect in relation to tax year following designated tax year and subsequent tax years) (see ss 7(4), 27(5)).

TEXT AND NOTES 1-8--For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, there must for every tax year be (1) the following for primary Class 1 contributions (a) a lower earnings limit; (b) a primary threshold; and (c) an upper earnings limit; and (2) a secondary threshold for secondary Class 1 contributions, and those limits and thresholds must be the amounts specified for that year by regulations: s 5(1) (amended by National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 s 1(1)(a), Sch 2). Regulations may, in the case of each of the limits or thresholds mentioned in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 5(1), prescribe an equivalent of that limit or threshold in relation to earners paid otherwise than weekly, and references in the 1992 Act or any other Act to 'the prescribed equivalent', in the context of any of those limits or thresholds, are accordingly references to the equivalent prescribed under this provision in relation to such earners: s 5(4). The power conferred by s 5(4) to prescribe an equivalent of any of those limits or thresholds includes power to prescribe an amount which exceeds, by not more than £1, the amount which is the arithmetical equivalent of that limit or threshold: s 5(5). Regulations under s 5 must be made by the Treasury: s 5(6). 'Lower earnings limit', 'upper earnings limit', 'primary threshold' and 'secondary threshold' are to be construed in accordance with s 5(1), and references to the lower or upper earnings limit, or to the primary or secondary threshold, of a tax year are to whatever is, or was, for that year the limit or threshold in force under s 5(1): s 122(1) (amended by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 12 para 77(3)).

TEXT AND NOTES 9-14--Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 5(2) prospectively repealed by Pensions Act 2007 s 7(2), Sch 7 Pt 4). Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 5(3) repealed in relation to regulations specifying the upper earnings limit for the tax year 2009-10 or any subsequent tax year: National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 s 1(1)(b), (3), Sch 2.

NOTE 14--SI 1979/591 reg 7 now Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1004, reg 10 (amended by SI 2004/220, SI 2005/166, SI 2006/127, SI 2007/118, SI 2008/133), by virtue of which for the tax year 2007-08 the lower limit is £87 and the upper limit is £670.

35. Liability for Class 1 contributions.

Where in any tax week<sup>1</sup> earnings<sup>2</sup> are paid to or for the benefit of an earner<sup>3</sup> in respect of any one employment of his which is employed earner's employment<sup>4</sup> and:

- 103 (1) he is over the age of 16<sup>5</sup>; and
- 104 (2) the amount paid is equal to or exceeds the current lower earnings limit<sup>6</sup> for Class 1 contributions (or the prescribed equivalent in the case of earners paid otherwise than weekly<sup>7</sup>);

a primary and secondary Class 1 contribution is payable<sup>8</sup>. The primary contribution is the liability of the earner and the secondary contribution is the liability of the secondary contributor<sup>9</sup>.

Except as may be prescribed, no primary Class 1 contribution is payable in respect of earnings paid to or for the benefit of an employed earner after he attains pensionable age<sup>10</sup>, but without prejudice to any liability to pay secondary Class 1 contributions in respect of any such earnings<sup>11</sup>.

Except as provided by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, the primary and secondary Class 1 contributions in respect of earnings paid to or for the benefit of an earner in respect of any one employment of his are payable without regard to any other such payment of earnings in respect of any other employment of his<sup>12</sup>. Where earnings are aggregated<sup>13</sup>, liability (if any) for the secondary contribution must be apportioned, in such manner as may be prescribed, between the secondary contributors concerned<sup>14</sup>.

Regulations may provide for reducing primary or secondary Class 1 contributions which are payable in respect of persons to whom the statutory right to redundancy payments<sup>15</sup> does not apply<sup>16</sup>.

1 'Tax week' means one of the successive weeks in a tax year beginning with the first day of that year and every seventh day thereafter, the last day of a tax year (or, in the case of a tax year ending in a leap year, the last two days) to be treated accordingly as a separate tax week: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1). For the meaning of 'tax year' see PARA 9 note 6 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'earnings' see PARA 33 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'earner' see PARAS 32-33 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'employed earner's employment' see PARA 32 ante.

5 As to when a person attains a particular age see PARA 19 note 11 ante. Regulations may provide that for the purpose of determining whether a contribution is payable in respect of any person, or for determining the amount or rate of any contribution, he is to be treated as having attained at the beginning of a week, or as not having attained until the end of a week, any age which he attains during the course of that week: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 1(4), Sch 1 para 9. For the meaning of 'week' see PARA 32 note 7 ante. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made and none had effect as if so made.

6 As to the lower earnings limit see PARA 34 ante.

7 The power so conferred to prescribe an equivalent of the lower earnings limit includes power to prescribe an amount which exceeds, by not more than £1, the amount which is the arithmetical equivalent of that limit:

Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 6(6). Equivalent amounts and equivalent earnings brackets are set out in the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 8 (as amended), reg 8A (added by SI 1985/1398 and further amended).

8 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 6(1).

9 Ibid s 6(3). Nothing in s 6(3), however, prejudices the provisions of s 1(4), Sch 1 para 3: s 6(3). Where earnings are paid to an employed earner and in respect of that payment liability arises for primary and secondary Class 1 contributions, the secondary contributor is (except in prescribed circumstances), as well as being liable for his own secondary contribution, liable in the first instance to pay also the earner's primary contribution, on behalf of and to the exclusion of the earner; and contributions paid by the secondary contributor on behalf of the earner must be taken to be contributions paid by the earner: Sch 1 para 3(1). Notwithstanding any contract to the contrary, no secondary contributor is entitled to make, from earnings paid by him, any deduction in respect of his own or any other person's secondary Class 1 contributions, or otherwise to recover such contributions from any earner to whom he pays earnings: Sch 1 para 3(2). A secondary contributor is, however, entitled, subject to and in accordance with regulations, to recover from an earner the amount of any primary Class 1 contribution paid or to be paid by him on behalf of the earner; and notwithstanding anything in any enactment, regulations under this provision must provide for recovery to be made by deduction from the earner's earnings, and for it not to be made in any other way: Sch 1 para 3(3).

The 'secondary contributor' in relation to any payment of earnings to or for the benefit of an employed earner, is (1) in the case of an earner employed under a contract of service, his employer; (2) in the case of an earner employed in an office with emoluments, either such person as may be prescribed in relation to that office or, if no person is prescribed, the government department, public authority or body of persons responsible for paying the emoluments of the office (s 7(1)); but in relation to employed earners who are paid earnings in a tax week by more than one person in respect of different employments or work under the general control or management of a person other than their immediate employer, and in relation to any other case for which it appears to the Secretary of State that such provision is needed, regulations may provide that the prescribed person is to be treated as the secondary contributor in respect of earnings paid to or for the benefit of an earner (s 7(2)). Persons who are to be treated as secondary contributors in relation to certain employments are set out in the Social Security (Categorisation of Earners) Regulations 1978, SI 1978/1689, Sch 3 (as amended) (see PARA 32 note 11 ante). For the meaning of 'contract of service' see PARA 32 note 4 ante.

10 For the meaning of 'pensionable age' see PARA 562 post.

11 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 6(2). Earnings paid before retirement age which would normally fall to be paid in a later year are exempt: Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 20 (substituted by SI 1985/399). However, earnings due to be paid before retirement age but actually paid after that age are not exempt: Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 20A (added by SI 1985/397).

12 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 6(4). Total contributions in cases of more than one employment are subject to an annual maximum (including, where appropriate, any Class 2 liability) of an amount equal to 53 primary Class 1 contributions at the maximum standard rate (ie on earnings equal to the upper earnings limit): Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 17 (amended by SI 1985/398).

For the purposes of determining whether Class 1 contributions are payable in respect of earnings paid to an earner in a given week and, if so, the amount of the contributions, (1) all earnings paid to him or for his benefit in that week in respect of one or more employed earner's employments under the same employer must, except as may be provided by regulations, be aggregated and treated as a single payment of earnings in respect of one such employment; and (2) earnings paid to him or for his benefit in that week by different persons in respect of different employed earner's employments must in prescribed circumstances be aggregated and treated as a single payment of earnings in respect of one such employment; and regulations may provide that these provisions are to have effect in cases prescribed by the regulations as if for any reference to a week there were substituted a reference to a period prescribed by the regulations: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1(1). Where earnings in respect of employments which include any contracted-out employment (as to which see PARA 877 et seq post) and any employment which is not a contracted-out employment are so aggregated, and the aggregated earnings are not less than the current lower earnings limit, then, except as may be provided by regulations, the amount of the primary Class 1 contribution in respect of the aggregated earnings must be determined in accordance with Sch 1 para 1(3) (as substituted) and the amount of the secondary Class 1 contribution in respect of the aggregated earnings must be determined in accordance with Sch 1 para 1(6) (as substituted): Sch 1 para 1(2). The amount of the primary Class 1 contribution must be the aggregate of the amounts determined under the following heads (applying earlier heads before later ones):

- 4 (a) if the aggregated earnings are paid to or for the benefit of an earner in respect of whom minimum contributions are payable under the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 43(1) (contributions to personal pension schemes: see PARA 913 post), the amount obtained by applying the rate of primary Class 1 contributions that would apply if all the aggregated earnings were attributable to employments which are not contracted-out to such part of the aggregated earnings so attributable as does not exceed the current upper earnings limit (referred to as 'the APPS earnings');

- 5 (b) if some of the aggregated earnings are attributable to COMPS service (ie service in employment in respect of which minimum payments are made to a money purchase contracted-out scheme (Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1(9) (added by the Pensions Act 1995 s 148)), the amount obtained by applying the rate of primary Class 1 contributions that would apply if all the aggregated earnings were attributable to COMPS service to such part of the aggregated earnings attributable to COMPS service as does not exceed the current upper earnings limit, or, if head (a) supra applies, to such part of the earnings attributable to COMPS service as, when added to the APPS earnings, does not exceed the current upper earnings limit;
- 6 (c) if some of the aggregated earnings are attributable to COSRS service (ie service in employment which qualifies the earner for a pension provided by a salary related contracted-out scheme (Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1(9) (as so added)), the amount obtained by applying the rate of primary Class 1 contributions that would apply if all the aggregated earnings were attributable to COSRS service to such part of the aggregated earnings attributable to COSRS service as does not exceed the current upper earnings limit, or, if head (a) or (b) supra applies, to such part of the earnings attributable to COSRS service as, when added to the APPS earnings or the part attributable to COMPS service (or both), does not exceed the current upper earnings limit;
- 7 (d) the amount obtained by applying the rate of primary Class 1 contributions that would apply if all the aggregated earnings were attributable to employments which are not contracted-out to such part of the aggregated earnings as, when added to the part or parts attributable to COMPS or COSRS service, does not exceed the current upper earnings limit, and in relation to earners paid otherwise than weekly, any reference to the lower or upper-earnings limit is to be construed as a reference to the prescribed equivalent of that limit: Sch 1 para 1(3), (4) (Sch 1 para 1(3) substituted by the Pensions Act 1995 s 148). This power to prescribe an equivalent of a limit includes power to prescribe an amount which exceeds, by not more than £1, the amount which is the arithmetical equivalent of that limit: Sch 1 para 1(5).

The amount of the secondary Class 1 contribution must be the aggregate of the amounts determined under the following heads (applying earlier heads before later ones):

- 8 (i) if the aggregated earnings are paid to or for the benefit of an earner in respect of whom minimum contributions are payable under the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 43(1), the amount obtained by applying the rate of secondary Class 1 contributions that would apply if all the aggregated earnings were attributable to employments which are not contracted-out to the APPS earnings;
- 9 (ii) if some of the aggregated earnings are attributable to COMPS service, the amount obtained by applying the rate of secondary Class 1 contributions that would apply if all the aggregated earnings were attributable to COMPS service to the part of the aggregated earnings attributable to such service;
- 10 (iii) if some of the aggregated earnings are attributable to COSRS service, the amount obtained by applying the rate of secondary Class 1 contributions that would apply if all the aggregated earnings were attributable to COSRS service to the part of the aggregated earnings attributable to such service;
- 11 (iv) the amount obtained by applying the rate of secondary Class 1 contributions that would apply if all the aggregated earnings were attributable to employments which are not contracted-out to the remainder of the aggregated earnings; and where any single payment of earnings is made in respect of two or more employed earner's employments under different employers, liability for Class 1 contributions must be determined by apportioning the payment to such one or more of the employers as may be prescribed, and treating a part apportioned to any employer as a separate payment of earnings by him: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1(6), (7) (Sch 1 para 1(6) substituted by the Pensions Act 1995 s 148).

31-46 Contributions

Contributions under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A) are now under the care and management of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue: see further the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 s 3.

For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A), if, for any period commencing with or falling after 2 March 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in either the Full-time Education and Training Option, the Voluntary Sector Option or the Environment Task Force Option, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2) Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). If, for any period commencing with or falling after 3 July 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in the Employment Option in a capacity other than that of employee, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment, other than a trading receipt, made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: SI 1998/217 art 2(1), (3), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425).

The 'New Deal' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 18 or over and less than 26 immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help New Deal participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; a person is, or, as the case may be, was, at any material time, a 'New Deal participant' if he is or was at that time using facilities; 'facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of one or more of the New Deal components; the 'New Deal components' means any of the programmes of employment or employment-related training under the New Deal known individually as 'the Full-time Education and Training Option', 'the Voluntary Sector Option', 'the Employment Option' and 'the Environment Task Force Option'; and 'trading receipt' means, in relation to a participant under the Employment Option, any payment made to him in consideration of goods or services supplied by him in the course of his participation under that option: SI 1998/217 art 1 (amended by SI 1998/1425). during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated as a grant and not as a training allowance: New Deal (25 plus) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1999, SI 1999/779, reg 2(1), (2), Schedule. Reference to Sch 1 para 3 is now to Sch 1 paras 3-3B: s 6(4) (amended by Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 77(3)). In the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3(1) (amended by Social Security Act 1998 Sch 7 para 77(5); and National Insurance Contributions Act 2002 Sch 1 para 13(3)) for 'his own secondary contribution' read 'any secondary contribution of his own' and for 'the earner's primary contribution' read 'the earner's primary contribution or a prescribed part of the earner's primary contribution'. Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3(2) repealed: Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 77(1), Sch 9 Pt VIII (but see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3A). In Sch 1 para 3(3) (amended by Social Security Act 1998 s 55(a); and National Insurance Contributions and Statutory Payments Act 2004 s 1(2)), for 'and notwithstanding ... any enactment' read 'and, subject to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3(3A)-(5) but notwithstanding any other provision in any enactment'. Schedule 1 para 3(3B) applies where a person ('the employee') who is employed by a particular employer ('the employer') receives earnings in a form other than money ('non-monetary earnings') from the employer in a tax year: Sch 1 para 3(3A) (Sch 1 para 3(3A), (3B) added by 2004 Act s 1(3)). If and to the extent that regulations so provide, the employer may recover from the employee, in the prescribed manner, any primary Class 1 contributions paid or to be paid by him on the employee's behalf in respect of those earnings: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3(3B). Schedule 1 para 3(5) applies in a case where a person ('the employee') ceases in a particular tax year ('the cessation year') to be employed by a particular employer ('the employer'), and the employee receives from the employer in the cessation year, after the cessation of the employment, or in the next tax year non-monetary earnings: Sch 1 para 3(4) (added by Social Security Act 1998 s 55(b); and amended by 2004 Act s 1(4)). If and to the extent that regulations so provide, the employer may recover from the employee in such manner as may be prescribed any primary Class 1 contributions paid or to be paid by him on the employee's behalf in respect of the non-monetary earnings mentioned in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3(4): Sch 1 para 3(5) (added by Social Security Act 1998 s 55(b); and amended by 2004 Act s 1(5), Sch 2 Pt 1). Regulations under any provision of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3 must be made by the Inland Revenue: Sch 1 para 3(6) (added by Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 3 para 33).

Subject to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3A(2), a person who is or has been liable to pay any secondary Class 1 or any Class 1A or Class 1B contributions must not (1) make, from earnings paid by him, any deduction in respect of any such contributions for which he or any other person is or has been liable; (2) otherwise recover any such contributions (directly or indirectly) from any person who is or has been a relevant earner; or (3) enter into any agreement with any person for the making of any such deduction or otherwise for the purpose of so recovering any such contributions: Sch 1 para 3A(1) (Sch 1 paras 3A, 3B added by Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 77(2)). For these purposes, 'agreement' includes any arrangement or understanding whether or not legally enforceable; and 'relevant earner', in relation to a person who is or has been liable to pay any contributions, means an earner in respect of whom he is or has been so liable: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3A(4). Schedule 1 para 3A(1) does not apply to the extent that an agreement between (a) a secondary contributor; and (b) any person ('the earner') in relation to whom the secondary contributor is, was or will be, such a contributor in respect of the contributions to which the agreement relates, allows the secondary contributor to recover (whether by deduction or otherwise) the whole or any part of any secondary Class 1 contribution payable in respect of relevant employment income of that earner: Sch 1 para 3A(2) (amended by 2004 Act s 3(2)(a)). 'Relevant employment income', in relation to the earner, means an amount that counts as employment income of the earner under the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003 s 426 (see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 674A.2) or s 438 (see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 674A.7), or a gain that is treated as remuneration derived from the earner's employment by virtue of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 4(4)(a) (see PARA 33): Sch 1 para 3A(2B) (Sch 1 para 3A(2A), (2B) added by the 2004 Act s 3(2); Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3A(2A) amended, in relation to agreements and elections whether entered into or made before, or on or after, 30 March 2006, including those entered into or made before 2 December 2004, by the National Insurance Contributions Act 2006 s 5(1), (2), (4)). An agreement in respect of relevant employment income is to be disregarded for the purpose of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3(2) to the extent that it relates to relevant employment income which is employment income of the earner by virtue of the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003 Pt 7 Ch 3A (ss 446A-446J) (see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 674A.10) or to any contribution, or any part of any contribution, liability to which arises as a result of regulations being given retrospective effect by virtue of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 4B(2) (see PARA 33A): Sch 1 para 3A(2A) (Sch 1 para 3A as added; Sch 1 para 3A(2A) as so added and amended).

Where (i) an election is jointly made by (a) a secondary contributor, and (b) a person ('the earner') in relation to whom the secondary contributor is or will be such a contributor in respect of contributions on relevant employment income of the earner, for the whole or a part of any liability of the secondary contributor to contributions on any such income to be transferred to the earner; and (ii) the election is one in respect of which the Inland Revenue has, before it was made, given by notice to the secondary contributor its approval to both (a) the form of the election; and (b) the arrangements made in relation to the proposed election for securing that the liability transferred by the election will be met: Sch 1 para 3B(1) (Sch 1 para 3B as added; Sch 1 para 3B(1) amended by the 2004 Act s 3(3)(a)). For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3B, 'relevant employment income' has the same meaning given by Sch 1 para 3A(2B); and references to contributions on relevant employment income are references to any secondary Class 1 contributions payable in respect of the income: see Sch 1 para 3B(1A) (Sch 1 para 3B as added; Sch 1 para 3B(1A) added by the 2004 Act s 3(3)(b)). Any liability which arises while the election is in force and which is a liability to pay the contributions on relevant employment income of the earner, or the part of it, to which the election relates, must be treated for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, the Social Security Administration Act 1992 and the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Pt II (ss 8-19) as a liability falling on the earner, instead of on the secondary contributor: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3B(2) (Sch 1 para 3B as added; Sch 1 para 3B(2) amended by the 2004 Act s 3(3)(c)). See further the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3B(3)-(12), (14) (Sch 1 para 3B as added; Sch 1 para 3B(3), (7) amended, Sch 1 para 3B(7A), (7B) added, Sch 1 para 3B(10) substituted, by the 2004 Act s 3(3)(d)-(g), Sch 2 Pt 1; Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3B(7B) amended by the National Insurance Contributions Act 2006 s 5(1), (3), (4)).

In the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 7(2) (amended by the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 3 para 7) for 'Secretary of State' read 'Treasury'. Regulations under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 7 must be made by the Treasury: s 7(3) (added by the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 3 para 7).

As to the payment of National Insurance Contributions in respect of share options and similar rights obtained by persons as directors or employees during the period beginning with 6 April 1999 and ending with 19 May 2000 see the Social Security Contributions (Share Options) Act 2001; and PARA 35B.

NOTE 11--Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 6(2) (as originally enacted) now s 6(3) (s 6 as substituted: see TEXT AND NOTES). 1979 Regulations regs 20, 20A now SI 2001/1004 (NOTE 7) regs 28, 29.

TEXT AND NOTES 12-14--Regulations under any provision of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1 must be made by the Inland Revenue: Sch 1 para 1(8A) (added by Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 3 para 31).

NOTE 12--Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 6(4) now s 6(5) (s 6 as substituted: see TEXT AND NOTES). Annual maximum is now an amount equal to 53 primary Class 1 contributions at the primary percentage payable on earnings at the upper earnings limit for the year in question: SI 2001/1004 (NOTE 7) reg 21.

For 'in respect of the aggregated earnings' read 'in respect of the aggregated earnings attributable to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 8(1)(a) (see PARA 36): Sch 1 para 1(2) (amended by the National Insurance Contributions Act 2002 Sch 1 para 13(2)(a), with effect in relation to the tax year 2003-04 and subsequent tax years (s 8(2)). Where earnings in respect of employments which include any contracted-out employment and any employment which is not a contracted-out employment are aggregated under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1(1), then, except as may be provided by regulations, (1) if the aggregated earnings exceed the current primary threshold, the amount of the primary Class 1 contribution in respect of the aggregated earnings is to be determined in accordance with Sch 1 para 1(3), and (2) if the aggregated earnings exceed the current secondary threshold, the amount of the secondary Class 1 contribution in respect of the aggregated earnings is to be determined in accordance with Sch 1 para 1(6): Sch 1 para 1(2) (substituted by the 1998 Act Sch 7 para 77(2); and amended by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 12 para 78(2), (3)). In relation to earners paid otherwise than weekly, any reference in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1 to (a) the primary or the secondary threshold; or (b) the upper earnings limit, is to be construed as a reference to the equivalent of that threshold or limit prescribed under s 5(4) (see PARA 34): Sch 1 para 1(10) (added by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 12 para 78(5)). The reference in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1(3) to the amount of the primary Class 1 contribution is now to the amount of the primary Class 1 contribution attributable to s 8(1)(a) (see PARA 36); in heads (a)-(d) for 'rate of primary Class 1 contributions' read 'main primary percentage' and for 'does not exceed' read 'exceeds the current primary threshold and does not exceed': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1(3) (amended by the 1998 Act Sch 7 para 77(3); the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 12 para 78(3); and the National Insurance Contributions Act 2002 Sch 1 para 13(2)(b), with effect in relation to the tax year 2003-04 and subsequent tax years (s 8(2)). In relation to 2009-10 and subsequent tax years, in heads (a)-(d) for 'the current upper earnings limit' read 'the upper accrual point'; add heads (ba) if head (b) applies the amount obtained by applying the main primary percentage referred to in head (d) to such part of the aggregated earnings attributable to COMPS service as, when added to the APPS earnings (if any), exceeds the upper accrual point and does not exceed the current upper earnings limit; (ca) if head (c) applies, the amount obtained by applying the main primary percentage referred to in head (d) to such part of the aggregated earnings attributable to COSRS service as, when added to the PPS earnings or the part attributable to COMPS service (or both), exceeds the upper accrual point and does not exceed the current upper earnings limit: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1(3) (amended by the National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 Sch 1 para 6(2), (5)). In relation to such earners, any reference in the 1992 Act Sch 1 para 1 to the upper accrual point is to be read as a reference to the prescribed equivalent: Sch 1 para 1(11) (added by the National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 Sch 1 para 6(4)). Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1(4) repealed by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 12 para 78(4), Sch 13 Pt VI so that, after head (d) words 'in relation to earners paid ... prescribed equivalent of that limit' omitted. Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1(5) repealed: Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 12 paras 76, 78(1), (4), Sch 13 Pt VI. In head (i) for 'the APPS earnings' read 'such part of the APPS earnings as exceeds the secondary threshold', in heads (ii) and (iii) for 'the part of the aggregated earnings attributable to such service' read 'such part of the aggregated earnings attributable to such service as exceeds the secondary threshold', and in head (iv) for 'the remainder of the aggregated earnings' read 'such part of the remainder of the aggregated earnings as exceeds the secondary threshold': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 1(6) (amended by the 1998 Act Sch 7 para 77(4); and the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 12 paras 76, 78(1), (2)).

UPDATE

31-46 Contributions

Contributions under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A) are now under the care and management of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue: see further the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 s 3.

For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A), if, for any period commencing with or falling after 2 March 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in either the Full-time Education and Training Option, the Voluntary Sector Option or the Environment Task Force Option, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2) Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). If, for any period commencing with or falling after 3 July 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in the Employment Option in a capacity other than that of employee, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment, other than a trading receipt, made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: SI 1998/217 art 2(1), (3), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425).

The 'New Deal' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 18 or over and less than 26 immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help New Deal participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; a person is, or, as the case may be, was, at any material time, a 'New Deal participant' if he is or was at that time using facilities; 'facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of one or more of the New Deal components; the 'New Deal components' means any of the programmes of employment or employment-related training under the New Deal known individually as 'the Full-time Education and Training Option', 'the Voluntary Sector Option', 'the Employment Option' and 'the Environment Task Force Option'; and 'trading receipt' means, in relation to a participant under the Employment Option, any payment made to him in consideration of goods or services supplied by him in the course of his participation under that option: SI 1998/217 art 1 (amended by SI 1998/1425). See further PARA 304.

Also for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A) if, during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 2 April 1999, a person is participating in the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus within the self employment route and that person receives either a mandatory top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed and any such payments made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated as a grant and not as a training allowance: New Deal (25 plus) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1999, SI 1999/779, reg 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The self-employment route' means receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilots for 25 plus; and 'the intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged over 25 years immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work: SI 1999/779 reg 1(2).

Further, for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A) if, for any period or periods commencing with or falling after 9 April 2001, during which a person is participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus, that person receives, or is eligible to receive, a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period or those periods and in respect of his participation as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of facilities is to be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/970, art 2(2). Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

Also, for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A), if during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 13 September 2001 a person is participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents within the self-employment route and that person receives, or is eligible to receive, either a top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, any such payments made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of those facilities are to be treated as a training premium: New Deal (Lone Parents) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/2915, art 2(1), (2). 'The New Deal for Lone Parents' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are lone parents are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'lone parent' means a person who has no partner and who is responsible for, and a member of the same household as, a child or young person; 'the self-employment route' means receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents: SI 2001/2915 art 1(2).

34-45 The Classes of Contributions

There is a new Class of contribution, Class 1B: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 10A; and PARA 39A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/2. CONTRIBUTIONS/(2) THE CLASSES OF CONTRIBUTIONS/(i) Class 1 Contributions/35B. Share options and similar rights obtained between 6 April 1999 and 19 May 2000.

35B. Share options and similar rights obtained between 6 April 1999 and 19 May 2000.

Where (1) a right to acquire shares in a body corporate was obtained by any person in the period 6 April 1999 to 19 May 2000; (2) that right (a) was a gain to be realised after 11 May 2001 on the exercise, assignment or release of that right, and the gain would or (if circumstances changed) might be one falling<sup>1</sup> to be treated as remuneration derived from that person's employment; or (b) a gain that has been realised after 7 November 2000 and before 11 May 2001 on any exercise, assignment or release of that right has fallen<sup>2</sup> to be so treated; (3) a notice<sup>3</sup> in respect of that right is given to the Inland Revenue before the end of the period of 92 days beginning with 11 May 2001, then liability to contributions in respect of gains realised after 7 November 2000 on the exercise, assignment or release of that right is to be determined in accordance with the following provisions<sup>4</sup>.

The person who may give a notice under head (3) above in respect of any right falling under head (2)(a) above is (i) where neither head (ii) nor head (iii) below applies, the person who would be the secondary contributor in relation to any liability to pay secondary Class 1 contributions in respect of a gain realised on an exercise, assignment or release, of that right on the day of the notice; (ii) where an election<sup>5</sup> which is in force on the day of the notice, would relate to the whole of any such gain the person on whom (apart from these provisions) any such liability would fall by virtue of the election, or the secondary contributor on whom (apart from these provisions) any such liability would fall were no election in force; (iii) where an election<sup>6</sup> which is in force on the day of the notice would relate to only a part of any such gain, the persons mentioned in head (ii) above, acting jointly<sup>7</sup>. The person who may give a notice under head (3) above in respect of any right falling under head (2)(b) above is the person on whom (apart from these provisions) the liability for secondary Class 1 contributions payable in respect of the gain mentioned in head (2)(b) did fall, and, if different parts of that liability fell (apart from these provisions) on different persons, those persons acting jointly<sup>8</sup>. Where, in the case of any right to acquire shares, the person entitled or (if there is more than one) each of the persons entitled to give such a notice is a person whose liability by virtue of the giving of such a notice to pay a special contribution<sup>9</sup> in respect of that right would be nil, that person or, as the case may be, each of those persons acting jointly are deemed to have given such a notice immediately before the end of the 92-day period specified in head (3) above, to have accompanied that notice with a notification to the Inland Revenue that the liability arising by virtue of that notice was nil, and to have given that notification in the belief that the facts reasonably ascertainable by him at the time at which he is deemed to have given it were grounds for giving it<sup>10</sup>.

Where liability to contributions in respect of gains realised after 7 November 2000 on the exercise, assignment or release of any right<sup>11</sup> falls to be determined (A) no liability to pay any Class 1 contributions in respect of any gain realised after 11 May 2001 arises on the exercise, assignment or release of that right; (B) any liability to pay Class 1 contributions in respect of any gain realised after 7 November 2000 and before 11 May 2001 on any exercise, assignment or release of that right is deemed never to have arisen; and (C) the person who gave the notice under head (3) above becomes liable to pay a special contribution in respect of that right<sup>12</sup>. Neither head (1) nor head (2) above applies in relation to any liability to pay Class 1 contributions in respect of so much of any gain realised on the assignment or release of a right as is equal to the amount (if any) by which the first of the following amounts exceeds the second, that is to say, the amount of any valuable consideration given for the assignment or release, and the amount which would have been taken<sup>13</sup> to be the amount of the gain realised by an exercise in full of that right immediately before the time of its assignment or release<sup>14</sup>. If it appears to the Inland Revenue that a person who has given a notice under head (3) above in respect of any right and who would be liable<sup>15</sup> by virtue of that notice to pay a special contribution did, within the aforementioned period of 92 days, make a payment in respect of that liability to the Inland Revenue of an amount which he had reasonable grounds for believing was the correct amount of his liability, or did, within that period, give notification to the Inland Revenue, in the belief on reasonable grounds that it was correct, that the liability arising by virtue of that notice was nil, or has a reasonable excuse for having failed to do either of those things within that period, the Inland Revenue may, if it thinks fit, direct that, in relation to that notice, certain provisions<sup>16</sup> are treated as having had effect with the period mentioned extended by such further period as it may determine<sup>17</sup>. A decision as to the giving or refusal of such a direction is to be made by an officer of the same description and be subject to the same rights of appeal as any decision, to which the giving of the direction is or would be relevant, as to whether a person is or has been liable to pay contributions of any particular class<sup>18</sup>. Where head (2) above applies in relation to any liability to pay Class 1 contributions and amounts have already been paid to the Inland Revenue in respect of that liability before 11 May 2001 all such repayments must be made as may be necessary, but any amount which it would otherwise be necessary to repay in respect of a secondary Class 1 contribution paid by a person who has become liable to pay a special contribution may be retained and set against any undischarged liability of his to pay that special contribution<sup>19</sup>.

Where a right to acquire shares in a body corporate was obtained by any person in the period 6 April 1999 to 19 May 2000 ('the original right'), and the original right is or has been assigned or released (whether before or after 11 May 2001) for a consideration that consists of or includes another right ('the replacement right') to acquire shares in that or any other body corporate, the following provisions apply<sup>20</sup>. If the replacement right or any subsequent replacement right was obtained on or before 7 November 2000, that right is treated<sup>21</sup> as a right obtained in the period 6 April 1999 to 19 May 2000<sup>22</sup>. Where the replacement right is or has been obtained after 7 November 2000 a notice may be given under head (3) above in respect of the original right, notwithstanding that the assignment or release of that right was before the giving of the notice<sup>23</sup>. The liability<sup>24</sup> to pay Class 1 contributions in respect of a gain realised on the assignment or release of the original right is to be determined as if<sup>25</sup> the replacement right were or, as the case may be, were part of the valuable consideration given for the assignment or release, and as if the value of so much of that consideration as is represented by the replacement right were equal to whichever is the smaller of the amount which<sup>26</sup> would have been taken to be the gain realised by an exercise in full of the original right immediately before the time of its assignment or release, or the amount which<sup>27</sup> would have been taken to be the amount of the gain realised by an exercise in full of the replacement right at that time which falls immediately after it is given in consideration of the assignment or release<sup>28</sup>. Heads (1) and (2) above do not prevent a liability to pay Class 1 contributions from arising after 11 May 2001 in respect of any gain realised on the exercise, assignment or release of the replacement right or of any subsequent replacement right, or have the effect of deeming any such liability not to have arisen on any such gain<sup>29</sup>.

Where the whole or any part of any consideration given for the assignment or release of the replacement right or of any subsequent replacement right does not (or did not) comprise a subsequent replacement right, and, as a consequence, a gain would<sup>30</sup> be taken<sup>31</sup> to be realised (or to have been realised) on that assignment or release, that gain is taken for the purposes of the determination to be (or, as the case may be, to have been) equal to the amount in respect of which liability to pay Class 1 contributions would have been preserved, on the following assumptions<sup>32</sup> or, if no such liability would have been so preserved, to nil<sup>33</sup>. Those assumptions are that the right assigned or released is a right to the liability to pay Class 1 contributions in respect of which is a liability to which head (A) or (B) above applied; that references<sup>34</sup> to the original right and to the replacement right are references, respectively, to the right that is assigned or released and to the right comprised in the consideration for the assignment or release; and that so much of the right assigned or released as is a right to acquire additional shares is disregarded<sup>35</sup>.

Nothing in the provisions above<sup>36</sup> limits or removes, or is deemed to have limited or removed, any liability to pay Class 1 contributions in respect of a gain arising on the exercise, assignment or release of the replacement right, or of any subsequent replacement right, in any case in which the right in question or that gain derives (directly or indirectly) from a transaction the purpose, or one of the main purposes, of which was to make use of the provisions of the Social Security Contributions (Share Options) Act 2001 to avoid the payment of such contributions in respect of a benefit conferred after 19 May 2000<sup>37</sup>. Shares are additional shares, in relation to any right ('the new right') constituting or comprised in the consideration for the assignment or release of another right ('the old right'), to the extent that they are shares obtainable in exercise of the new right in addition to shares obtainable in exercise of the new right with a value that matches the value of the shares (other than any that were themselves additional shares) which were obtainable by the exercise of the old right<sup>38</sup>. Shares obtainable by the exercise of the new right are taken to have a value that matches the value of the shares obtainable in exercise of the old right to the extent, and to the extent only, that the following amounts are the same: (aa) the amount which<sup>39</sup> would be taken to be the amount of the gain realised by an exercise of the new right at the relevant time (assuming it to be exercisable at that time) for obtaining the shares; and (bb) the amount which would have been taken<sup>40</sup> to be the gain realised by a full exercise of the old right immediately before the time of its assignment or release<sup>41</sup>. 'The relevant time', in relation to the new right, means the time which falls immediately after it is given in consideration of the assignment or release of the old right<sup>42</sup>. Where any question arises<sup>43</sup> in relation to any partial exercise, assignment or release of any right, whether the shares obtainable under so much of the right as has been exercised, assigned or released were additional shares, it is assumed that the right in so far as it is a right to acquire additional shares must be exercised, assigned or released before the exercise, assignment or release of any part of that right that is a right to acquire shares that are not additional shares<sup>44</sup>. All such apportionments as may be necessary must be made in determining, in a case in which the number of additional shares cannot be a whole number, to what extent a liability to pay Class 1 contributions arises in relation to the exercise, assignment or release of a right to acquire any such shares<sup>45</sup>.

2    le by virtue of ibid s 4(4)(a).

3    A notice must be given in writing or by such electronic means as may be authorised by regulations made by the Inland Revenue, must contain such matters and be in such form as may be required by any such regulations, and once given, is irrevocable: ibid s 1(5). As to such regulations see the Social Security Contributions (Share Options) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1817, regs 3, 4 (reg 4 amended by SI 2003/2155).

A person who has given a notice must maintain the following records: (1) a copy of the notice; (2) evidence of the price at which each share may be acquired by exercise of the right in respect of which the notice is given; (3) evidence of the amount that a person might reasonably have expected to have obtained from a sale in the open market on 7 November 2000 of each share to which the right relates; (4) evidence that the special contribution was paid to the Inland Revenue before the end of the period of 92 days beginning with 11 May 2001; and (5) where applicable, evidence of the consent to the notice being given by a secondary contributor: reg 10(1). The records must be retained by the person required to maintain them for a period of not less than three years beginning with 6 April following the date on which a gain is realised on the exercise, assignment or release of the right in respect of which the notice is given: reg 10(2). Every person required to maintain records, whenever called on to do so by any authorised officer of the Inland Revenue, must produce those records to that officer for inspection, at such time as that officer may reasonably require, at the prescribed place: reg 11(2). The 'prescribed place' means such place in the United Kingdom as the person and the officer may agree on, or, in default of such agreement, the place in the United Kingdom at which the records are normally kept, or, in default of such agreement and if there is no such place, the person's principal place of business in the United Kingdom: reg 11(3).

4 Social Security Contributions (Share Options) Act 2001 s 1(1), (2). References to the assignment or release of a right to acquire shares, and to gains realised on such an assignment or release, are construed as if the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003 s 477(6) (see INCOME TAXATION) applied for these purposes as it applied for those of Pt 7 Ch 5 (ss 471-484): Social Security Contributions (Share Options) Act 2001 s 5(2)(c) (amended by the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003 Sch 6 para 262; and the Finance Act 2003 Sch 22 para 58).

8 Ibid s 1(4).

9 le under ibid s 2. The amount of the special contribution is 12•2 per cent of the amount (if any) in respect of which Class 1 contributions would have been payable by virtue of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 4(4)(a) if the right had been exercised in full on 7 November 2000 without the giving of any further consideration for the shares acquired by the exercise of that right, or, where there is no such amount, nil: Social Security Contributions (Share Options) Act 2001 s 2(2).

Any special contribution must be paid to the Inland Revenue before the end of the period of 92 days beginning with 11 May 2001 or before the end of that period as extended by any such further period determined by the Inland Revenue under s 2(5) infra: Social Security Contributions (Share Options) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1817, reg 5(1). Where any payment to the Inland Revenue is made by cheque, and the cheque is paid on its first presentation to the banker on whom it is drawn, the payment is treated as made on the day on which the cheque was received by the Inland Revenue and cognate expressions are to be construed accordingly: reg 5(2).

Where a person becomes liable to pay to the Inland Revenue a special contribution, but that liability is not discharged before the end of the aforementioned period of 92 days, the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 and the Social Security Contributions (Share Options) Act 2001 have effect as if no notice had been given under s 1 in respect of that right: s 2(4).

A special contribution which is not paid to the Inland Revenue before the end of the aforementioned period of 92 days carries interest at the rate applicable under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 6(3) from the end of that period until payment, and such interest is recoverable as if it were a Class 1A contribution: Social Security Contributions (Share Options) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1817, reg 6(1), (2). A certificate of the Inland Revenue that any amount of interest so payable has not been paid to it, or, to the best of its knowledge and belief, to any person acting on its behalf, is sufficient evidence that a person is liable to pay to it the amount of interest shown on the certificate and that the sum is unpaid and due to be paid, and any document purporting to be such a certificate is deemed to be such a certificate until the contrary is proved: reg 6(3).

Where a special contribution is repaid to a person by the Inland Revenue, the repayment carries interest at the rate applicable under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 6(3) from the end of the aforementioned period of 92 days, or, if later, from the date on which the special contribution was paid to the Inland Revenue, until the order for repayment is issued: Social Security Contributions (Share Options) Regulations 2001, SI 2001/1817, reg 7. Where a person has paid interest in respect of a special contribution, the Inland Revenue must repay the interest to that person if the interest is found not to have been due to be paid, or the special contribution is returned, or repaid, to that person: reg 8.

Interest payable in respect of a special contribution must be remitted where the liability, or a part of the liability, to pay the interest arises as the result of an official error being made for the period commencing after the end of the aforementioned period of 92 days or, if later, the date on which the official error occurs, and ending 14 days after the date on which the official error is rectified and the person by whom the interest was payable is advised of its rectification: reg 9(1)-(3). 'Official error' means a mistake made, or something omitted to be done, by an officer of, or person employed in relation to, the Inland Revenue acting as such, where the person by whom the interest was payable, or any person acting on his behalf, does not cause, or materially contribute to, that error or omission: reg 9(3).

UPDATE

31-46 Contributions

Contributions under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A) are now under the care and management of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue: see further the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 s 3.

For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A), if, for any period commencing with or falling after 2 March 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in either the Full-time Education and Training Option, the Voluntary Sector Option or the Environment Task Force Option, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2) Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). If, for any period commencing with or falling after 3 July 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in the Employment Option in a capacity other than that of employee, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment, other than a trading receipt, made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: SI 1998/217 art 2(1), (3), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425).

The 'New Deal' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 18 or over and less than 26 immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help New Deal participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; a person is, or, as the case may be, was, at any material time, a 'New Deal participant' if he is or was at that time using facilities; 'facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of one or more of the New Deal components; the 'New Deal components' means any of the programmes of employment or employment-related training under the New Deal known individually as 'the Full-time Education and Training Option', 'the Voluntary Sector Option', 'the Employment Option' and 'the Environment Task Force Option'; and 'trading receipt' means, in relation to a participant under the Employment Option, any payment made to him in consideration of goods or services supplied by him in the course of his participation under that option: SI 1998/217 art 1 (amended by SI 1998/1425). See further PARA 304.

Also for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A) if, during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 2 April 1999, a person is participating in the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus within the self employment route and that person receives either a mandatory top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed and any such payments made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated as a grant and not as a training allowance: New Deal (25 plus) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1999, SI 1999/779, reg 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The self-employment route' means receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilots for 25 plus; and 'the intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged over 25 years immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work: SI 1999/779 reg 1(2).

Further, for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A) if, for any period or periods commencing with or falling after 9 April 2001, during which a person is participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus, that person receives, or is eligible to receive, a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period or those periods and in respect of his participation as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of facilities is to be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/970, art 2(2). Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

Also, for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A), if during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 13 September 2001 a person is participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents within the self-employment route and that person receives, or is eligible to receive, either a top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, any such payments made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of those facilities are to be treated as a training premium: New Deal (Lone Parents) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/2915, art 2(1), (2). 'The New Deal for Lone Parents' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are lone parents are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'lone parent' means a person who has no partner and who is responsible for, and a member of the same household as, a child or young person; 'the self-employment route' means receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents: SI 2001/2915 art 1(2).

34-45 The Classes of Contributions

There is a new Class of contribution, Class 1B: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 10A; and PARA 39A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/2. CONTRIBUTIONS/(2) THE CLASSES OF CONTRIBUTIONS/(i) Class 1 Contributions/36. Calculation of primary Class 1 contributions.

36. Calculation of primary Class 1 contributions.

Where a primary Class 1 contribution<sup>1</sup> is payable<sup>2</sup>, the amount of that contribution is the aggregate of:

- 105 (1) the initial primary percentage<sup>3</sup> of so much of the employed earner's earnings<sup>4</sup> paid in the tax week<sup>5</sup>, in respect of the employment<sup>6</sup> in question, as does not exceed the current lower earnings limit<sup>7</sup>; and
- 106 (2) the main primary percentage<sup>8</sup> of so much of those earnings as exceeds that limit but does not exceed the current upper earnings limit<sup>9</sup>.

Regulations may, in relation to Class 1 contributions, make provision:

- 107 (a) for calculating the amounts payable according to a scale prepared from time to time by the Secretary of State<sup>10</sup> or otherwise adjusting them so as to avoid fractional amounts or otherwise facilitate computation;
- 108 (b) for requiring that the liability in respect of a payment made in a tax week, in so far as the liability depends on any conditions as to a person's age or retirement, must be determined as at the beginning of the week or as at the end of it;
- 109 (c) for securing that liability is not avoided or reduced by a person following in the payment of earnings any practice which is abnormal for the employment in respect of which the earnings are paid; and
- 110 (d) without prejudice to head (c) above, for enabling the Secretary of State, where he is satisfied as to the existence of any practice in respect of the payment of earnings whereby the incidence of Class 1 contributions is avoided or reduced by means of irregular or unequal payments, to give directions for securing that such contributions are payable as if that practice were not followed<sup>11</sup>.

Where the earnings paid to or for the benefit of an earner in any tax week are in respect of employment which is contracted-out employment<sup>12</sup> at the time of the payment, the amount of a primary Class 1 contribution in respect of so much of the earnings paid in that week as exceeds the current lower earnings limit but not the current upper earnings limit for that week is to be reduced by an amount equal to 1.6 per cent of that part of those earnings<sup>13</sup>.

1 As to primary Class 1 contributions see PARA 34 ante.

2 As to liability for primary Class 1 contributions see PARA 35 ante.

3 At the date at which this volume states the law, the initial primary percentage is 2%; but the rate of that percentage is subject to alteration under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 143, 145 (see PARA 16 ante); Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 8(2)(a).

4 For the meaning of 'employed earner' and 'earnings' see PARAS 32-33 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'tax week' see PARA 35 note 1 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'employment' see PARA 32 note 2 ante.

7 As to the lower earnings limit see PARA 34 ante.

8 At the date at which this volume states the law, the main primary percentage is 10%; but the rate of that percentage is subject to alteration under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 143, 145 (see PARA 16 ante); Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 8(2)(b) (amended by the Social Security (Contributions) Act 1994 s 1(1)).

9 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 8(1). Section 8(1) is, however, subject to regulations under s 6(5) (as amended) (see PARA 46 post) and ss 116-120 (see PARAS 21-26 ante); and to the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 41 (as amended) (reduced rates of Class 1 contributions for earners in contracted out employment: see the text and notes 12-13 infra; and PARA 911 post); Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 8(1) (amended by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 190, Sch 8 para 33).

10 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

11 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 1(4), Sch 1 para 4.

12 For the meaning of 'contracted-out employment' see the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 8(1) (as amended); and PARA 878 post.

13 See ibid s 41(1) (as substituted and amended); and PARA 911 post. There is provision for the return of contributions paid at the normal rate which should have been paid at the contracted-out rate: see the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 33.

UPDATE

31-46 Contributions

Contributions under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt I (ss 1-19A) are now under the care and management of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue: see further the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 s 3.

36 Calculation of primary class 1 contributions

TEXT AND NOTES 1-9--Replaced. Where a primary Class 1 contribution is payable (see PARA 35), the amount of that contribution is the aggregate of (1) the main primary percentage of so much of the earner's earnings paid in the tax week, in respect of the employment in question, as (a) exceeds the current primary threshold (or the prescribed equivalent); but (b) does not exceed the current upper earnings limit (or the prescribed equivalent); and (2) the additional primary percentage of so much of those earnings as exceeds the current upper earnings limit (or the prescribed equivalent): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 8(1) (s 8 substituted by the National Insurance Contributions Act 2002 s 4(1), with effect in relation to the tax year 2003-04 and subsequent tax years (s 8(2)). For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (i) the main primary percentage is 11 per cent; and (ii) the additional primary percentage is 1 per cent; but the main primary percentage is subject to alteration under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 ss 143, 145 (see PARA 16): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 8(2) (s 8 as so substituted). ### 37. Calculation of secondary Class 1 contributions.

Where a secondary Class 1 contribution<sup>1</sup> is payable<sup>2</sup>, the amount of that contribution is the appropriate secondary percentage<sup>3</sup> of the earnings paid in the week<sup>4</sup> in respect of the employment<sup>5</sup> in question<sup>6</sup>. The percentage is set out in a table with four brackets of income, each with a stated percentage, subject to periodic amendment<sup>7</sup>.

Where the earnings paid to or for the benefit of an earner in any tax week<sup>8</sup> are in respect of employment which is contracted-out employment<sup>9</sup> at the time of the payment, the amount of a secondary Class 1 contribution in respect of so much of the earnings paid in that week as exceeds the current lower earnings limit but not the current upper earnings limit for that week is to be reduced by an amount equal to 3 per cent of that part of those earnings<sup>10</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'secondary Class 1 contribution' see PARA 31 head (a) ante.

2 As to when a secondary Class 1 contribution is payable see PARA 35 ante.

3 For these purposes, the 'appropriate secondary percentage', in relation to the earner's earnings, is the percentage specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 9(3) (subject to frequent amendment) as appropriate to the secondary earnings bracket (or the prescribed equivalent in the case of earners paid otherwise than weekly) into which those earnings fall: s 9(2). The power so conferred to prescribe an equivalent of a bracket includes power to prescribe an amount which exceeds, by not more than £1, the amount which is the arithmetical equivalent of that bracket: s 9(5). For the meaning of 'earner' and 'earnings' see PARAS 32-33 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'week' see PARA 32 note 7 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'employment' see PARA 32 note 2 ante.

6 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 9(1). Section 9(1) is subject to the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 41 (as amended) (see the text and notes 8-10 infra; and PARA 911 post) and to regulations under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 6(5) (as amended) (see PARA 46 post) and under ss 116-120 (see PARAS 21-26 ante): s 9(4) (amended by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 190, Sch 8 para 34).

7 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 9(3), (4)(b).

8 For the meaning of 'tax week' see PARA 35 note 1 ante.

9 For the meaning of 'contracted-out employment' see PARA 878 post.

10 See the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 41(1) (as substituted and amended); and PARA 911 post. There is provision for the return of contributions paid at the normal rate which should have been paid at the contracted-out rate: see the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 33.

If, for any period commencing with or falling after 3 July 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in the Employment Option in a capacity other than that of employee, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment, other than a trading receipt, made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: SI 1998/217 art 2(1), (3), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425).

The 'New Deal' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 18 or over and less than 26 immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help New Deal participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; a person is, or, as the case may be, was, at any material time, a 'New Deal participant' if he is or was at that time using facilities; 'facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of one or more of the New Deal components; the 'New Deal components' means any of the programmes of employment or employment-related training under the New Deal known individually as 'the Full-time Education and Training Option', 'the Voluntary Sector Option', 'the Employment Option' and 'the Environment Task Force Option'; and 'trading receipt' means, in relation to a participant under the Employment Option, any payment made to him in consideration of goods or services supplied by him in the course of his participation under that option: SI 1998/217 art 1 (amended by SI 1998/1425). TEXT AND NOTES--Replaced.

Where (1) for any tax year an earner is chargeable to income tax under the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003 on an amount of general earnings received by him from any employment ('the relevant employment')<sup>1</sup>; (2) the relevant employment is both employed earner's employment, and an employment, other than an excluded employment, within the meaning of the benefits code<sup>2</sup>, and (3) the whole or a part of the general earnings falls, for the purposes of Class 1 contributions, to be left out of account in the computation of is payable for that tax year, in accordance with these provisions, in respect of that earner and so much of the general earnings as falls to be so left out of account<sup>3</sup>. Subject to rules relating to third party providers of benefits in kind<sup>4</sup>, a Class 1A contribution for any tax year is payable by (a) the person who is liable to pay the secondary Class 1 contribution relating to the last (or only) relevant payment of earnings<sup>5</sup> in that tax year in relation to which there is a liability to pay such a Class 1 contribution; or (b) if head (a) does not apply, the person who, if the general earnings in respect of which the Class 1A contribution is payable were earnings in respect of which Class 1 contributions would be payable, would be liable to pay the secondary Class 1 contribution<sup>6</sup>. The amount of the Class 1A contribution in respect of any general earnings is the Class 1A percentage<sup>7</sup> of so much of them as falls to be left out of account as mentioned in head (3) above<sup>8</sup>. No Class 1A contribution is payable for any tax year in respect of so much of any general earnings as is taken for the purposes of the making of Class 1B contributions for that year to be included in a PAYE settlement agreement<sup>9</sup>.

The Treasury may by regulations provide (i) for Class 1A contributions not to be payable, in prescribed circumstances, by prescribed persons or in respect of prescribed persons or emoluments; (ii) for reducing Class 1A contributions in prescribed circumstances<sup>10</sup>.

1 In calculating for these purposes the amount of general earnings received by an earner from an employment, a deduction under any of the excluded provisions is to be disregarded: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 10(7) (s 10 substituted by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 74(2); 1992 Act s 10(7)-(7B) substituted by the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003 Sch 6 para 174(9); 1992 Act s 10(7B) amended by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (Modification of Section 10(7B)) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/799). For these purposes, 'excluded provision' means (1) any provision of the 2003 Act Pt 5 Ch 2 (ss 333-360) (deductions for employee's expenses) (see INCOME TAXATION), other than s 352 (limited deduction for agency fees paid by entertainers) (see INCOME TAXATION), (2) any of ss 363-365 (certain deductions from benefits code earnings), or (3) any provision of Pt 5 Ch 5 (ss 369-377) (deductions for earnings representing benefits or reimbursed expenses) (see INCOME TAXATION); 1992 Act s 10(7B) (as so substituted and amended). Where a deduction in respect of a matter is allowed under an excluded provision, and the amount deductible is at least equal to the whole of any corresponding amount which would (but for s 10) fall by reference to that matter to be included in the general earnings mentioned in s 10(7B), the whole of the corresponding amount is treated as not included: s 10(7A) (as so substituted).

The Treasury may by regulations (a) modify the effect of s 10(7), (7A) by amending s 10(7B) so as to include any enactment contained in the Income Tax Acts within the meaning of 'excluded provision'; or make such amendments of s 10(7)-(7B) as appear to them to be necessary or expedient in consequence of any alteration of the provisions of the Income Tax Acts relating to the charge to tax on employment income: s 10(8).

There is provision for the return of contributions paid in error: see SI 2001/1004 reg 55 (amended by SI 2002/2366, SI 2004/770).

In addition, regulations made by the Inland Revenue may (1) make provision for calculating the amount of Class 1A contributions so as to avoid fractional amounts; (2) modify s 10 in relation to cases where something is provided or made available by reason of two or more employed earner's employments under different employers: 1992 Act s 1(4), Sch 1 para 5 (s 1(4) amended by the Social Security Act 1998 Sch 7 para 56(2); and the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 1 para 5(1), (3), Sch 10 Pt I; 1992 Act Sch 1 para 5 substituted by the Social Security Act 1998 Sch 7 para 77(6); and amended by the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 3 para 34; and the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 74(4)). ### 38A. Third party providers of benefits in kind.

The following rules apply where (1) a Class 1A contribution is payable for any tax year in respect of the whole or any part of general earnings received by an earner; (2) the general earnings, in so far as they are ones in respect of which such a contribution is payable, consists in a benefit provided for the earner or a member of his family or household<sup>1</sup>; (3) the person providing the benefit is a person other than the person ('the relevant employer') by whom, but for these rules, the Class 1A contribution would be payable<sup>2</sup>; and (4) the provision of the benefit by that other person has not been arranged or facilitated by the relevant employer<sup>3</sup>. For these purposes, if (a) the person providing the benefit pays an amount for the purpose of discharging any liability of the earner to income tax for any tax year; and (b) the income tax in question is tax chargeable in respect of the provision of the benefit or of the making of the payment itself, the amount of the payment must be treated as if it were general earnings consisting in the provision of a benefit to the earner in that tax year and falling, for the purposes of Class 1 contributions, to be left out of account in the computation of the earnings paid to or for the benefit of the earner<sup>4</sup>. The liability to pay any Class 1A contribution in respect of the benefit provided to the earner and any further benefit treated as so provided, falls on the person providing the benefit, instead of on the relevant employer<sup>5</sup>.

References in the provisions above to the provision of a benefit include references to the provision of a non-cash voucher<sup>6</sup>.

1 References to a member of a person's family or household are to be construed in accordance with the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003 s 721(5) (see INCOME TAXATION): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 10ZA(6) (ss 10ZA, 10ZB added by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 75(1); 1992 Act s 10ZA(6) amended by the 2003 Act Sch 6 para 175(5)).

The Treasury may by regulations make provision specifying the circumstances in which a person is or is not to be treated for the purposes of the 1992 Act as having arranged or facilitated the provision of any benefit: s 10ZA(5). Such regulations may be expressed to have retrospective effect: see further the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 75(4).

This is subject to s 10ZA(4), by virtue of which s 10ZA(3) applies in the case of a Class 1A contribution for the tax year beginning 6 April 2000 only if the person providing the benefit in question gives notice in writing to the Inland Revenue on or before 6 July 2001 that he is a person who provides benefits in respect of which a liability to Class 1A contributions is capable of falling by virtue of s 10ZA on a person other than the relevant employer.

'Non-cash voucher' has the same meaning as in the 2003 Act s 84 (see INCOME TAXATION): 1992 Act s 10ZB(3) (s 10ZB(3) amended by the 2003 Act Sch 6 para 175(5)).

34-45 The Classes of Contributions

There is a new Class of contribution, Class 1B: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 10A; and PARA 39A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/2. CONTRIBUTIONS/(2) THE CLASSES OF CONTRIBUTIONS/(ii) Class 1A Contributions/38B. Class 1A contributions: power to make provision in consequence of retrospective tax legislation.

38B. Class 1A contributions: power to make provision in consequence of retrospective tax legislation.

The Treasury may by regulations make such provision as appears to it to be expedient for any purpose of the law relating to Class 1A contributions in consequence of any relevant retrospective tax provision<sup>1</sup> which is passed or made at or before the time when the regulations are made or which may be passed or made after that time<sup>2</sup>. Regulations so made may, in particular, make provision modifying any provision of any enactment<sup>3</sup> or for any provision of any such enactment to apply in such cases, and with such modifications, if any, as the regulations may prescribe<sup>4</sup>. Such regulations may be made so as to have retrospective effect, but must not have effect in relation to any time before 2 December 2004<sup>5</sup>, and may not impose any liability to pay a Class 1A contribution or increase the amount of any Class 1A contribution<sup>6</sup>.

1 'Relevant retrospective tax provision' means a provision of the Income Tax Acts (see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 21) which has retrospective effect and affects the amount of general earnings received by an earner from an employment on which he is chargeable to income tax under the Income Tax (Earnings and Pensions) Act 2003 Pts 2-7 (ss 2-554) (see INCOME TAXATION) for a tax year: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 10ZC(2) (s 10ZC added by National Insurance Contributions Act 2006 s 3(1)).

2 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 10ZC(1). It does not matter whether the relevant retrospective tax provision was passed or made before 30 March 2006 (ie the day on which the 2006 Act was passed): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 10ZC(3), (10). The powers conferred by s 10ZC are without prejudice to any liability to pay a Class 1A contribution which arises by virtue of any relevant retrospective tax provision and any powers conferred by or by virtue of any other provision of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 or any other enactment and, in particular, any modification of any provision of an instrument by regulations under s 10ZC is without prejudice to any other power to amend or revoke the provisions of the instrument, including the modified provision: s 10ZC(8), (9). 'Enactment' includes an instrument made under an Act: s 10ZC(10).

A statutory instrument containing, whether alone or with other provisions, regulations made by virtue of s 10ZC must not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before Parliament and been approved by a resolution of each house: s 176(1) (amended by National Insurance Contributions Act 2006 s 3(2)).

3 'Any enactment' includes the 1992 Act and any enactment passed or made on or after 30 March 2006: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 10ZC(4)(a).

4 Ibid s 10ZC(4)(b).

5 Ibid s 10ZC(5). In particular, regulations so made by virtue of s 10ZC(5) may affect matters determined before the time when the regulations are made and may provide for those matters to be redetermined accordingly: s 10ZC(6).

6 Ibid s 10ZC(7).

'The self-employment route' means receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilots for 25 plus; and 'the intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged over 25 years immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work: SI 1999/779 reg 1(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/2. CONTRIBUTIONS/(2) THE CLASSES OF CONTRIBUTIONS/(iii) Class 2 Contributions/41. Class 2 contributions paid in a tax year later than the year in which they fall.

41. Class 2 contributions paid in a tax year later than the year in which they fall.

The following provisions apply to any Class 2 contribution<sup>1</sup> paid in respect of a week<sup>2</sup> falling within a tax year<sup>3</sup> ('the contribution year') earlier than the tax year in which it is paid ('the payment year')<sup>4</sup>. The amount of such a contribution is the amount which the earner<sup>5</sup> would have had to pay if he had paid the contribution in the contribution year<sup>6</sup>.

Subject as follows, in any case where:

- 117 (1) the earner pays an ordinary contribution<sup>7</sup> after the end of the tax year immediately following the contribution year; and
- 118 (2) the weekly rate of ordinary contributions for the week in respect of which the contribution was payable in the contribution year differs from the weekly rate applicable at the time of payment in the payment year, the amount of the contribution must be computed by reference to the highest weekly rate of ordinary contributions in the period beginning with the week in respect of which the contribution is paid and ending with the day on which it is paid<sup>8</sup>. The Secretary of State may, however, by regulations direct that heads (1) and (2) above are to have effect in relation to a higher-rate contribution<sup>9</sup> subject to such modifications as may be prescribed<sup>10</sup>.

For the purposes of proceedings in any court relating to an earner's failure to pay Class 2 contributions<sup>11</sup>, the amount of each contribution which he is to be treated as having failed to pay is the amount which he would have paid in accordance with these provisions if he had paid that contribution on the date on which the proceedings commenced<sup>12</sup>.

8 Ibid s 12(3). The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that the amount of any contribution which, apart from the regulations, would fall to be computed in accordance with s 12(3) must instead be computed by reference to a tax year not earlier than the contribution year but earlier than the payment year: s 12(6)(a). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

9 'Higher-rate contribution' means a contribution under regulations made under ibid s 11(3) (see PARA 40 ante): s 12(6)(b).

For these purposes, proceedings in the High Court or a county court commence when an action commences and proceedings under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 114 (offences relating to contributions: see PARA 404 post) commence when an information is laid: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 12(7).

(iv) Class 3 Contributions

42. Entitlement to pay Class 3 contributions.

Regulations must provide for earners<sup>1</sup> and others, if over the age of 16<sup>2</sup>, to be entitled if they so wish, but subject to any prescribed conditions<sup>3</sup>, to pay Class 3 contributions at a flat weekly rate<sup>4</sup>. Payment of Class 3 contributions is to be allowed only with a view to enabling the contributor to satisfy contribution conditions of entitlement to benefit<sup>5</sup> by acquiring the requisite earnings factor<sup>6</sup> for the statutory purposes<sup>7</sup>.

Regulations may provide for Class 3 contributions, although paid in one tax year<sup>8</sup>, to be appropriated in prescribed circumstances to the earnings factor of another tax year<sup>9</sup>. The amount of a Class 3 contribution in respect of a tax year earlier than the tax year in which it is paid is, however, to be the same as if it had been paid in the earlier year and in respect of that year, subject to certain exceptions<sup>10</sup>.

No person is entitled to pay a Class 3 contribution in respect of any tax year if his earnings factor, or the aggregate of his earnings factors, for that year, derived:

- 119 (1) in the case of 1987-88 or any subsequent year, from earnings upon which Class 1 contributions<sup>11</sup> have been paid or treated as paid or from Class 2 contributions<sup>12</sup> actually paid; or
- 120 (2) in the case of any earlier year, from contributions actually paid, is equal to or exceeds the qualifying earnings factor for that year; and regulations may provide for precluding the payment of Class 3 contributions in other cases<sup>13</sup>. In cases where payment of such contributions was precluded, regulations may also provide for their repayment<sup>14</sup>. Contributions repayable by virtue of such regulations are treated, for the purpose of determining the contributor's entitlement to any benefit, as not having been paid<sup>15</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'earner' see PARAS 32-33 ante.

2 As to when a person is treated as attaining a specified age see PARA 19 note 11 ante.

3 The entitlement is subject to conditions as to residence or presence in Great Britain: see the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, regs 27(1), 119 (as amended). There are also conditions as to the time of the payments (see reg 27(2)-(4) (as amended)) and provision for late payment for good cause (see reg 29). For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 19 note 3 ante.

4 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 13(1) (as amended). As to the alteration of the rate of contributions see PARAS 15-16 ante. For the meaning of 'week' see PARA 32 note 7 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'benefit' see PARA 13 note 8 ante.

7 Ibid s 13(2).

8 For the meaning of 'tax year' see PARA 9 note 6 ante.

9 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 13(3).

10 See ibid s 13(4). In any case where (1) a Class 3 contribution is paid after the end of the next tax year but one following the contribution year; and (2) the amount of a Class 3 contribution applicable had the contribution been paid in the contribution year differs from the amount of a Class 3 contribution applicable at the time of payment in the payment year, the amount of the contribution must be computed by reference to the highest of those two amounts and of any other amount of a Class 3 contribution in the intervening period: s 13(6). The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that the amount of a contribution which apart from the regulations would fall to be computed in accordance with s 13(6) must instead be computed by reference to the amount of a Class 3 contribution for a tax year earlier than the payment year but not earlier than the contribution year: s 13(7). For these purposes, 'the payment year' means the tax year in which a contribution is paid and 'the contribution year' means the earlier year mentioned in s 13(4): s 13(5).

11 As to Class 1 contributions see PARAS 34-37 ante.

12 As to Class 2 contributions see PARAS 40-41 ante.

14 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 14(2).

15 Ibid s 14(3). Nothing in s 14(3) is, however, to be taken to imply that any other repayable contributions are to be treated for the purposes of benefit as having been paid: s 14(3). There is provision for the return of contributions paid in error: see the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 32 (as amended), reg 34.

(v) Class 4 Contributions

43. Class 4 contributions recoverable under the Income Tax Acts.

Class 4 contributions are payable in any tax year<sup>1</sup> in respect of all annual profits or gains<sup>2</sup> which are immediately derived from the carrying on or exercise of one or more trades, professions or vocations<sup>3</sup>, and are profits or gains chargeable to income tax under Case I or Case II of Schedule D for the year of assessment<sup>4</sup> corresponding to that tax year<sup>5</sup>. Such contributions are payable in the same manner as any income tax which is, or would be, chargeable in respect of those profits or gains, whether or not income tax in fact falls to be paid, and are payable by the person on whom the income tax is or would be charged<sup>6</sup>.

A Class 4 contribution for any tax year is to be an amount equal to a specified percentage<sup>7</sup> of so much of the profits or gains referred to above as exceeds a specified minimum and does not exceed a specified maximum figure<sup>8</sup>, when computed in accordance with the relevant statutory provisions<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'tax year' see PARA 9 note 6 ante.

2 This reference to profits or gains chargeable to income tax under Case I or Case II of Schedule D must be taken to include a reference to profits or gains consisting of a payment of enterprise allowance chargeable to income tax under Case VI of Schedule D by virtue of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 s 127(2) (see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 565); Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 15(5). 3 As to the meaning of 'trade, profession or vocation' see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARAS 135-136.

4 For these purposes, the year of assessment which corresponds to a tax year is the year of assessment (within the meaning of the Tax Acts) which consists of the same period as that tax year: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 15(4). For the meaning of 'the Tax Acts' see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 21.

5 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 15(1).

TEXT AND NOTES--Regulations under 1992 Act Sch 1 para 8 must now be made by the appropriate authority: Sch 1 para 8(1) (amended by Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 3 para 39). The 'appropriate authority' means the Treasury, except that, in relation to (a) provision made by virtue of head (4) of the text, and (b) provision made by virtue of head (16) in relation to the matters referred to in head (4), it means the Secretary of State, acting with the concurrence of the Inland Revenue: 1992 Act Sch 1 para 8(1A) (added by Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 3 para 39; and amended by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 11 para 3).

Regulations may provide for the repayment, in prescribed cases, of the whole or a prescribed part of a Class 1A (see PARA 38) or of a Class 1B contribution (see PARA 39A): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 8(1)(ia) (added by the Social Security Act 1998 Sch 7 para 77(15); and amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 74(5)).

Regulations may also provide for requiring a secondary contributor to notify a person to whom any of his liabilities are transferred by an election under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 3B (see PARA 35) of any transferred liability that arises, the amount of any transferred liability that arises and the contents of any notice of withdrawal by the Inland Revenue of any approval that relates to that election: Sch 1 para 8(1)(ca) (added by Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 77(4)).

NOTE 4--1992 Act s 1(4) amended: Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 1 para 5, Sch 10.

TEXT AND NOTE 5--Also refers to Class 1B contributions: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 8(1)(b) (amended by 1998 Act Sch 7 para 77(14)).

TEXT AND NOTES 20-22--Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 8(1)(i) repealed: Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 Sch 9 Pt VIII.

TEXT AND NOTE 29--In heads (12)(a)-(c), for 'Class 1A contributions' read 'Class 1A contributions or a Class 1B contribution': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 8(1)(l) (amended by 1998 Act Sch 7 para 77(16)(a), (b), (d)).

Additional head (12)(d) the whole or part of any payment of a Class 1B contribution to be treated as a payment of secondary Class 1 contributions, Class 1A contributions or Class 2 contributions: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 8(1)(ia) (added by 1998 Act Sch 7 para 77(16)(c)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/2. CONTRIBUTIONS/(3) CONSEQUENTIAL PROVISIONS/48. Late paid and unpaid contributions.

48. Late paid and unpaid contributions.

The general rule is that contributions paid after the due date are treated as not paid at all if paid after the end of the second year<sup>1</sup> following the year in which liability arose<sup>2</sup>; if paid before then, they are normally treated as paid on the date of payment<sup>3</sup>. Late paid contributions are treated as not paid for the purpose of entitlement to benefit in respect of any period before their date of payment<sup>4</sup>. For the purpose of any entitlement to benefit<sup>5</sup> in respect of any other period, a late paid contribution is treated as paid on the date on which payment of the contribution is made<sup>6</sup>. For the purpose of entitlement to a contribution-based jobseeker's allowance<sup>7</sup> or short-term incapacity benefit<sup>8</sup>, a late paid contribution is treated as paid on the due date if paid before the beginning of the relevant benefit year<sup>9</sup>, and if paid later as not paid until a period of 42 days (including Sundays) has expired from the date of payment of the contribution, and as paid at the expiry of that period in relation to entitlement to benefit in respect of any other period<sup>10</sup>.

Where a contribution (other than a Class 4 contribution)<sup>11</sup> is paid after the time when it would have been treated as paid for the purpose of entitlement to contributory benefit<sup>12</sup>, but it is shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State<sup>13</sup> that the failure to pay before that time is attributable to ignorance or error on the part of the person or persons making the payment and that that ignorance or error was not due to any failure to exercise due care and diligence, the Secretary of State may direct that the contribution is to be treated as paid on such earlier day as he may consider appropriate in the circumstances<sup>14</sup>.

Where a primary Class 1 contribution<sup>15</sup> which is payable on behalf of a primary contributor by a secondary contributor<sup>16</sup> is paid after the due date, or is not paid, or (in relation to a contribution-based jobseeker's allowance, short-term incapacity benefit or maternity allowance) is not paid before the relevant time for that benefit, and the delay or failure in making the payment is shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State not to have been with the consent or connivance of, or attributable to any negligence on the part of, the primary contributor, that primary contribution is to be treated for the purpose of the first contribution condition of entitlement to contribution-based jobseeker's allowance<sup>17</sup> or short-term incapacity benefit (and for the purpose of the contribution condition for maternity allowance) as paid on the day on which payment is made of the earnings in respect of which the contribution is payable<sup>18</sup>, and for the purpose of any entitlement to contributory benefit, as paid on the due date<sup>19</sup>.

If a person dies, any contributions which, immediately before his death, he was entitled (but not liable) to pay may be paid notwithstanding his death, subject to the time limits that would otherwise be applicable<sup>20</sup>.

2 See ibid reg 38(1), (2)(a). In the case of Class 2 or Class 3 contributions, this rule is extended to the end of the sixth year: reg 38(1A) (added by SI 1984/77). 49A. Recovery of contributions where income tax recovery provisions not applicable.

The following provisions have effect with respect to the recovery of (1) those Class 1, Class 1A, Class 1B and Class 2 contributions to which regulations under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 6 (see PARA 49) or para 7BZA (added by the National Insurance Contributions and Statutory Payments Act 2004 s 5(4)) do not apply; (2) interest or penalties payable under regulations made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 7A (Sch 1 paras 7A, 7B added by the Social Security Act 1998 s 56; Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 7A amended by the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 3 para 37, Sch 9 para 6); and (3) interest or penalties payable under regulations made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 7B (as added; amended by the Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 3 para 38, Sch 9 para 7, Sch 10 Pt I; and the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 76(1), (3), (4)) and to which regulations under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 7BZA do not apply: Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 s 4 (amended by the 2004 Act Sch 1 para 5, Sch 2 Pt 1).

1. In general

Proceedings may be brought for the recovery of the total amount of Class 1 or Class 1A contributions which an employer has become liable to pay on a particular date and any sum due by way of interest or penalty in respect of those contributions without distinguishing the amounts which the employer is liable to pay in respect of each employee and without specifying the employees in question; and for the purposes of proceedings brought in the magistrates' court<sup>1</sup> or in the county court<sup>2</sup> that total amount is one cause of action or one matter of complaint<sup>3</sup>. Nothing in the provision above prevents the bringing of separate proceedings for the recovery of each of the several amounts of Class 1 or Class 1A contributions which the employer is liable to pay<sup>4</sup>.

2 See PARA 49A.3.

3 Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 4 para 5(1).

4 Ibid Sch 4 para 5(2).

2. Recovery in magistrates' court

Any amount which (1) is due by way of contributions or by way of interest or penalty in respect of contributions, and (2) does not exceed the prescribed sum<sup>1</sup>, is, without prejudice to any other remedy, recoverable summarily as a civil debt in proceedings commenced in the name of an authorised officer<sup>2</sup>. All or any of the sums due from any one person in respect of contributions, or interest or penalties in respect of contributions, (being sums which are by law recoverable summarily) may be included in the same complaint, summons, order, warrant or other document required by law to be laid before justices or to be issued by justices, and every such document, as respects each such sum, is to be construed as a separate document and its invalidity as respects any one such sum does not affect its validity as respects any other such sum<sup>3</sup>. Proceedings in England and Wales may be brought (a) in the case of Class 2 contributions or interest or penalties in respect of such contributions, at any time before the end of the year following the tax year<sup>4</sup> in which the contributor becomes liable to pay the contributions, and (b) in any other case, not later than the first anniversary of the day on which the contributions became due<sup>5</sup>.

1 'The prescribed sum' means the sum for the time being specified in the Taxes Management Act 1970 s 65(1) (recovery of income tax, etc in magistrates' courts; see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(2) (Reissue) PARA 1821): Social Security Contributions (Transfer of Functions, etc) Act 1999 Sch 4 para 2(5).

2 Ibid Sch 4 para 2(1). 'Authorised officer' means an officer of the Commissioners of Inland Revenue authorised by them for the purposes of Sch 4: Sch 4 para 1.

3 Ibid Sch 4 para 2(2).

4 'Tax year' means the 12 months beginning with 6 April in any year: ibid Sch 4 para 2(5).

5 Ibid Sch 4 para 2(3).

3. Recovery in county court

Without prejudice to any other remedy, any sum which is due by way of contributions or by way of interest or penalty in respect of contributions may in England and Wales, be sued for and recovered from the person liable as a debt due to the Crown by proceedings in a county court commenced in the name of an authorised officer<sup>1</sup>. An authorised officer may conduct any such proceedings before a county court in England and Wales, although not a barrister or solicitor<sup>2</sup>.

50. Collection of Class 2 or Class 3 contributions.

Every person who becomes, or ceases to be, liable to pay a Class 2 contribution<sup>1</sup>, or becomes, or ceases to be entitled to pay such a contribution, or is entitled to pay a Class 3 contribution<sup>2</sup> and wishes to do so or to cease to do so must notify the relevant date in writing to the Secretary of State immediately<sup>3</sup>. Where a person has done so and the Secretary of State (within 14 days after the end of the contribution quarter<sup>4</sup> in question) has issued him with a written notice of the number of contribution weeks in that quarter, the weekly rate of contributions and the date specified as the date of notification, then (in the case of Class 2) the person is to pay to the Secretary of State the amount of contributions for which he is liable not later than 28 days after the specified date of notification<sup>5</sup>. Alternatively, the Secretary of State may, if he thinks fit and subject to such terms and conditions as he may impose, approve arrangements whereby contributions are to be paid at times or in a manner other than those prescribed above; in particular, where the person is likely to be liable as both an employed and a self-employed earner and his contributions from the former are likely to exceed the maximum for contribution payments the Secretary of State may, with a view to avoiding excess payment of contributions, make special arrangements with that person as to the manner or date of any or any further Class 2 contributions in respect of that year<sup>6</sup>.

2 As to Class 3 contributions see PARA 42 ante.

3 Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 53A (added by SI 1993/260). The old method was by the physical acquisition of contribution stamps and their affixation to a contribution card: see the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, regs 51-53 (revoked). Regulations made by the Secretary of State providing for the payment of Class 2 or Class 3 contributions (at the option of the persons liable to pay) either by means of adhesive stamps or by some alternative method, the use of which involves greater expense in administration to the government departments concerned than would be incurred if the contributions were paid by means of such stamps, may include provision for the payment to the Secretary of State by any person who adopts any alternative method, and for the recovery by the Secretary of State, of the prescribed fees in respect of any difference in the expense in administration: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 1(4), Sch 1 para 8(2). Where contributions are payable by means of adhesive stamps, the Secretary of State may, with the consent of the Treasury, arrange for the preparation and sale of those stamps, and may by regulations provide for applying, with the necessary modifications as respects those stamps, all or any of the provisions of the Stamp Duties Management Act 1891, the Stamp Act 1891 s 9 (as amended) and the Post Office Act 1953 s 63 (as amended): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 1 para 8(3).

4 'Contribution quarter' means one of the four periods of not less than 13 contribution weeks commencing with the first day of the first, fourteenth, twenty-seventh or fortieth contribution weeks in any year: see the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 54(8).

5 See ibid reg 54(1), (2) (reg 54 substituted by SI 1993/260). There are equivalent provisions in relation to Class 3 contributions in the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 54(1), (3) (as so substituted). Continuing notification is provided for in reg 54(4) (as so substituted). The written notice, in any case, is to be accompanied by a bank giro credit form in order that the payment may be made at a bank: reg 54(7) (as so substituted).

7 As to the qualifying benefits see the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 100(8).

8 See ibid reg 100(1). An election for one purpose is deemed to be an election also for the other purpose: see reg 100(2).

9 As to the reduced rate (3.85% at the date at which this volume states the law) see ibid reg 104 (as amended).

10 See ibid reg 100(3). No election may be made after 11 May 1977: reg 100(4). Duration of the election is set out in reg 101 (as amended); in particular, it ceases on cessation of marriage (other than by reason of the death of the husband), a cessation of qualifying widowhood, on the making of certain contributions and on the revocation of the election. Consequential provisions relating to women who have made the election are set out in regs 102-112.

3.

STOP PRESS:

The Child Benefit Act 2005 makes provision for and in connection with altering descriptions of persons in respect of whom a person may be entitled to child benefit. The Act received the royal assent on 24 March 2005 and came into force for the purpose of making regulations on that day. Subject to that, the Act comes into force on 10 April 2006.

Section 1 amends the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 141, 142 so as to make child benefit payable to a person who is responsible for a child or children who have not attained the age of 16 or a qualifying young person or persons who have not attained a prescribed age greater than 16 and satisfy further prescribed conditions. Corresponding provision is made in relation to Northern Ireland: 2005 Act s 2. Section 3, Schs 1, 2 deal with consequential amendments and repeals. Financial provision is provided for by s 4. Section 5 deals with extent, s 6 with commencement, and s 7 with short title.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(1) IN GENERAL/54. Description of contributory benefits.

54. Description of contributory benefits.

Recent legislation has made major changes to the structure of the principal contributory benefits. In April 1995 sickness benefit and invalidity benefit were abolished and replaced by incapacity benefit<sup>1</sup> and in October 1996 unemployment benefit was abolished and replaced by jobseeker's allowance<sup>2</sup>. While incapacity benefit remains a wholly contributory benefit and so dealt with under this heading, jobseeker's allowance became a hybrid; the initial entitlement is to contribution-based jobseeker's allowance which remains contributory, but on the expiry of that, the claimant's entitlement is to income-based jobseeker's allowance (that is, the income support rules applied to those required to be available for work), which is a means-tested benefit<sup>3</sup>. Jobseeker's allowance is therefore treated separately in this title<sup>4</sup>.

The contributory benefits under Part II of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992<sup>5</sup> are:

- 160 (1) incapacity benefit (short-term and long-term)<sup>6</sup>;
- 161 (2) maternity allowance (with increase for adult dependants)<sup>7</sup>;
- 162 (3) widow's benefit (comprising widow's payment, widowed mother's allowance with increase for child dependants and widow's pension)<sup>8</sup>;
- 163 (4) Category A retirement pension, payable to a person by virtue of his own contributions (with increase for adult and child dependants)<sup>9</sup>;
- 164 (5) Category B retirement pension, payable to a person by virtue of the contributions of a spouse (with increase for child dependants)<sup>10</sup>.

Retirement pensions are discussed elsewhere in this title<sup>11</sup>.

There is still, in addition, a benefit known as child's special allowance payable to mothers who did not qualify for widowed mother's allowance because they had been divorced from their former husbands before those husbands died, but this benefit was abolished as from 5 April 1987 and is only payable to a claimant already in receipt of it at that date<sup>12</sup>.

Within the scheme of the legislation, 'long-term benefits' means long-term incapacity benefit, widowed mother's allowance, widow's pension and a Category A or Category B retirement pension<sup>13</sup>; 'short-term benefits' means short-term incapacity benefit and maternity allowance<sup>14</sup>.

1 See the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 ss 1-4; the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 (Commencement) Order 1994, SI 1994/2926; and PARA 59 et seq post.

2 See the Jobseekers Act 1995 Pt I (ss 1-23); the Jobseekers Act 1995 (Commencement No 4) Order 1996, SI 1996/2208; and PARA 258 et seq post.

3 The other principal difference is that the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 operated by amending the sickness provisions in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, into which the law on incapacity benefit is inserted, whereas the Jobseekers Act 1995 itself contains the substantive law on the jobseeker's allowances and operates independently of the 1992 Act.

As to Category B retirement pensions see PARA 571 et seq post.

11 See generally para 561 et seq post. The provisions of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt II (as amended) are subject to the provisions of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 Pt III (ss 7-68) (as amended) (reduction in state scheme contributions and benefits for members of certified schemes: see PARA 877 et seq post): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 20(3) (amended by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 190, Sch 8 para 35).

12 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 56. A woman whose marriage has been terminated by divorce is entitled to a child's special allowance at the weekly rate specified in Sch 4 Pt I para 6 (as amended) if (1) the husband of that marriage is dead and satisfied the contribution condition for a child's special allowance specified in s 21(3), Sch 3 para 6; and (2) she is entitled to child benefit in respect of a child and either was so entitled immediately before that husband's death or in such circumstances as may be prescribed, he was then so entitled; and (3) either that husband had before his death been contributing at not less than the prescribed weekly rate to the cost of providing for that child or at the date of that husband's death she was entitled, under an order of a court, trust or agreement which she has taken reasonable steps to enforce, to receive (whether from that husband or from another person) payments in respect of that child at not less than that rate provided or procured by that husband: s 56(1). A child's special allowance is not payable to a woman for any period after her remarriage or for any period during which she and a man to whom she is not married are living together as husband and wife (as to which see PARA 83 post); and where a person is otherwise entitled to receive, in respect of a particular child, payment of an amount by way of a child's special allowance, that amount is not payable unless one of the specified conditions is satisfied: s 56(2), (3). Those conditions are that the beneficiary would be treated for the purposes of child benefit law as having the child living with him or that the requisite contributions are being made to the cost of providing for the child, and the latter condition is to be treated as satisfied if, but only if, such contributions are being made at a weekly rate not less than the amount of child's special allowance by the beneficiary or, where the beneficiary is one of two spouses residing together, by them together and (except in prescribed cases), the contributions are over and above those required for the purpose of satisfying s 143(1)(b) (see PARA 240 post): s 56(4), (5). A child's special allowance is not payable for any period after 5 April 1987 except to a woman who immediately before 6 April 1987 satisfied the conditions set out in heads (1)-(3) supra and was not barred from payment of the allowance for either of the reasons mentioned in s 56(2), and who has so continued since 6 April 1987: s 56(6). For the meaning of 'beneficiary' see PARA 21 note 2 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(1) IN GENERAL/55. Contribution conditions; in general.

55. Contribution conditions; in general.

Entitlement to the contributory benefits<sup>1</sup>, except for long-term incapacity benefit<sup>2</sup> and either short-term or long-term incapacity benefit for widows or widowers<sup>3</sup>, depends on the contribution conditions being satisfied, either by the claimant<sup>4</sup> or by some other person, according to the particular benefit<sup>5</sup>. The relevant contribution conditions are specified<sup>6</sup> in relation to each benefit<sup>7</sup>.

The class or classes of contribution<sup>8</sup> which are relevant<sup>9</sup> in relation to each of those benefits are as follows:

- 165 (1) short-term incapacity benefit<sup>10</sup>, Class 1 or 2;
- 166 (2) maternity allowance, Class 1 or 2;
- 167 (3) widow's payment, Class 1, 2 or 3;
- 168 (4) widowed mother's allowance, Class 1, 2 or 3;
- 169 (5) widow's pension, Class 1, 2 or 3;
- 170 (6) Category A retirement pension, Class 1, 2 or 3;
- 171 (7) Category B retirement pension, Class 1, 2 or 3;
- 172 (8) child's special allowance, Class 1, 2 or 3<sup>11</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'contributory benefit' see PARA 54 ante.

2 The condition for receiving this is the exhaustion of the entitlement to short-term incapacity benefit, which itself is contributory: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30A(5) (as added); and PARA 60 post.

The contribution conditions for contribution-based jobseeker's allowance are set out separately in the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 2, but using the same expressions and techniques: see PARA 266 post.

7 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 21(3). Special conditions apply for the satisfaction of contribution conditions for benefit, other than maternity allowance, in certain cases where a claim for short-term benefit or a widow's payment is, or has on a previous occasion been, made in the first or second year after that in which the contributor concerned first became liable for primary Class 1 or Class 2 contributions: see s 21(4), Sch 3 Pt II (paras 7-9) (as amended); and PARAS 61, 84 post. For the purposes of s 21(4), Sch 3 (as amended), (1) 'the contributor concerned', for the purposes of any contribution condition, means the person by whom the condition is to be satisfied; (2) 'a relevant class', in relation to any benefit, means a class of contributions specified in relation to that benefit in heads (1)-(8) in the text; (3) 'the earnings factor' means (a) where the year in question is 1987-88 or any subsequent tax year, in relation to a person, the aggregate of his earnings factors derived from all his earnings upon which primary Class 1 contributions have been paid or treated as paid and from his Class 2 and Class 3 contributions; and (b) where the year in question is any earlier tax year, in relation to a person's contributions of any class or classes, the aggregate of his earnings factors derived from all those contributions; (4) except in the expression 'benefit year', 'year' means a tax year: s 21(5). In Pt II (as amended) 'benefit year' means a period beginning with the first Sunday in January in any calendar year, and ending with the Saturday immediately preceding the first Sunday in January in the following calendar year; but for any prescribed purposes of Pt II (as amended), 'benefit year' may by regulations be made to mean such other period (whether or not a period of 12 months) as may be specified in the regulations: s 21(6). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made and none had effect as if so made. As to primary Class 1 contributions, Class 2 and Class 3 contributions see PARAS 34-42 ante; for the meaning of 'tax year' see PARA 9 note 6 ante; and as to earnings factors generally see PARA 56 post.

8 As to classes of contributions see PARA 31 ante.

9 Ie for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 21(1) (as amended: see note 5 supra).

10 Ie under ibid s 30A (as added): see PARA 60 post.

11 Ibid s 21(2) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 Sch 1 para 3; and the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(5), Sch 3). Like the previous unemployment benefit, contribution-based jobseeker's allowance remains the exception because it can only be claimed by a person who has paid the necessary Class 1 contributions, ie it can only be claimed by a person who contributed as an employee: see the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 2; and PARA 266 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(1) IN GENERAL/56. Earnings factors.

56. Earnings factors.

For the purposes of establishing, by reference to the satisfaction of contribution conditions<sup>1</sup>, entitlement to a contribution-based jobseeker's allowance<sup>2</sup> or to any specified contributory benefit<sup>3</sup> other than maternity allowance<sup>4</sup> or of calculating the additional pension<sup>5</sup> in the rate of a long-term benefit<sup>6</sup>, a person is to be treated as having annual earnings<sup>7</sup> factors derived:

- 173 (1) in the case of 1987-88 or any subsequent tax year<sup>8</sup>, from those of his earnings upon which primary Class 1 contributions<sup>9</sup> have been paid or treated as paid and from Class 2 or Class 3 contributions<sup>10</sup>; and
- 174 (2) in the case of any earlier tax year, from his contributions of any of Classes 1, 2 and 3<sup>11</sup>.

Earnings factors so derived, including those factors as increased by any revaluation order<sup>12</sup>, are to be expressed as whole numbers of pounds sterling<sup>13</sup> and are to be made ascertainable from tables or rules to be drawn up by the Secretary of State<sup>14</sup> and embodied in regulations<sup>15</sup>.

No earnings factor is to be derived from earnings on which primary Class 1 contributions are paid at the reduced rate<sup>16</sup>.

Regulations may provide for crediting earnings or Class 2 or Class 3 contributions for 1987-88 or any subsequent tax year, or contributions of any class for any earlier tax year, for the purpose of bringing a person's earnings factor for that tax year to a figure which will enable him to satisfy contribution conditions of entitlement to a contribution-based jobseeker's allowance or to any prescribed description of benefit (whether his own entitlement or another person's)<sup>17</sup>. Regulations may also impose limits with respect to the earnings factors which a person may have or be treated as having in respect of any one tax year<sup>18</sup>.

The Secretary of State must in each tax year review the general level of earnings obtaining in Great Britain<sup>19</sup> and any changes in that level which have taken place since the end of the period taken into account for the last such review, for the purpose of securing that earnings factors which are relevant:

- 175 (a) to the calculation of the additional pension in the rate of any long-term benefit or of any guaranteed minimum pension; or
- 176 (b) to any other calculation required under the provisions of the Pension Schemes Act 1993 relating to contracting out<sup>20</sup>, maintain their value in relation to the general level of earnings obtaining in Great Britain; and for the purposes of any such review the Secretary of State must estimate the general level of earnings in such manner as he thinks fit<sup>21</sup>. If on any such review the Secretary of State concludes, having regard to earlier orders made under these provisions, that earnings factors for any previous tax year (not being earlier than 1978-79) have not, during the period taken into account for that review, maintained their value in relation to the general level of earnings, he must make an order directing that, for the purposes of any such calculation as is mentioned in heads (a) and (b) above, the earnings factors for the tax year in question are to be increased by such percentage of their amount, apart from earlier orders, as the Secretary of State thinks necessary to make up that fall in their value, during the period taken into account for the review together with other falls in their value which had been made up by such earlier orders<sup>22</sup>.

He is not, however, required to direct any increase where it appears to him that the increase would be inconsiderable<sup>23</sup>.

If on any such review the Secretary of State determines that he is not required to make an order, he must instead lay before each House of Parliament a report explaining his reasons for arriving at that determination<sup>24</sup>.

11 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(1), (2) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), Sch 2 para 22). Separate earnings factors may be derived for 1987-88 and subsequent tax years (1) from earnings upon which primary Class 1 contributions have been paid or treated as paid; (2) from earnings which have been credited; (3) from contributions of different classes paid or credited in the same tax year; (4) by any combination of heads (1)-(3) supra; and may be derived for any earlier tax year from contributions of different classes paid or credited in the same tax year, and from contributions which have actually been paid, as opposed to those not paid but credited: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(3).

13 Earnings factors in respect of the tax year 1978-79 or any subsequent tax year which have been revalued for the purpose of calculating guaranteed minimum pensions under the Pension Schemes Act 1993 or the Social Security Pensions Act 1975 (largely repealed) are not, however, required to be expressed as whole numbers of pounds: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 23(2) (amended by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 190, Sch 8 para 36).

14 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

15 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 23(1) (amended by the Pensions Act 1995 s 134(1)). The tables and rules referred to in the text must be drawn up so that, in general (1) in respect of the tax year 1987-88 and any subsequent tax year, the amount of earnings upon which primary Class 1 contributions have been paid or treated as paid gives rise to an earnings factor for that year equal or approximating to the amount of those earnings; and (2) any number of Class 2 or Class 3 contributions in respect of a tax year gives rise to an earnings factor for that tax year equal or approximating to that year's lower earnings limit for Class 1 contributions multiplied by the number of contributions: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 23(3). The Secretary of State may by regulations make such modifications of head (1) supra as appear to him to be appropriate in consequence of s 8(2) (as amended) (primary percentages: see PARA 36 ante): s 23(4). At the date at which this volume states the law, no regulations had been made for these purposes, but, by virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(2), the Social Security (Earnings Factor) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/676 (as amended), partly have effect as if so made.

17 Ibid s 22(5) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 Sch 2 para 22). The power to amend regulations made before 30 March 1977 (date of the passing of the Social Security (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1977) under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(5) (as so amended) may be so exercised as to restrict the circumstances in which and the purposes for which a person is entitled to credits in respect of weeks before the coming into force of the amending regulations; but not so as to affect any benefit for a period before the coming into force of the amending regulations if it was claimed before 18 March 1977: s 22(7). The following regulations partly have effect, by virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(2), as if made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(5): (1) the Social Security (Credits) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/556 (as amended); (2) the Social Security (Married Women and Widows) (Amendment and Transitional Provisions) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/562 (as amended); (3) the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591 (as amended). In addition, by virtue of predecessor provisions and of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(2), the Social Security (Benefit) (Married Women and Widows Special Provisions) Regulations 1974, SI 1974/2010 (as amended) partly have effect as if so made.

UPDATE

56 Earnings factors

TEXT AND NOTES 1-18--The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 23A (see PARA 565A) makes provision for the crediting of Class 3 contributions for the purpose of determining entitlement to the benefits to which s 23A applies: s 22(5A) (added by Pensions Act 2007 Sch 1 para 9).

TEXT AND NOTES 1-11--For the purpose of calculating the additional pension in the rate of a long-term benefit, in the case of the first appointed year or any subsequent tax year a person's earnings factor is treated as derived only from so much of his earnings as did not exceed the applicable limit and on which primary Class 1 contributions have been paid or treated as paid: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(2A) (added by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 30(1); and amended by the National Insurance Contributions Act 2002 Sch 1 para 7(2), with effect in relation to the tax year 2003-04 and subsequent tax years (s 8(2)); further amended by Pensions Act 2007 s 12(1)(a)). 'First appointed year' means such tax year, no earlier than 2002-03, as may be appointed by order: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1) (amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 35(14)). The tax year 2002-03 has been appointed as the first appointed year: SI 2001/208. 'The applicable limit' means (1) in relation to a tax year before 2009-10, the upper earnings limit; (2) in relation to 2009-10 or any subsequent tax year, the upper accrual point: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(2B) (added by Pensions Act 2007 s 12(1)(b); and amended by the National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 s 3(2)). The 1992 Act s 22(2A) does not affect the operation of ss 44A and 44B (deemed earnings factors: see PARA 569): s 22(2A) (amended by Pensions Act 2007 Sch 1 para 33). References in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 or any other Act to earnings factors derived from so much of a person's earnings as do not exceed the upper accrual point or the upper earnings limit are to be read, in relation to earners paid otherwise than weekly, as references to earnings factors derived from so much of those earnings as do not exceed the prescribed equivalent: s 22(9) (added by the National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 Sch 1 para 2).

TEXT AND NOTE 3--Or entitlement to a contributory employment and support allowance: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(2) (amended by Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(3)(a)). In the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22, 'contributory employment and support allowance' means a contributory allowance under the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(8) (added by Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(4)).

TEXT AND NOTE 9--For 'those of his earnings' read 'so much of his earnings as did not exceed the upper earnings limit and': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(1) (amended by the 2002 Act Sch 1 para 7(2)).

NOTE 11--Head (1) now refers to earnings not exceeding the upper earnings limit: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(3) (amended by the 2002 Act Sch 1 para 7(3)).

NOTE 15--Head (1) now refers to the amount of earnings not exceeding the upper earnings limit: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 23(3) (amended by the 2002 Act Sch 1 para 8). In relation to 2009-10 and subsequent tax years, head (1) has effect, for the purposes specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(2)(b), as if the reference to the upper earnings limit were to the upper accrual point: s 23(3A) (added by the National Insurance Contributions Act 2008 Sch 1 para 3(3)). SI 1979/676 further amended: SI 2003/608.

TEXT AND NOTE 16--For 'on which' read 'in respect of which': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 22(4) (amended by the Social Security Act 1998 Sch 7 para 61).

TEXT AND NOTE 17--Refers also to entitlement to a contributory employment and support allowance (see PARA 75A): 1992 Act s 22(5) (amended by Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(3)(b)).

NOTE 17--Head (1) SI 1975/556 further amended: SI 1999/568, SI 2000/1483, SI 2000/3120, SI 2001/518, SI 2001/573, SI 2001/1711, SI 2003/521, SI 2005/2877, SI 2007/1749, SI 2007/2582, SI 2008/1554, SI 2009/2206, SI 2010/385, SI 2010/424. SI 1974/2010 further amended: SI 2005/2877, SI 2008/1554.

Regulations may provide for requiring persons to maintain, in such form and manner as may be prescribed<sup>1</sup>, records of such earnings<sup>2</sup> paid by them as are relevant for the purpose of calculating earnings factors<sup>3</sup>, and to retain such records for so long as may be prescribed<sup>4</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State<sup>5</sup> is satisfied that records of earnings relevant for the purposes of calculating a person's earnings factors for the tax year<sup>6</sup> 1987-88 or any subsequent tax year have not been maintained or retained, or are otherwise unobtainable, then for the purpose of determining those earnings factors he may:

- 177 (1) compute, in such manner as he thinks fit, an amount which is to be regarded as the amount of that person's earnings on which primary Class 1 contributions<sup>7</sup> have been paid or treated as paid; or
- 178 (2) take the amount of those earnings to be such sum as he may specify in the particular case<sup>8</sup>.

With regard to official records, it is provided that a certificate signed by a duly authorised officer of the Department of Social Security, as to the manner in which any contributions paid or treated as having been paid or as not repaid have been, or are to be, recorded in the records of the department is to be sufficient evidence of the facts so certified; any document purporting to be so signed is to be deemed to be so signed unless the contrary is proved<sup>9</sup>.

58. Failure to satisfy contribution conditions; contributions paid in error.

Where the first contribution condition is satisfied but not the second<sup>1</sup>, a person may still be eligible for a widowed mother's allowance, a widow's pension, or a Category A or Category B retirement pension, but at a reduced rate<sup>2</sup>. Where, however, an employed earner dies as a result of an industrial accident or disease, his widow may still be entitled to a widow's payment, widowed mother's allowance, widow's pension or Category B retirement pension, even though he did not satisfy the contribution conditions<sup>3</sup>.

There is a power for the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> to provide that any primary Class 1 contributions<sup>5</sup> paid in error (because the individual was not an employed earner) are to entitle the individual to an additional pension<sup>6</sup> for the purposes of Category A or B retirement pension, widowed mother's allowance, widow's pension or incapacity benefit<sup>7</sup>.

1 The relevant contribution conditions are those set out in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 21(3), Sch 3 para 5 (as amended): see PARA 565 post.

2 See the Social Security (Widow's Benefit and Retirement Pensions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/642, reg 6(1) (substituted by SI 1990/2642). The basic rule is that the benefit is reduced to the percentage of actual qualifying years in relation to the requisite number of years specified for that person's working life in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 5 (as amended), subject to a minimum of 25%. ## (2) INCAPACITY BENEFIT

(i) In general

59. Introduction.

Prior to 1994 an employee becoming incapable of work was entitled to statutory sick pay for the first 28 weeks, paid through the employer, whereas a person not so entitled could claim sickness benefit directly from the Department of Social Security, again for a maximum of 28 weeks<sup>1</sup>. If either entitlement was exhausted, the person could then claim invalidity benefit, which was the principal benefit for the long-term sick<sup>2</sup>. This system was radically changed, as from 13 April 1995, by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994. The statutory sick pay scheme remains as before, but sickness and invalidity benefits were abolished<sup>3</sup> and replaced by incapacity benefit, payable at three levels: lower rate short-term benefit for the first 28 weeks, higher rate short-term benefit for the remainder of the first year, and long-term benefit into the future, with additions for age and dependants<sup>4</sup>.

Equally radical was the complete change in the manner of establishing incapacity for work. Previously, this was a question of fact, taking into account the claimant's actual ability to undertake work that he could reasonably be expected to do, but that link with actual ability to work has now been broken; such ability is only relevant while the 'own occupation' test is applicable<sup>5</sup>, which is normally for the first 28 weeks, but thereafter the claimant is subject to the 'all work' test<sup>6</sup>, which is based on a series of work-related functions and a medical assessment of whether the claimant can perform them; they are scored on a points system and continued qualification for the benefit depends on scoring the requisite number of points, not on actual ability or inability to do any particular work<sup>7</sup>.

These new tests for incapacity for work apply wherever that factor is relevant under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992<sup>8</sup> (except in relation to statutory sick pay or the industrial injuries scheme)<sup>9</sup>. However, they are principally of importance in relation to incapacity benefit and so are considered in that context.

The Secretary of State<sup>10</sup> was given power by regulations to make such provision as appeared to him to be necessary or expedient for the purposes of, or in connection with, the transition to incapacity benefit from sickness benefit and invalidity benefit<sup>11</sup>, including in particular provision for transitional awards of incapacity benefit where a person was entitled to sickness benefit or invalidity benefit immediately before 18 November 1994<sup>12</sup>. For the period of four years from 5 July 1994 a statutory instrument which contains, whether alone or with other provisions, any such regulations may not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House<sup>13</sup>.

The Secretary of State also has a general power to make transitional and consequential provision relating to incapacity benefit<sup>14</sup>.

1 As to statutory sick pay see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 498 et seq. Sickness benefit was governed by the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 31, 32 (repealed).

2 Invalidity benefit was governed by ibid ss 33, 34 (repealed).

3 See the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11, Sch 1 para 7, Sch 2.

- 4 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 30A-30E (as added); and PARA 60 et seq post. Transitional provisions were contained in the Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) (Consequential and Transitional Amendments and Savings) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/829; and the Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) (Transitional) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/310 (as amended).

- 9 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171G(1) (added by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 6(1)); and PARA 65 post.
- 10 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.
- 11 See the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 4(1). The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 175(2)-(4) (as amended) (see PARA 30 ante) applies in relation to this power as it applies in relation to a power conferred by that Act to make regulations: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 4(11).
- 12 See ibid s 4(3). For details of the provision that may be made by such regulations see s 4(2), (4)-(10). The Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) (Transitional) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/310 (as amended), partly have effect as if so made.
- 13 Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 4(12). A statutory instrument which contains (whether alone or with other provisions) any regulations made under s 4 and which is not subject to any requirement that a draft of the instrument be laid before and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament, is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 4(13).
- 14 See ibid s 12. This power is not exercisable in respect of any matter for which provision may be made under s 4 or s 7 (power to provide for the transition to new test of incapacity for work): s 12(2). As to the provision so made see 40 Halsbury's Statutes (1997 Reissue) 806.

59-75 Incapacity Benefit

The Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) makes provision for the employment and support allowance which replaces incapacity benefit and income support on grounds of incapacity for work or disability. Accordingly, as from a day to be appointed, the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 30A-30E (incapacity benefit) and ss 171A-171G (incapacity for work) are repealed: 2007 Act Sch 3 para 9(5), (12), Sch 8. A person is entitled<sup>1</sup> to short-term incapacity benefit in respect of any day of incapacity for work which forms part of a period of incapacity for work<sup>2</sup>, if he satisfies either of the following conditions:

- 179 (1) he is under pensionable age<sup>3</sup> on the day in question and satisfies the relevant contribution conditions<sup>4</sup> for short-term incapacity benefit<sup>5</sup>; or
- 180 (2) he is over pensionable age on that day (but not more than five years over), the period of incapacity for work began before he attained pensionable age, and:
  - 9 12. (a) he would be entitled to a Category A retirement pension<sup>6</sup> if his entitlement had not been deferred or if he had not made an election to defer entitlement<sup>7</sup>; or
  13. (b) he would be entitled to a Category B retirement pension<sup>8</sup> by virtue of the contribution of his deceased spouse, but for any such deferment or election<sup>9</sup>.

Provision is made concerning (1) additional conditions for persons incapacitated in youth (Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2946, regs 14-19 (added by SI 2000/3120; SI 1994/2946 reg 15 amended by SI 2001/1305; SI 1994/2946 reg 16 amended by SI 2005/2877, SI 2006/2378; SI 1994/2946 reg 18 amended by SI 2001/1305, SI 2002/2311; SI 1994/2946 reg 19 amended by SI 2002/491)); and (2) the reduction or abatement of incapacity benefit for occupational or other pension payments (SI 1994/2946 regs 20-26) (added by SI 2000/3120; and amended by SI 2006/1069; SI 1994/2946 reg 21 further amended: SI 2008/2365; SI 1994/2946 reg 20A added: SI 2009/792).

60 Entitlement to incapacity benefit

TEXT AND NOTES--1992 Act s 30A is modified in respect of persons who have been members of Her Majesty's forces: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (Modifications for Her Majesty's Forces and Incapacity Benefit) Regulations 2003, SI 2003/737, reg 2.

TEXT AND NOTE 2--For 'any day of incapacity for work' read 'the relevant day': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30A(1) (amended by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 64(1)).

TEXT AND NOTE 3--For 'either of the following conditions' read 'either of the following conditions or, if he satisfies neither of those conditions, each of the conditions mentioned in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30A(2A)': s 30A(1), (2) (s 30A(1) as amended (see TEXT AND NOTE 2); s 30A(2) amended by the 1999 Act s 64(2)(a)). The conditions mentioned in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30A(2A) are that (1) he is aged 16 or over on the relevant day; (2) he is under the age of 20 or, in prescribed cases, 25 on a day which forms part of the period of incapacity for work; (3) he was incapable of work throughout a period of 196 consecutive days immediately preceding the relevant day, or an earlier day in the period of incapacity for work on which he was aged 16 or over; (4) on the relevant day he satisfies the prescribed conditions as to residence in Great Britain, or as to presence there; and (5) he is not, on that day, a person who is receiving full-time education: s 30A(2A) (amended by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 64(3)). Regulations may provide that persons who have previously been entitled to incapacity benefit will, in prescribed circumstances, be entitled to short-term incapacity benefit under the extended principle outlined above notwithstanding that they do not satisfy the condition set out in head (2), while regulations may prescribe the circumstances in which a person is or is not to be treated as receiving full-time education for the purposes of head (5): Social Security Contributions and Benefits 1992 s 30A(6), (7) (added by the 1999 Act s 64(5)).

TEXT AND NOTE 4--In head (1) for 'the day in question' read 'the relevant day': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30A(2)(a) (amended by the 1999 Act s 64(2)(b)).

TEXT AND NOTE 9--In the 1992 Act s 30A(2)(b) after 'spouse' add 'or deceased civil partner': Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 14.

61. Contribution conditions.

The contribution conditions<sup>1</sup> for short-term incapacity benefit<sup>2</sup> comprise two requirements<sup>3</sup>. The first is that (1) the claimant<sup>4</sup> must have actually paid contributions of a relevant class<sup>5</sup> in respect of any one year, and those contributions must have been paid before the relevant time<sup>6</sup>; and (2) the earnings factor<sup>7</sup> so derived must be not less than that year's lower earnings limit<sup>8</sup> multiplied by 25<sup>9</sup>. The second is that (a) the claimant must, in respect of the last two complete years before the beginning of the relevant benefit year<sup>10</sup>, have either paid or been credited with contributions of a relevant class, or been credited (in the case of 1987-88 or any subsequent year) with earnings<sup>11</sup>; and (b) the earnings factor so derived must be not less in each of those years than the year's lower earnings limit multiplied by 50<sup>12</sup>.

As either Class 1 or Class 2 contributions are relevant for these purposes<sup>13</sup> the benefit can be claimed by the employed and by the self-employed<sup>14</sup>.

1 As to contribution conditions generally see PARA 55 ante.

2 As to short-term incapacity benefit generally see PARA 60 ante.

3 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 21(3), Sch 3 para 2(1) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 1(2)).

4 For the meaning of 'claimant' see PARA 19 note 5 ante.

5 As to the relevant class of contributions see PARA 55 ante.

6 For these purposes, 'the relevant time' is the day in respect of which benefit is claimed: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 2(6)(a). For the meaning of 'benefit' see PARA 13 note 8 ante.

7 For the meaning of 'earnings' see PARA 33 ante; and for the meaning of 'earnings factor' see PARA 56 ante. The earnings factor for this purpose is that which is derived (1) if the year in question is 1987-88 or any subsequent year, from earnings upon which primary Class 1 contributions have been paid or treated as paid or from Class 2 Contributions; and (2) if the year in question is an earlier year, from the contributions paid as mentioned in head (1) in the text: ibid Sch 3 para 2(4). As to primary Class 1 contributions and Class 2 contributions see PARAS 34-36, 40-41 ante.

8 For the meaning of 'lower earnings limit' see PARA 34 ante.

9 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 2(2). Where a person claims short-term incapacity benefit, he is taken to satisfy the first contribution condition for the benefit if on a previous claim for any short-term benefit he has satisfied the first contribution condition for that benefit, by virtue of the Social Security Act 1975 s 13(6), (8), Sch 3 para 8 (repealed), with contributions of a class relevant to short-term incapacity benefit: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 21(4), Sch 3 para 8 (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11(1), Sch 1 para 38(1), (4)).

10 The 'relevant benefit year' is the benefit year in which there falls the beginning of the period of incapacity for work which includes the relevant time (as to which see note 6 supra): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 2(6)(b) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 Sch 1 para 38(1), (2)).

11 As to provision for crediting a person with earnings see PARA 56 ante.

12 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 2(3). The earnings factor for this purpose is that which is derived (1) if the year in question is 1987-88 or any subsequent year, from earnings upon which primary Class 1 contributions have been paid or treated as paid or from earnings credited, or from Class 2 contributions; and (2) if the year in question is an earlier year, from the contributions referred to in head (a) in the text: Sch 3 para 2(5). Where a person makes a claim for incapacity benefit and does not satisfy this second contribution condition and, in a later benefit year in which he would satisfy that condition had no such claim been made, he makes a further claim, the previous claim is to be disregarded: Sch 3 para 2(7) (added by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 3(2)). For the meaning of 'benefit year' see PARA 55 note 7 ante.

13 See PARA 55 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) INCAPACITY BENEFIT/(i) In general/62. Levels and rates of incapacity benefit.

62. Levels and rates of incapacity benefit.

Short-term incapacity benefit<sup>1</sup> is payable at two rates, at the lower rate for the first 196 days of entitlement in any period of incapacity for work<sup>2</sup> and at the higher rate for the remainder of the 364 day maximum period<sup>3</sup>. These rates are fixed by legislation<sup>4</sup>, as is the rate for long-term incapacity benefit, which is set at a higher level than the short-term rates<sup>5</sup>. These benefit rates are subject to annual up-rating<sup>6</sup>; they are expressed as weekly rates, the daily rate being one seventh of the appropriate weekly rate<sup>7</sup>.

In the case of a person who has been entitled to short-term incapacity benefit for 196 days or more in any period of incapacity for work and who is either terminally ill<sup>8</sup> or entitled to the highest rate of the care component of disability living allowance<sup>9</sup>, the weekly rate of short-term incapacity benefit payable is to be equal to the rate at which long-term incapacity benefit would be payable to him if he were entitled to it, if this is greater than the rate otherwise payable<sup>10</sup> to him<sup>11</sup>. The benefit is, however, still referred to as higher rate short-term benefit for the appropriate period<sup>12</sup>.

Regulations may provide that if a person is, on the qualifying date<sup>13</sup> in relation to a period of incapacity for work, under such age as may be prescribed, the rate of long-term incapacity benefit payable to him in respect of any day in that period is to be increased by such amount as may be prescribed<sup>14</sup>. The rate of long-term benefit is thus increased by a prescribed amount if on the qualifying date the claimant was under the age of 35, and by a lower amount if on that date he had attained the age of 35 but was under the age of 45<sup>15</sup>.

In addition, the weekly rates of short-term and long-term benefit are increased by a prescribed amount where the claimant has an adult dependant<sup>16</sup>, unless that dependant has earnings exceeding the amount of the increase (in the case of short-term lower rate benefit) or an amount equivalent to the rate of the old unemployment benefit (in the case of short-term higher rate benefit or long-term benefit)<sup>17</sup>. Likewise, there is an addition of a prescribed amount for each dependent child<sup>18</sup>, unless the claimant's partner has earnings in excess of set limits<sup>19</sup>; the general rule is that a child is a dependant if the beneficiary is entitled to child benefit in relation to him<sup>20</sup>, but there are prescribed circumstances in which a person not so entitled is to be treated as entitled, and vice versa<sup>21</sup>.

A recipient of incapacity benefit is permitted to act as a local councillor, but if his councillor's allowance exceeds a prescribed amount, the excess is deducted from the amount of the benefit<sup>22</sup>.

1 As to short-term incapacity benefit see PARA 60 ante.

2 As to periods of incapacity for work see PARA 63 post.

3 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30B(2) (s 30B added by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 2(1)). In the case of a person over pensionable age, the rate of short-term incapacity benefit is that at which the relevant retirement pension would have been payable, disregarding: (1) any increase for married people under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 51A(2) (as added) (see PARA 577 post) or for deferred retirement under s 55 (as substituted), Sch 5 (as amended) (see PARA 585 post); (2) any increase (for dependants) under ss 80, 83 or 85 (as amended) (see PARAS 590-591, 594 post) (or, with effect from 6 April 2010, under ss 80, 83A or 85 (as amended and added)); and (3) any increase (for Category A or Category B pensioners) under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150 (as amended) (annual up-rating; see PARA 17 ante) of the sums mentioned in s 150(1)(e) (as amended): Social Security

11 Ibid s 30B(4) (as added: see note 3 supra).

12 References to short-term incapacity benefit at the higher rate must be construed as including short-term incapacity benefit payable to any person who has been entitled to that benefit for 196 days or more in a period of incapacity for work, notwithstanding that the rate of benefit is determined in accordance with ibid s 30B(3) or (4) (as added: see note 3 supra): s 30B(5) (as so added).

13 'The qualifying date' means the first day of the period of incapacity for work or such earlier day as may be prescribed: ibid s 30B(7) (as added: see note 3 supra). For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 19 note 3 ante. 20 See ibid s 80(1) (as amended); and PARA 122 post. Maintenance of a child not living with the beneficiary is governed by s 81: see PARA 122 post. For the meaning of 'beneficiary' see PARA 21 note 2 ante.

21 See the Social Security (Incapacity Benefit Increases for Dependants) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2945, regs 6, 7.

22 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30(E) (added by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 3(1)). Where the net amount of councillor's allowance to which a person is entitled in respect of any week exceeds such amount as may be prescribed, an amount equal to the excess must be deducted from the amount of any incapacity benefit to which he is entitled in respect of that week, and only the balance remaining (if any) is payable: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30E(1) (as so added). For these purposes, 'councillor's allowance' means, in England or Wales, an allowance under or by virtue of the Local Government Act 1972 ss 173 or 177 (both as amended) or under or by virtue of a scheme made by virtue of the Local Government and Housing Act 1989 s 18 (as amended), other than such an allowance as is mentioned in the Local Government Act 1972 section 173(4) (as amended); and where any such allowance is paid otherwise than weekly, an amount calculated or estimated in accordance with regulations must be regarded as the weekly amount of the allowance: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s

30E(2) (as so added). 'Net amount', in relation to any councillor's allowance to which a person is entitled, means the aggregate amount of the councillor's allowance or allowances to which he is entitled for the week in question, reduced by the amount of any expenses incurred by him in that week in connection with his membership of the council or councils in question: s 30E(3) (as so added). ## UPDATE

The Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) makes provision for the employment and support allowance which replaces incapacity benefit and income support on grounds of incapacity for work or disability. Accordingly, as from a day to be appointed, the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 30A-30E (incapacity benefit) and ss 171A-171G (incapacity for work) are repealed: 2007 Act Sch 3 para 9(5), (12), Sch 8. As to employment and support allowance see PARA 75A.

Provision is made concerning (1) additional conditions for persons incapacitated in youth (Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2946, regs 14-19 (added by SI 2000/3120; SI 1994/2946 reg 15 amended by SI 2001/1305; SI 1994/2946 reg 16 amended by SI 2005/2877, SI 2006/2378; SI 1994/2946 reg 18 amended by SI 2001/1305, SI 2002/2311; SI 1994/2946 reg 19 amended by SI 2002/491)); and (2) the reduction or abatement of incapacity benefit for occupational or other pension payments (SI 1994/2946 regs 20-26) (added by SI 2000/3120; and amended by SI 2006/1069; SI 1994/2946 reg 21 further amended: SI 2008/2365; SI 1994/2946 reg 20A added: SI 2009/792).

62 Levels and rates of incapacity benefit

TEXT AND NOTES--Where (1) a person is entitled to incapacity benefit in respect of any period of a week or part of a week; (2) a pension payment, a PPF periodic payment, or any combination of them, is payable to him in respect of that period (or a period which forms part of that period or includes that period or part of it); and (3) the amount of that payment or payments (or, as the case may be, the amount which in accordance with regulations is to be taken as payable to him by way of pension payments or PPF periodic payments in respect of that period) exceeds the threshold, the amount of that benefit will be reduced by an amount equal to 50 per cent of that excess: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30DD(1) (s 30DD added by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 63; s 30DD(1) substituted by SI 2006/343). 'PPF periodic payments' means (1) any periodic compensation payments made in relation to a person, payable under the pension compensation provisions specified in the Pensions Act 2004 s 162(2), or (2) any periodic payments made in relation to a person payable under s 166: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1) (definition added by SI 2006/343).

In this context, 'the threshold' means (a) if the period in question is a week, £85 or such greater amount as may be prescribed; or (b) if that period is not a week, such proportion of the amount mentioned in head (a) as falls to be calculated in accordance with regulations on such basis as may be prescribed: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30DD(2) (as added). Regulations may secure that a person of any prescribed description does not suffer any reduction under s 30DD(1) in any amount of incapacity benefit to which he is entitled: s 30DD(3) (as added). Regulations may provide (i) for sums of any specified description to be disregarded for the purposes of s 30DD; (ii) for sums of any specified description to be treated for those purposes as payable to persons as pension payments or PPF periodic payments (including, in particular, sums in relation to which there is a deferred right of receipt); (iii) for the aggregation of sums of any specified description which are payable as pension payments or PPF periodic payments (or treated as being so payable) in respect of the same or different periods; (iv) for such sums or aggregate sums to be apportioned between or otherwise allocated to periods in respect of which persons are entitled to incapacity benefit: s 30DD(4) (as added; further amended by SI 2006/343). In this context, 'pension payment' means (A) a periodical payment made in relation to a person under a personal pension scheme or, in connection with the coming to an end of an employment of his, under an occupational pension scheme or a public service pension scheme; (B) a payment of any specified description, being a payment made under an insurance policy providing benefits in connection with physical or mental illness, disability, infirmity or defect; or (C) a payment of any other specified description; and 'specified' means prescribed by or determined in accordance with regulations under s 30DD: s 30DD(5) (as added). For the purposes of s 30DD(5), 'personal pension scheme', 'occupational pension scheme' and 'public service pension scheme' each have the meaning given by the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 1 (see PARAS 710, 741, 874 respectively), except that 'personal pension scheme' includes a contract or trust scheme approved under the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 Pt XIV Ch III (ss 618-629) (retirement annuities: see PARA 677 et seq): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30DD(6) (as added).

TEXT AND NOTES 1-14--Ibid s 30B has effect subject to s 30DD (see TEXT AND NOTES) and s 30E: s 30B(8) (added by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 8 para 22).

NOTE 3--Head (1) now refers to married people or civil partners: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30B(3) (amended by the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 15).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) INCAPACITY BENEFIT/(i) In general/63. Days and periods of incapacity for work.

63. Days and periods of incapacity for work.

A day of incapacity for work means<sup>1</sup> a day on which a person is incapable of work<sup>2</sup>. In the case of the night worker whose shift extends over midnight, the day on which the lesser part of the shift falls is treated as a day of incapacity for work if he was incapable for the remainder of that day<sup>3</sup>. Regulations may make provision as to the days which are or are not to be treated as days of incapacity for work for the purposes of the provisions relating to incapacity benefit<sup>4</sup>.

A period of incapacity for work means a period of four or more consecutive days, each of which is a day of incapacity for work<sup>5</sup>. Where any two such periods are not separated by a period of more than eight weeks<sup>6</sup> they are 'linked', that is, they are treated as one period of incapacity for work<sup>7</sup>. The Secretary of State<sup>8</sup> may provide by regulations that these provisions are to have effect as if the reference to four consecutive days were to such lesser number of days, whether consecutive or not, within such period of consecutive days as may be prescribed<sup>9</sup> and as if for the reference to eight weeks there were substituted a reference to such larger number of weeks as may be prescribed<sup>10</sup>.

Where:

- 181 (1) a person who is engaged and normally engaged in remunerative work ceases to be so engaged; and
- 182 (2) he is entitled<sup>11</sup> to a disability working allowance<sup>12</sup> for the week in which there falls the last day on which he is so engaged; and
- 183 (3) he qualified for a disability working allowance for that week by virtue of the higher rate of short-term incapacity benefit<sup>13</sup>, or long-term incapacity benefit<sup>14</sup>, having been payable to him; and
- 184 (4) the first day after he ceases to be engaged in remunerative work is for him a day of incapacity for work and falls not later than the end of the period of two years beginning with the last day for which he was entitled to such benefit, any day since that day which fell within a week for which he was entitled to a disability working allowance must be treated for the purposes of any claim<sup>15</sup> for such benefit for a period commencing after he ceases to be engaged in remunerative work as having been a day of incapacity for work<sup>16</sup>. Similarly, where a person becomes engaged in training for work<sup>17</sup>, he was entitled to the higher rate of short-term incapacity benefit, or to long-term incapacity benefit for one or more of the 56 days immediately before he became so engaged, and the first day after he ceases to be so engaged is for him a day of incapacity for work and falls not later than the end of the period of two years beginning with the last day for which he was entitled to such benefit, any day since that day in which he was engaged in training for work must be treated for the purposes of any claim for such benefit for a period commencing after he ceases to be so engaged as having been a day of incapacity for work<sup>18</sup>. The linking period is thus increased to two years in such cases.

1    le for the purposes of any provisions of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 relating to incapacity benefit, subject to the provisions of s 30C (as added) and save as otherwise expressly provided: see s 30C(1) (s 30C added by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 3(1)).

2    Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1)(a) (as added: see note 1 supra). Incapacity for work is now determined for these purposes by the 'own occupation' and 'all work' tests: see PARA 65 et seq post.

Any day which falls within the maternity allowance period (as defined in s 35(2) (see PARA 78 post) is treated as a day of incapacity for work, unless the woman is disqualified for receiving a maternity allowance for that day by virtue of regulations under s 35(3)(a) (see PARA 79 post): s 30C(2) (as so added).

3 Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2946, reg 5(1). If the hours worked before and after midnight are equal, then (1) if the days in question fall at the beginning of a period of incapacity for work, the second day is treated as a day of incapacity for work; (2) if they fall at the end of such a period, the first day is so treated: reg 5(2).

4 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(3) (as added: see note 1 supra). Provision has been made for the following days to be so treated: (1) a day in respect of which the person has either made no claim for incapacity benefit, made a claim which is out of time (and good cause for delay is not shown), or made a claim which is defeated by the 12 month limit on back claims; (2) a day on which the person is disqualified for the benefit during a period of absence from Great Britain or imprisonment or detention in lawful custody, if that disqualification is for more than six weeks; (3) a day on which a person attends a training course in respect of which he is paid a statutory training allowance: see the Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2946, reg 4. For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

5 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1)(b) (as added: see note 1 supra). Where a person is receiving stipulated regular medical treatment (such as kidney dialysis), this definition is amended to apply to periods of two days, whether consecutive or not, within a period of seven consecutive days: see the Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2946, reg 6.

6 'Week' for these purposes means any period of seven days: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(7) (as added: see note 1 supra).

15 For the meaning of 'claim' see PARA 19 note 5 ante.

16 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(5) (as added; see note 1 supra).

17 'Training for work' means such training in pursuance of arrangements made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2(1) (substituted by the Employment Act 1988 s 25(1)) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 563) or training of such other description as may be prescribed: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(6) (as added: see note 1 supra). The prescribed description of training is any training received on a course which a person attends for 16 hours or more a week, the primary purpose of which is the teaching of occupational or vocational skills: Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2496, reg 3.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) INCAPACITY BENEFIT/(i) In general/64. Calculating the days of entitlement.

64. Calculating the days of entitlement.

An essential element of incapacity benefit<sup>1</sup> is the calculation of the 196 days of entitlement to the lower rate of short-term benefit<sup>2</sup>, and the 364 days of entitlement to the short-term benefit overall (before the long-term benefit becomes payable)<sup>3</sup>. In calculating, for the purposes of:

- 185 (1) the length of entitlement to short-term incapacity benefit<sup>4</sup>;
- 186 (2) the period after which short-term incapacity benefit is payable at the higher rate<sup>5</sup>;
- 187 (3) the period after which incapacity benefit is payable at the long-term rate in a case of terminal illness<sup>6</sup>; and
- 188 (4) the construction of references to short-term incapacity benefit at the higher rate, the number of days for which a person has been entitled to short-term incapacity benefit, the first three days of a period of incapacity for work are included<sup>7</sup> (although no benefit is payable)<sup>8</sup>. In the case of a woman, any days for which she was entitled<sup>9</sup> to maternity allowance<sup>10</sup> are included<sup>11</sup>. There must also be included such days as may be prescribed<sup>12</sup> in respect of which a person was entitled to statutory sick pay<sup>13</sup>, and on the first of which he satisfied the contribution conditions<sup>14</sup> for short-term incapacity benefit<sup>15</sup>.

Any days in respect of which a person was disqualified for receiving incapacity benefit are excluded<sup>16</sup>.

An employee who becomes incapable of work while employed will in fact be eligible for statutory sick pay, rather than lower rate short-term incapacity benefit, and statutory sick pay thus has to count toward the period to be served before there is entitlement to higher rate short-term benefit, and then long-term benefit<sup>17</sup>. However, incapacity benefit is a contributory benefit, whereas statutory sick pay is not<sup>18</sup>. Thus, the rule is that days in receipt of statutory sick pay are included in calculating the number of days for which a person has been entitled to short-term incapacity benefit, provided those days:

- 189 (a) fall within a period of entitlement to statutory sick pay as between that person and his employer which ended not later than the fifty-seventh day before the first day of the period of incapacity for work to which the calculation relates; and
- 190 (b) fall on or after a day on which the person satisfied the contribution conditions for short-term incapacity benefit<sup>19</sup>.

17 See the text and notes 12-15 supra. Like lower rate short-term incapacity benefit, statutory sick pay is payable for a maximum of 28 weeks (196 days) in one period of entitlement. If the employee exhausts that and is still incapable of work, he may claim higher rate short-term incapacity benefit: see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 518 et seq.

18 Statutory sick pay may only be claimed by an employee being paid above the weekly lower limit for the payment of National Insurance contributions (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 514), but other than that it is not dependent on a satisfactory contributions history.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) INCAPACITY BENEFIT/(ii) Determination of Incapacity for Work/65. The tests of incapacity for work; in general.

(ii) Determination of Incapacity for Work

65. The tests of incapacity for work; in general.

The method of determining whether a person is incapable of work is now governed by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 and the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995<sup>1</sup>. Actual inability for the person's normal employment is determined only for a period of 28 weeks (the 'own occupation test')<sup>2</sup>; after that, the 'all work test' applies which is determined by reference to stated physical and mental descriptors which set out detailed abilities and disabilities, with points scored for each. If the claimant attains the necessary number of points he qualifies for the relevant benefit on the basis of being deemed to be incapable of work; if he does not attain the necessary number of points he cannot be considered incapable of work (unless he comes within an exceptional category), even if he could show that in reality he could not reasonably be expected to work<sup>3</sup>.

These tests apply wherever the question of incapacity for work has to be determined for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992<sup>4</sup>, except in relation to statutory sick pay and the industrial injuries scheme and for such other purposes as may be prescribed<sup>5</sup>. Regulations may:

- 191 (1) make provision as to the information or evidence required for the purpose of determining whether a person is capable or incapable of work and the manner in which that information or evidence is to be provided, and may provide that if a person without good cause fails to provide that information or evidence, or to do so in the manner required, he must be treated as capable of work<sup>6</sup>;
- 192 (2) provide that in any case where a question arises as to whether a person is capable of work he may be called to attend for such medical examination as may be required in accordance with regulations, and if he fails without good cause to attend for or submit himself to such examination, he must be treated as capable of work<sup>7</sup>;
- 193 (3) prescribe for these purposes matters which are or are not to be taken into account in determining whether a person does or does not have good cause for any act or omission, or circumstances in which a person is or is not to be regarded as having or not having good cause for any act or omission<sup>8</sup>.

For the period of four years from 5 July 1994, no such regulations may be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House<sup>9</sup>.

1 See PARA 59 ante; and see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt XIA (ss 171A-171G) (added by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 ss 5, 6(1)); the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311 (as amended); and PARAS 66-75 post.

65-75 Determination of Incapacity for Work

As from a day to be appointed, Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 171A-171G repealed: Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(12), Sch 8.

Regulations made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt XIA (ss 171A-171G), in so far as they are consequential on or supplementary to any regulations made under s 171D (see PARA 69) may make pilot schemes providing for their application only in relation to one or more specified areas or localities, one or more specified classes of persons, persons selected by reference to prescribed criteria or on a sampling basis: Social Security Act 1998 s 77.

In certain circumstances, a person who is a welfare to work beneficiary is also treated as incapable of work: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 13A (added by SI 1998/2231). A person is a welfare to work beneficiary on any day in a linking term, where he (1) was incapable of work for a period of incapacity for work of more than 196 days in his immediate past period of incapacity for work; (2) ceased to be entitled to the benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work on a day which falls on or after 5 October 1998; and (3) became engaged in remunerative work within one month of so ceasing to be entitled to that benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work: reg 13A(1) (amended by SI 1999/3901, SI 2006/2378). 'Linking term' means a period of 104 weeks (whether or not broken by days of incapacity for work) fixed on the first day immediately following the last day of incapacity in a period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition amended by SI 2006/2378). 'Remunerative work' means (a) work (other than exempt work under reg 17: see PARA 72) for which payment is made or which is done in expectation of payment, or (b) attendance on a training course in respect of which the person receives a training allowance in pursuance of arrangements made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2(1) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 563) or the Enterprise and New Towns (Scotland) Act 1990 s 2(3): SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4). 'Immediate past period of incapacity for work' means the most recent of (i) a period of incapacity for work under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1), (ii) a period of incapacity for work under s 152, or (iii) a term composed of a period of incapacity for work under s 30C(1) and a period of incapacity for work under s 152 and includes any two such periods of incapacity for work which are separated by a period of not more than eight weeks: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition substituted by SI 2006/757). 'Benefit' means any benefit, allowance or advantage under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (other than statutory sick pay), or under the Jobseekers Act 1995, for which entitlement is dependent on incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4).

A person is not a welfare to work beneficiary if his immediate past period of incapacity for work was ended by a determination (ie other than a determination in the circumstances applicable to a person under reg 13A(1) or (3A)) that he was, or was treated as, capable of work: reg 13A(3) (amended by SI 2006/2378). The circumstances are that the person had successfully appealed against a determination made in respect of the personal capability assessment or the own occupation test in relation to his immediate past period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(3A) (added by SI 2006/2378).

A welfare to work beneficiary is treated as incapable of work or having limited capability for work on any day in a period, consisting of a cumulative number of days of incapacity for work or limited capacity for work not exceeding 91 days in total, beginning within the linking term and ending on a day not later than 13 weeks from the end of that linking term, where he (A) claims benefit for any day falling within that linking term; (B) submits certain medical evidence (ie in accordance with the Social Security (Medical Evidence) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/615, reg 2 (amended by SI 1999/3109, SI 2000/590, SI 2001/2931, SI 2008/1554); and (C) in his immediate past period of incapacity for work, had been assessed and determined to be incapable of work (see SI 1995/311 Pt III (regs 23-28); and PARA 68) or had been treated (under reg 10), by virtue of having a severe condition, as incapable of work: reg 13A(2).

66. Power to provide for the transition to the new test of incapacity for work.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> was given power to make by regulations such provision as appeared to him to be necessary or expedient for the purposes of, or in connection with, the transition to the new test<sup>2</sup> of incapacity for work<sup>3</sup>. Without restriction on the generality of that power, such regulations may provide that a person's continued enjoyment after 19 November 1994 of any allowance or other advantage under any provision for the purposes of which the statutory provisions containing the new test<sup>4</sup> apply is to be subject, except as may be prescribed<sup>5</sup>, to satisfying that test of incapacity for work and for the determination in accordance with those provisions of the question whether the person is incapable of work<sup>6</sup>. For the period of four years from 5 July 1994, a statutory instrument which contains (whether alone or with other provisions) any regulations under these provisions may not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House<sup>7</sup>.

Power is given under s 7(3)(a) to provide that days of incapacity before 18 November 1994, and other prescribed days, are to be taken into account for the purposes of determining the period after which the all work test (see PARA 68 post) applies, but that power is effectively spent.

A statutory instrument which contains (whether alone or with other provisions) any regulations made under s 7, and which is not subject to any requirement that a draft of the instrument be laid before and approved by a resolution of each House of Parliament, is subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament: s 7(6). The Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) makes provision for the employment and support allowance which replaces incapacity benefit and income support on grounds of incapacity for work or disability. Accordingly, as from a day to be appointed, the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 30A-30E (incapacity benefit) and ss 171A-171G (incapacity for work) are repealed: 2007 Act Sch 3 para 9(5), (12), Sch 8. ## 65-75 Determination of Incapacity for Work

As from a day to be appointed, Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 171A-171G repealed: Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(12), Sch 8.

Regulations made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt XIA (ss 171A-171G), in so far as they are consequential on or supplementary to any regulations made under s 171D (see PARA 69) may make pilot schemes providing for their application only in relation to one or more specified areas or localities, one or more specified classes of persons, persons selected by reference to prescribed criteria or on a sampling basis: Social Security Act 1998 s 77.

In certain circumstances, a person who is a welfare to work beneficiary is also treated as incapable of work: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 13A (added by SI 1998/2231). A person is a welfare to work beneficiary on any day in a linking term, where he (1) was incapable of work for a period of incapacity for work of more than 196 days in his immediate past period of incapacity for work; (2) ceased to be entitled to the benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work on a day which falls on or after 5 October 1998; and (3) became engaged in remunerative work within one month of so ceasing to be entitled to that benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work: reg 13A(1) (amended by SI 1999/3901, SI 2006/2378). 'Linking term' means a period of 104 weeks (whether or not broken by days of incapacity for work) fixed on the first day immediately following the last day of incapacity in a period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition amended by SI 2006/2378). 'Remunerative work' means (a) work (other than exempt work under reg 17: see PARA 72) for which payment is made or which is done in expectation of payment, or (b) attendance on a training course in respect of which the person receives a training allowance in pursuance of arrangements made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2(1) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 563) or the Enterprise and New Towns (Scotland) Act 1990 s 2(3): SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4). 'Immediate past period of incapacity for work' means the most recent of (i) a period of incapacity for work under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1), (ii) a period of incapacity for work under s 152, or (iii) a term composed of a period of incapacity for work under s 30C(1) and a period of incapacity for work under s 152 and includes any two such periods of incapacity for work which are separated by a period of not more than eight weeks: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition substituted by SI 2006/757). 'Benefit' means any benefit, allowance or advantage under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (other than statutory sick pay), or under the Jobseekers Act 1995, for which entitlement is dependent on incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4).

A person is not a welfare to work beneficiary if his immediate past period of incapacity for work was ended by a determination (ie other than a determination in the circumstances applicable to a person under reg 13A(1) or (3A)) that he was, or was treated as, capable of work: reg 13A(3) (amended by SI 2006/2378). The circumstances are that the person had successfully appealed against a determination made in respect of the personal capability assessment or the own occupation test in relation to his immediate past period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(3A) (added by SI 2006/2378).

A welfare to work beneficiary is treated as incapable of work or having limited capability for work on any day in a period, consisting of a cumulative number of days of incapacity for work or limited capacity for work not exceeding 91 days in total, beginning within the linking term and ending on a day not later than 13 weeks from the end of that linking term, where he (A) claims benefit for any day falling within that linking term; (B) submits certain medical evidence (ie in accordance with the Social Security (Medical Evidence) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/615, reg 2 (amended by SI 1999/3109, SI 2000/590, SI 2001/2931, SI 2008/1554); and (C) in his immediate past period of incapacity for work, had been assessed and determined to be incapable of work (see SI 1995/311 Pt III (regs 23-28); and PARA 68) or had been treated (under reg 10), by virtue of having a severe condition, as incapable of work: reg 13A(2).

66 Power to provide for the transition to the new test of incapacity for work

NOTE 7--SI 1995/310 further amended: see PARA 59 NOTES 4, 12.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) INCAPACITY BENEFIT/(ii) Determination of Incapacity for Work/67. The own occupation test.

67. The own occupation test.

Where a person has been engaged in remunerative work<sup>1</sup> for more than eight weeks<sup>2</sup> in the 21 weeks immediately preceding the day with respect to which it falls to be determined whether he is or was incapable of work, the test applicable is the own occupation test<sup>3</sup>. The own occupation test is whether he is incapable by reason of some specific disease or bodily or mental disablement<sup>4</sup> of doing work which he could reasonably be expected to do in the course of the occupation in which he was so engaged<sup>5</sup>.

Where it is determined<sup>6</sup> in relation to a person that the test applicable with respect to any day is the own occupation test, and that he is on that test incapable for work, that test remains applicable in his case until the end of that spell of incapacity<sup>7</sup> beginning with that day or in which that day falls, or until the one hundred and ninety-seventh day of incapacity<sup>8</sup> for work in that spell, whichever is the earlier<sup>9</sup>.

1 Provision may be made by regulations defining for these purposes what is meant by 'remunerative work' and the regulations may, in particular, provide for 'remunerative work' to be defined by reference to the number of hours worked per week and for training of any prescribed description to be treated as if it were remunerative work: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171B(6) (s 171B added by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 5). Provision may also be made by regulations as to the application of these provisions in cases where a person engages in more than one occupation or in different kinds of work: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171B(7) (as so added). For the period of four years from 5 July 1994, a statutory instrument which contains (whether alone or with other provisions) any regulations made under s 171B(7) (as so added) or under s 171B(4)(d), (6) or (8) (all as added) (see notes 7-8 infra), may not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 6(3)(a).

It is provided that 'remunerative work' means work (1) in one occupation in which a person was engaged for 16 or more hours a week for more than 8 weeks; and (2) for which payment was made or which was done in expectation of payment: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 4(1). For these purposes, (a) one occupation comprises either all work of the same kind (whether or not it is for the same employer and whether a person is employed or self-employed) or all work for the same employer; and (b) a person who was normally engaged in one occupation for 16 or more hours a week is to be treated as if he had been engaged in that occupation in relation to any week when he was on paid or unpaid leave: reg 4(2). Where a person was engaged in more than one occupation qualifying as remunerative work in the above period of 21 weeks, his occupation for these purposes is the last such occupation in which he was engaged during that period; if, however, during his last week of remunerative work in that period he was engaged in more than one such occupation he must satisfy the own occupation test in respect of each: reg 5.

2 'Week' means any period of seven days: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171G(2) (added by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 6(1)).

3 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171B(1) (as added: see note 1 supra).

4 The phrase 'incapable by reason of some specific disease or bodily or mental disablement' appeared in the previous law on sickness and invalidity benefit, though the case law on it was sparse. 'Disease' means a departure from health capable of identification by its signs and symptoms, and constituting an abnormality: Decision CS 221/49. Extraneous circumstances such as domestic responsibilities are not to be taken into account: Decision R(S) 13/54; see also R(S) 8/53. Difficult distinctions may arise in relation to mental disablement; mere personality defects may not qualify (Decision R(S) 6/59 (Munchausen's syndrome)), unless it can be shown to be serious enough to constitute a disability of mind (Decision CS 7/82).

5 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171B(2) (as added: see note 1 supra).

6 Ie for any purpose of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992: see PARA 21 et seq ante, 68 et seq post.

7 A 'spell of incapacity' means a series of four or more consecutive days of incapacity for work; and any two such spells not separated by a period of more than eight weeks are to be treated as one spell of incapacity: ibid s 171B(3) (as added: see note 1 supra). The Secretary of State may by regulations provide that s 171B(3) (as added) is to have effect as if (1) the reference there to four consecutive days were to such lesser number of days, whether consecutive or not, within such period of consecutive days as may be prescribed; and (2) for the reference to eight weeks there were substituted a reference to such larger number of weeks as may be prescribed: s 171B(8) (as so added). For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 19 note 3 ante. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made.

8 For these purposes, a day of incapacity for work means a day: (1) with respect to which it has been determined for any purpose of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 that the person in question was incapable of work; or (2) in respect of which he was entitled to statutory sick pay (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 498 et seq); or (3) in the case of a woman, which falls within the maternity allowance period (as to which see PARA 78 post); or (4) which is treated in accordance with regulations as a day of incapacity for work: s 171B(4) (as added: see note 1 supra). Apart from s 171B(4) (as added), any provision of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 treating a day as being or not being a day of incapacity is to be disregarded for the purposes of the own occupation test: s 171B(5) (as so added).

9 Ibid s 171B(3) (as added: see note 1 supra).

UPDATE

59-75 Incapacity Benefit

The Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) makes provision for the employment and support allowance which replaces incapacity benefit and income support on grounds of incapacity for work or disability. Accordingly, as from a day to be appointed, the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 30A-30E (incapacity benefit) and ss 171A-171G (incapacity for work) are repealed: 2007 Act Sch 3 para 9(5), (12), Sch 8. ### 65-75 Determination of Incapacity for Work

As from a day to be appointed, Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 171A-171G repealed: Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(12), Sch 8.

Regulations made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt XIAA (ss 171A-171G), in so far as they are consequential on or supplementary to any regulations made under s 171D (see PARA 69) may make pilot schemes providing for their application only in relation to one or more specified areas or localities, one or more specified classes of persons, persons selected by reference to prescribed criteria or on a sampling basis: Social Security Act 1998 s 77.

In certain circumstances, a person who is a welfare to work beneficiary is also treated as incapable of work: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 13A (added by SI 1998/2231). A person is a welfare to work beneficiary on any day in a linking term, where he (1) was incapable of work for a period of incapacity for work of more than 196 days in his immediate past period of incapacity for work; (2) ceased to be entitled to the benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work on a day which falls on or after 5 October 1998; and (3) became engaged in remunerative work within one month of so ceasing to be entitled to that benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work: reg 13A(1) (amended by SI 1999/3901, SI 2006/2378). 'Linking term' means a period of 104 weeks (whether or not broken by days of incapacity for work) fixed on the first day immediately following the last day of incapacity in a period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition amended by SI 2006/2378). 'Remunerative work' means (a) work (other than exempt work under reg 17: see PARA 72) for which payment is made or which is done in expectation of payment, or (b) attendance on a training course in respect of which the person receives a training allowance in pursuance of arrangements made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2(1) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 563) or the Enterprise and New Towns (Scotland) Act 1990 s 2(3): SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4). 'Immediate past period of incapacity for work' means the most recent of (i) a period of incapacity for work under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1), (ii) a period of incapacity for work under s 152, or (iii) a term composed of a period of incapacity for work under s 30C(1) and a period of incapacity for work under s 152 and includes any two such periods of incapacity for work which are separated by a period of not more than eight weeks: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition substituted by SI 2006/757). 'Benefit' means any benefit, allowance or advantage under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (other than statutory sick pay), or under the Jobseekers Act 1995, for which entitlement is dependent on incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4).

A person is not a welfare to work beneficiary if his immediate past period of incapacity for work was ended by a determination (ie other than a determination in the circumstances applicable to a person under reg 13A(1) or (3A)) that he was, or was treated as, capable of work: reg 13A(3) (amended by SI 2006/2378). The circumstances are that the person had successfully appealed against a determination made in respect of the personal capability assessment or the own occupation test in relation to his immediate past period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(3A) (added by SI 2006/2378).

A welfare to work beneficiary is treated as incapable of work or having limited capability for work on any day in a period, consisting of a cumulative number of days of incapacity for work or limited capacity for work not exceeding 91 days in total, beginning within the linking term and ending on a day not later than 13 weeks from the end of that linking term, where he (A) claims benefit for any day falling within that linking term; (B) submits certain medical evidence (ie in accordance with the Social Security (Medical Evidence) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/615, reg 2 (amended by SI 1999/3109, SI 2000/590, SI 2001/2931, SI 2008/1554); and (C) in his immediate past period of incapacity for work, had been assessed and determined to be incapable of work (see SI 1995/311 Pt III (regs 23-28); and PARA 68) or had been treated (under reg 10), by virtue of having a severe condition, as incapable of work: reg 13A(2).

67 The own occupation test

TEXT AND NOTE 3--For 'the test applicable is the own occupation test' read 'the own occupation test is applicable in his case': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171B(1) (amended by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 8 para 24).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) INCAPACITY BENEFIT/(ii) Determination of Incapacity for Work/68. The all work test; in general.

68. The all work test; in general.

Where in any case the own occupation test is not applicable<sup>1</sup> or has ceased to apply<sup>2</sup>, the test applicable is the all work test<sup>3</sup>. Provision must be made by regulations defining the all work test by reference to the extent of a person's incapacity by reason of some specific disease or bodily or mental disablement<sup>4</sup> to perform such activities as may be prescribed<sup>5</sup> and as to the manner of assessing whether the all work test is satisfied<sup>6</sup>.

Regulations may provide that where the all work test applies the test must, if the prescribed conditions are met, be treated as satisfied until the person has been assessed or he falls to be treated<sup>7</sup> as capable of work<sup>8</sup> and the prescribed conditions may include the condition that it has not previously been determined, within such period as may be prescribed, that the person in question is or is to be treated as capable of work<sup>9</sup>.

The all work test is a test of the extent of a person's incapacity to perform prescribed activities which fall into two categories, physical and mental<sup>10</sup>. There are 14 prescribed physical activities<sup>11</sup> and four mental activities<sup>12</sup> each divided into separate 'descriptors' which have points attached to them. In determining the extent of a person's incapacity to perform any of the physical activities, he is to be assessed as if he were wearing any prosthesis with which he is fitted or any aid or appliance which he normally wears or uses<sup>13</sup> and in determining the extent of a person's incapacity to perform any of the physical or mental activities, is a condition that the incapacity arises (1) in respect of a physical disability, from a specific bodily disease or disablement; or (2) in respect of a mental disability, from some specific mental illness or disablement<sup>14</sup>.

A person satisfies the all work test when one or more of the descriptors apply to him if, by adding the points allocated against each descriptor, he scores in total at least:

- 194 (a) 15 points in respect of physical descriptors;
- 195 (b) ten points in respect of mental descriptors; or
- 196 (c) 15 points in respect of a combination of physical and mental descriptors<sup>15</sup>.

In calculating the points, the following rules or qualifications apply:

- 197 (i) within any physical activity, only the highest scoring descriptor can be counted; by contrast in relation to the four mental activities, any points scored under any of the descriptors can be aggregated<sup>16</sup>;
- 198 (ii) as there is substantial overlap between the first two physical activities (walking on level ground with a walking stick or other aid if such aid is normally used and walking up and down stairs), only one descriptor from these activities can be counted, which is to be that with the higher score<sup>17</sup>;

UPDATE

59-75 Incapacity Benefit

The Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) makes provision for the employment and support allowance which replaces incapacity benefit and income support on grounds of incapacity for work or disability. Accordingly, as from a day to be appointed, the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 30A-30E (incapacity benefit) and ss 171A-171G (incapacity for work) are repealed: 2007 Act Sch 3 para 9(5), (12), Sch 8. As to employment and support allowance see PARA 75A.

Provision is made concerning (1) additional conditions for persons incapacitated in youth (Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2946, regs 14-19 (added by SI 2000/3120; SI 1994/2946 reg 15 amended by SI 2001/1305; SI 1994/2946 reg 16 amended by SI 2005/2877, SI 2006/2378; SI 1994/2946 reg 18 amended by SI 2001/1305, SI 2002/2311; SI 1994/2946 reg 19 amended by SI 2002/491)); and (2) the reduction or abatement of incapacity benefit for occupational or other pension payments (SI 1994/2946 regs 20-26) (added by SI 2000/3120; and amended by SI 2006/1069; SI 1994/2946 reg 21 further amended: SI 2008/2365; SI 1994/2946 reg 20A added: SI 2009/792).

65-75 Determination of Incapacity for Work

As from a day to be appointed, Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 171A-171G repealed: Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(12), Sch 8.

Regulations made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt XIA (ss 171A-171G), in so far as they are consequential on or supplementary to any regulations made under s 171D (see PARA 69) may make pilot schemes providing for their application only in relation to one or more specified areas or localities, one or more specified classes of persons, persons selected by reference to prescribed criteria or on a sampling basis: Social Security Act 1998 s 77.

In certain circumstances, a person who is a welfare to work beneficiary is also treated as incapable of work: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 13A (added by SI 1998/2231). A person is a welfare to work beneficiary on any day in a linking term, where he (1) was incapable of work for a period of incapacity for work of more than 196 days in his immediate past period of incapacity for work; (2) ceased to be entitled to the benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work on a day which falls on or after 5 October 1998; and (3) became engaged in remunerative work within one month of so ceasing to be entitled to that benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work: reg 13A(1) (amended by SI 1999/3901, SI 2006/2378). 'Linking term' means a period of 104 weeks (whether or not broken by days of incapacity for work) fixed on the first day immediately following the last day of incapacity in a period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition amended by SI 2006/2378). 'Remunerative work' means (a) work (other than exempt work under reg 17: see PARA 72) for which payment is made or which is done in expectation of payment, or (b) attendance on a training course in respect of which the person receives a training allowance in pursuance of arrangements made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2(1) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 563) or the Enterprise and New Towns (Scotland) Act 1990 s 2(3): SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4). 'Immediate past period of incapacity for work' means the most recent of (i) a period of incapacity for work under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1), (ii) a period of incapacity for work under s 152, or (iii) a term composed of a period of incapacity for work under s 30C(1) and a period of incapacity for work under s 152 and includes any two such periods of incapacity for work which are separated by a period of not more than eight weeks: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition substituted by SI 2006/757). 'Benefit' means any benefit, allowance or advantage under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (other than statutory sick pay), or under the Jobseekers Act 1995, for which entitlement is dependent on incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4).

A person is not a welfare to work beneficiary if his immediate past period of incapacity for work was ended by a determination (ie other than a determination in the circumstances applicable to a person under reg 13A(1) or (3A)) that he was, or was treated as, capable of work: reg 13A(3) (amended by SI 2006/2378). The circumstances are that the person had successfully appealed against a determination made in respect of the personal capability assessment or the own occupation test in relation to his immediate past period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(3A) (added by SI 2006/2378).

A welfare to work beneficiary is treated as incapable of work or having limited capability for work on any day in a period, consisting of a cumulative number of days of incapacity for work or limited capacity for work not exceeding 91 days in total, beginning within the linking term and ending on a day not later than 13 weeks from the end of that linking term, where he (A) claims benefit for any day falling within that linking term; (B) submits certain medical evidence (ie in accordance with the Social Security (Medical Evidence) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/615, reg 2 (amended by SI 1999/3109, SI 2000/590, SI 2001/2931, SI 2008/1554); and (C) in his immediate past period of incapacity for work, had been assessed and determined to be incapable of work (see SI 1995/311 Pt III (regs 23-28); and PARA 68) or had been treated (under reg 10), by virtue of having a severe condition, as incapable of work: reg 13A(2).

68 The all work test; in general

TEXT AND NOTES 1-9--Replaced. Where the own occupation test is not applicable, or has ceased to apply, in the case of a person, the question whether the person is capable or incapable of work is to be determined in accordance with a personal capability assessment: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171C(1) (s 171C substituted by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 61). Provision must be made by regulations (1) defining a personal capability assessment by reference to the extent to which a person who has some specific disease or bodily or mental disablement is capable or incapable of performing such activities as may be prescribed; (2) as to the manner of assessing whether a person is, in accordance with a personal capability assessment, incapable of work: 1992 Act s 171C(2). For the purposes of head (1) the personal capability assessment is an assessment of the extent to which a person who has some specific disease or bodily or mental disablement is capable of performing the prescribed activities, or is incapable by reason of such disease or bodily or mental disablement of performing those activities: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 24 (substituted by SI 1999/3109). As to the prescribed activities see SI 1995/311 Schedule Pts I, II. For the purposes of head (2) a person is incapable of work in accordance with the personal capability assessment when one or more of the descriptors in Schedule Pt I or II applies to him if, by adding the points allocated against the descriptor, he obtains a total score of at least (a) 15 points in respect of physical descriptors; or (b) ten points in respect of mental descriptors; or (c) 15 points in respect of a combination of mental and physical descriptors: reg 25 (substituted by SI 1999/3109). A person to whom the 1992 Act s 171C(1) applies must, if the prescribed conditions are met, be treated as incapable of work in accordance with a personal capability assessment until such time as such an assessment has been carried out in his case, or he falls to be treated as capable of work in accordance with regulations under s 171A(2) or (3) (see PARA 65) or s 171E (see PARA 73): s 171C(3); SI 1995/311 reg 28(1) (substituted by SI 1999/3109). Except in prescribed circumstances, a personal capability assessment carried out in the case of a person before the time when the 1992 Act s 171C(1) applies to him is as effective for the purposes of s 171C (1) as one carried out thereafter: s 171C(4). In the case of a person who for any purpose of the 1992 Act has been determined to be incapable of work in accordance with a personal capability assessment, the question whether that person is capable or incapable of work is to be determined afresh in accordance with a further personal capability assessment: s 171C(5); Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Miscellaneous Amendments Regulations 1999, SI 1999/3109, reg 4.

69. Power to provide that persons to be treated as capable or incapable of work.

Regulations may provide that a person is to be treated as capable of work, or as incapable of work, in such cases or circumstances as may be prescribed<sup>1</sup> and may, in particular, provide that a person is to be treated as capable of work if he does work of a prescribed description, or more than the prescribed amount of work of a prescribed description<sup>2</sup>.

Accordingly, regulations may provide that a person is not to be treated as capable of work by reason only of his doing such work as may be prescribed, or no more than the prescribed amount of work of a prescribed description<sup>3</sup>.

1 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171D(1) (s 171D added by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 6(1)). For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 19 note 3 ante.

2 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171D(2) (as added: see note 1 supra).

3 Ibid s 171D(2) (as added: see note 1 supra). For the period of four years from 5 July 1994, a statutory instrument which contains (whether alone or with other provisions) any regulations made under s 171D (as added) may not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 6(3)(a).

The Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311 (as amended), partly have effect as if so made: see PARAS 67-68 ante, 70-74 post.

'Immediate past period of incapacity for work' means the most recent of (i) a period of incapacity for work under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1), (ii) a period of incapacity for work under s 152, or (iii) a term composed of a period of incapacity for work under s 30C(1) and a period of incapacity for work under s 152 and includes any two such periods of incapacity for work which are separated by a period of not more than eight weeks: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition substituted by SI 2006/757). 'Benefit' means any benefit, allowance or advantage under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (other than statutory sick pay), or under the Jobseekers Act 1995, for which entitlement is dependent on incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4).

A person is not a welfare to work beneficiary if his immediate past period of incapacity for work was ended by a determination (ie other than a determination in the circumstances applicable to a person under reg 13A(1) or (3A)) that he was, or was treated as, capable of work: reg 13A(3) (amended by SI 2006/2378). The circumstances are that the person had successfully appealed against a determination made in respect of the personal capability assessment or the own occupation test in relation to his immediate past period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(3A) (added by SI 2006/2378).

UPDATE

59-75 Incapacity Benefit

The Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) makes provision for the employment and support allowance which replaces incapacity benefit and income support on grounds of incapacity for work or disability. Accordingly, as from a day to be appointed, the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 30A-30E (incapacity benefit) and ss 171A-171G (incapacity for work) are repealed: 2007 Act Sch 3 para 9(5), (12), Sch 8. As to employment and support allowance see PARA 75A.

Provision is made concerning (1) additional conditions for persons incapacitated in youth (Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2946, regs 14-19 (added by SI 2000/3120; SI 1994/2946 reg 15 amended by SI 2001/1305; SI 1994/2946 reg 16 amended by SI 2005/2877, SI 2006/2378; SI 1994/2946 reg 18 amended by SI 2001/1305, SI 2002/2311; SI 1994/2946 reg 19 amended by SI 2002/491)); and (2) the reduction or abatement of incapacity benefit for occupational or other pension payments (SI 1994/2946 regs 20-26) (added by SI 2000/3120; and amended by SI 2006/1069; SI 1994/2946 reg 21 further amended: SI 2008/2365; SI 1994/2946 reg 20A added: SI 2009/792).

65-75 Determination of Incapacity for Work

As from a day to be appointed, Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 171A-171G repealed: Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(12), Sch 8.

Regulations made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt XIA (ss 171A-171G), in so far as they are consequential on or supplementary to any regulations made under s 171D (see PARA 69) may make pilot schemes providing for their application only in relation to one or more specified areas or localities, one or more specified classes of persons, persons selected by reference to prescribed criteria or on a sampling basis: Social Security Act 1998 s 77.

In certain circumstances, a person who is a welfare to work beneficiary is also treated as incapable of work: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 13A (added by SI 1998/2231). A person is a welfare to work beneficiary on any day in a linking term, where he (1) was incapable of work for a period of incapacity for work of more than 196 days in his immediate past period of incapacity for work; (2) ceased to be entitled to the benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work on a day which falls on or after 5 October 1998; and (3) became engaged in remunerative work within one month of so ceasing to be entitled to that benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work: reg 13A(1) (amended by SI 1999/3901, SI 2006/2378). 'Linking term' means a period of 104 weeks (whether or not broken by days of incapacity for work) fixed on the first day immediately following the last day of incapacity in a period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition amended by SI 2006/2378). 'Remunerative work' means (a) work (other than exempt work under reg 17: see PARA 72) for which payment is made or which is done in expectation of payment, or (b) attendance on a training course in respect of which the person receives a training allowance in pursuance of arrangements made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2(1) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 563) or the Enterprise and New Towns (Scotland) Act 1990 s 2(3): SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4). 'Immediate past period of incapacity for work' means the most recent of (i) a period of incapacity for work under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1), (ii) a period of incapacity for work under s 152, or (iii) a term composed of a period of incapacity for work under s 30C(1) and a period of incapacity for work under s 152 and includes any two such periods of incapacity for work which are separated by a period of not more than eight weeks: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition substituted by SI 2006/757). 'Benefit' means any benefit, allowance or advantage under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (other than statutory sick pay), or under the Jobseekers Act 1995, for which entitlement is dependent on incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4).

A person is not a welfare to work beneficiary if his immediate past period of incapacity for work was ended by a determination (ie other than a determination in the circumstances applicable to a person under reg 13A(1) or (3A)) that he was, or was treated as, capable of work: reg 13A(3) (amended by SI 2006/2378). The circumstances are that the person had successfully appealed against a determination made in respect of the personal capability assessment or the own occupation test in relation to his immediate past period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(3A) (added by SI 2006/2378).

A welfare to work beneficiary is treated as incapable of work or having limited capability for work on any day in a period, consisting of a cumulative number of days of incapacity for work or limited capacity for work not exceeding 91 days in total, beginning within the linking term and ending on a day not later than 13 weeks from the end of that linking term, where he (A) claims benefit for any day falling within that linking term; (B) submits certain medical evidence (ie in accordance with the Social Security (Medical Evidence) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/615, reg 2 (amended by SI 1999/3109, SI 2000/590, SI 2001/2931, SI 2008/1554); and (C) in his immediate past period of incapacity for work, had been assessed and determined to be incapable of work (see SI 1995/311 Pt III (regs 23-28); and PARA 68) or had been treated (under reg 10), by virtue of having a severe condition, as incapable of work: reg 13A(2).

TEXT AND NOTES--For provisions relating to welfare to work beneficiaries see PARA 65-75.

A person to whom SI 1995/311 reg 10A applies is to be treated as incapable of work on any day in a period of incapacity for work on which he does any approved work in respect of which no payment in the nature of earnings is expected or made: reg 10A(1) (reg 10A added by SI 2000/678). Subject to SI 1995/311 reg 10A(3), reg 10A applies to a person who is (1) incapable of work or treated as incapable of work; (2) receiving a prescribed benefit; and (3) engaged in approved work on a trial basis: reg 10A(2). Where such a person is determined to be capable of work, reg 10A(1) ceases to apply in his case: reg 10A(3). 'Approved work' means, in relation to a person, work arranged in writing with an employer in respect of him by an officer of, or a person providing services to, the Secretary of State who has been authorised by the Secretary of State for the purpose; 'a prescribed benefit' means any benefit, allowance or advantage under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (other than statutory sick pay, statutory maternity pay or industrial injuries benefit) or the Jobseekers Act 1995, and for which entitlement is dependent on incapacity for work; and 'trial basis' means such trial period and other related matters as may be agreed between the person, and an officer of, or a person providing services to, the Secretary of State who has been authorised by the Secretary of State for the purpose, and an employer, in relation to the approved work: reg 10A(4) (amended by SI 2002/491).

72. Persons treated as capable of work.

Even if a person is determined to be, or is treated as being<sup>1</sup>, incapable of work, he is still to be treated as capable of work on each day of any week (commencing on a Sunday) in which he actually works<sup>2</sup>, unless that work (1) is exempt work<sup>3</sup> or work as a councillor<sup>4</sup>; and (2) if it is exempt work, it is done within the prescribed limits<sup>5</sup>.

The categories of exempt work are:

- 215 (a) work undertaken on the advice of a doctor which:
11
  - 14. (i) helps to improve, or to prevent or delay deterioration in, the disease or bodily or mental disablement which causes that person's incapacity for work; or
  - 15. (ii) is part of a treatment programme that is done under medical supervision while that person is an in-patient or regularly attending as an out-patient of a hospital or similar institution; or
  - 16. (iii) is done while that person is attending an institution which provides sheltered work for people with disabilities;
- 12
- 216 (b) work done as a volunteer<sup>6</sup>;
- 217 (c) duties undertaken as a member of a disability appeal tribunal or the Disability Living Allowance Advisory Board<sup>7</sup>.

The prescribed weekly limits on exempt work are:

- 218 (A) that earnings from the work do not exceed the amount currently prescribed<sup>8</sup>;
- 219 (B) that the combined total of the number of hours spent doing work referred to in heads (a)(i) or (b) above is less than 16<sup>9</sup>;
- 220 (C) that the work referred to in head (c) above is not undertaken on more than one day<sup>10</sup>.

Where the all work test<sup>11</sup> applies, a person is to be treated as capable of work throughout any period in respect of which he claims a jobseeker's allowance<sup>12</sup>, notwithstanding that it has been determined that he satisfies that test or that he is, or is to be treated as, incapable of work<sup>13</sup> if throughout that period the following conditions are satisfied, namely that he has done some work or undertaken a course of education or training or similar activity in preparation for work while suffering from the specific disease or bodily or mental disablement which led to that determination and that since he did so, that disease or disablement has not worsened, nor is he suffering from any further disease or bodily or mental disablement which might affect his capacity for work, or if he is able to show that he has a reasonable prospect of obtaining employment<sup>14</sup>.

1 See PARAS 71-72 ante.

2 This applies to any work that the person does, whether or not undertaken in expectation of payment, other than (1) work as a councillor (see note 4 infra); and (2) care of a relative or domestic tasks carried out in his own home: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995 SI 1995/311, reg 16(2) (amended by SI 1996/3207). 'Relative' means a close relative, a spouse or, or in the case of an unmarried couple, the other member of that couple, grandparent, grandchild, uncle, aunt, nephew or niece: see the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 2(1) (added by SI 1996/3207). 'Close relative' means a parent, parent-in-law, son-in-law, daughter, daughter-in-law, step-parent, step-son, step-daughter, brother, sister, or the spouse of any of the preceding persons, or if that person is one of an unmarried couple, the other member of that couple: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 2(1).

3 Ibid reg 16(1). Where a person does work in a week which is either the first week in which he becomes entitled to a benefit or the last week in a period of incapacity, he is treated as capable of work under these provisions only on the actual day or days of the week on which he does that work: reg 16(3) (amended by SI 1996/3207). A person is not to be treated as capable of work by reason only of the fact that, during an emergency, he undertook any activity to protect another person or to prevent serious damage to property or livestock: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 16(4).

4 In determining whether a person is capable or incapable of work, there must be disregarded any work which that person has undertaken as a councillor; and for these purposes, 'councillor' means (1) in relation to England and Wales, a member of a London borough council, a county council, a district council, a parish or community council, the Common Council of the City of London or the Council of the Isles of Scilly; and (2) in relation to Scotland, a member of a regional, islands or district council: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171F(1), (2) (s 171F added by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 6(1)). The reference in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171F(1) (as added) to the work which a person undertakes as a councillor is to be taken to include any work which he undertakes as a member of any of the bodies referred to in the Local Government Act 1972 s 177(1) (as amended) or the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1973 s 49(1) or s 49(1A) (as added) of which he is a member by virtue of his being a councillor: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171F(3) (as so added). For transitional provisions see s 171F(4) (as added). As to the treatment of earnings as a councillor see PARA 62 text and note 22 ante.

5 See the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 16(1) (amended by SI 1995/987).

6 'Volunteer' means a person who is engaged in voluntary work otherwise than for a close relative, where the only payment received by him or due to be paid to him by virtue of being so engaged is in respect of any expenses reasonably incurred by him in connection with that work: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 2(1) (definition substituted by SI 1996/3207).

7 Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 17(1). As to the Disability Living Allowance Advisory Board see PARA 410 post; and as to disability appeal tribunals see PARA 378 post.

8 At the date at which this volume states the law, the prescribed amount was £46.50 but this is subject to frequent change.

9 A person is not to be treated as capable of work because he has exceeded this hours limit in any week if he has worked or would be expected to work an average of less than 16 hours a week: (1) in a case where a recognised cycle in respect of that person's work has been established, in the period of that cycle in which the week in question falls; or (2) in any other case, in the period which comprises that week and the four weeks preceding it: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 17(3).

The Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) makes provision for the employment and support allowance which replaces incapacity benefit and income support on grounds of incapacity for work or disability. Accordingly, as from a day to be appointed, the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 30A-30E (incapacity benefit) and ss 171A-171G (incapacity for work) are repealed: 2007 Act Sch 3 para 9(5), (12), Sch 8. As to employment and support allowance see PARA 75A.

Provision is made concerning (1) additional conditions for persons incapacitated in youth (Social Security (Incapacity Benefit) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2946, regs 14-19 (added by SI 2000/3120; SI 1994/2946 reg 15 amended by SI 2001/1305; SI 1994/2946 reg 16 amended by SI 2005/2877, SI 2006/2378; SI 1994/2946 reg 18 amended by SI 2001/1305, SI 2002/2311; SI 1994/2946 reg 19 amended by SI 2002/491)); and (2) the reduction or abatement of incapacity benefit for occupational or other pension payments (SI 1994/2946 regs 20-26) (added by SI 2000/3120; and amended by SI 2006/1069; SI 1994/2946 reg 21 further amended: SI 2008/2365; SI 1994/2946 reg 20A added: SI 2009/792).

65-75 Determination of Incapacity for Work

As from a day to be appointed, Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 171A-171G repealed: Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(12), Sch 8.

Regulations made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt XIAA (ss 171A-171G), in so far as they are consequential on or supplementary to any regulations made under s 171D (see PARA 69) may make pilot schemes providing for their application only in relation to one or more specified areas or localities, one or more specified classes of persons, persons selected by reference to prescribed criteria or on a sampling basis: Social Security Act 1998 s 77.

In certain circumstances, a person who is a welfare to work beneficiary is also treated as incapable of work: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 13A (added by SI 1998/2231). A person is a welfare to work beneficiary on any day in a linking term, where he (1) was incapable of work for a period of incapacity for work of more than 196 days in his immediate past period of incapacity for work; (2) ceased to be entitled to the benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work on a day which falls on or after 5 October 1998; and (3) became engaged in remunerative work within one month of so ceasing to be entitled to that benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work: reg 13A(1) (amended by SI 1999/3901, SI 2006/2378). 'Linking term' means a period of 104 weeks (whether or not broken by days of incapacity for work) fixed on the first day immediately following the last day of incapacity in a period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition amended by SI 2006/2378). 'Remunerative work' means (a) work (other than exempt work under reg 17: see PARA 72) for which payment is made or which is done in expectation of payment, or (b) attendance on a training course in respect of which the person receives a training allowance in pursuance of arrangements made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2(1) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 563) or the Enterprise and New Towns (Scotland) Act 1990 s 2(3): SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4). 'Immediate past period of incapacity for work' means the most recent of (i) a period of incapacity for work under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1), (ii) a period of incapacity for work under s 152, or (iii) a term composed of a period of incapacity for work under s 30C(1) and a period of incapacity for work under s 152 and includes any two such periods of incapacity for work which are separated by a period of not more than eight weeks: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition substituted by SI 2006/757). 'Benefit' means any benefit, allowance or advantage under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (other than statutory sick pay), or under the Jobseekers Act 1995, for which entitlement is dependent on incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4).

A person is not a welfare to work beneficiary if his immediate past period of incapacity for work was ended by a determination (ie other than a determination in the circumstances applicable to a person under reg 13A(1) or (3A)) that he was, or was treated as, capable of work: reg 13A(3) (amended by SI 2006/2378). The circumstances are that the person had successfully appealed against a determination made in respect of the personal capability assessment or the own occupation test in relation to his immediate past period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(3A) (added by SI 2006/2378).

A welfare to work beneficiary is treated as incapable of work or having limited capability for work on any day in a period, consisting of a cumulative number of days of incapacity for work or limited capacity for work not exceeding 91 days in total, beginning within the linking term and ending on a day not later than 13 weeks from the end of that linking term, where he (A) claims benefit for any day falling within that linking term; (B) submits certain medical evidence (ie in accordance with the Social Security (Medical Evidence) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/615, reg 2 (amended by SI 1999/3109, SI 2000/590, SI 2001/2931, SI 2008/1554); and (C) in his immediate past period of incapacity for work, had been assessed and determined to be incapable of work (see SI 1995/311 Pt III (regs 23-28); and PARA 68) or had been treated (under reg 10), by virtue of having a severe condition, as incapable of work: reg 13A(2).

TEXT AND NOTE 14--For 'Where the all work test applies' read 'Where the question of whether a person is capable or incapable of work falls to be determined in accordance with the personal capability assessment (see PARA 68)', and for 'satisfies that test' read 'incapable of work in accordance with that assessment': SI 1995/311 reg 17A; SI 2000/590.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) INCAPACITY BENEFIT/(ii) Determination of Incapacity for Work/73. Disqualifications.

73. Disqualifications.

Regulations may provide for disqualifying a person for receiving any benefit<sup>1</sup>, allowance or other advantage under any provision for the purposes of which the statutory provisions relating to incapacity for work<sup>2</sup> apply, or, in such cases as may be prescribed<sup>3</sup>, provide that a person must be treated as capable of work, if:

- 221 (1) he has become incapable of work through his own misconduct;
- 222 (2) he fails without good cause to attend for or submit himself to such medical or other treatment as may be required in accordance with the regulations; or
- 223 (3) he fails without good cause to observe any prescribed rules of behaviour<sup>4</sup>; and must provide that any such disqualification is to be, or, as the case may be, that the person is to be treated as capable of work, for such period not exceeding six weeks as may be determined in accordance with the provisions for adjudication<sup>5</sup>.

For these purposes, regulations may also prescribe matters which are or are not to be taken into account in determining whether a person does or does not have good cause for any act or omission, or circumstances in which a person is or is not to be regarded as having or not having good cause for any act or omission<sup>6</sup>.

There are three prescribed circumstances in which a person is to be disqualified for receiving incapacity benefit or severe disablement allowance (or, in the case of any other benefit, allowance or advantage, treated as capable of work) for a period not exceeding six weeks<sup>7</sup>. These are that the person:

- 224 (a) has become incapable of work through his own misconduct<sup>8</sup>, except in a case where the incapacity is due to pregnancy or a sexually transmitted disease; or
- 225 (b) fails without good cause<sup>9</sup> to attend for or submit himself to medical or other treatment (excluding vaccination, inoculation or major surgery) recommended by a doctor with whom, or a hospital or similar institution with which he is undergoing medical treatment and which would be likely to render him capable of work<sup>10</sup>; or
- 226 (c) fails without good cause to observe any of the following rules of behaviour, namely:

- 17. (i) to refrain from behaviour calculated to retard his recovery<sup>11</sup>; or
- 18. (ii) not to be absent from his place of residence without leaving word where he may be found<sup>12</sup>.

6 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171E(3) (as added: see note 4 supra). For the period of four years from 5 July 1994, a statutory instrument which contains (whether alone or with other provisions) any regulations made under s 171E (as added) may not be made unless a draft of the instrument has been laid before Parliament and approved by a resolution of each House: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 6(2)(a). As to the regulations so made see the text and notes 7-12 infra.

7 See the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 18(2).

8 'Misconduct' is not defined; for the case law on the term when it applies to disqualification for jobseeker's allowance see PARA 305 post. Alcoholism was held to raise a prima facie inference of misconduct, unless the claimant could show that it was involuntary: Decision R(S)2/53.

9 The power to prescribe factors relevant to 'good cause' (see the text and note 6 supra) has not been exercised. The question thus remains one of fact. Ignorance of the rules or required behaviour is not good cause: Decision R(S)21/52. The burden of proving good cause lies on the claimant: Decision R(S)9/51, in which firm religious conviction was held to constitute good cause.

10 'Other treatment' means treatment for the disease or disablement, not job training: Decision R(S)3/57 (blind woman refusing to continue with work training course held not disqualified; the course could not have affected the blindness); the addition of the phrase 'likely to render him capable of work' widens the disqualification, but is still subject to the requirement that the refused treatment be medically-related.

11 The emphasis is on recovery from the disease or disability, not on improving employability, so that refraining from undertaking training does not come within this disqualification: Decision R(S)3/57. 'Calculated' means 'likely', not 'intended': Decision R(S)21/52.

12 Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 18(1) (amended by SI 1995/987; SI 1996/3207). With regard to head (c) in the text, the burden of proving breach of the rule of behaviour lies on the adjudication officer: Decision R(S)7/83. In that case it was held that head (c)(ii) in the text cannot apply to someone who does not have a normal place of residence. See also Decision R(S)1/87. Bona fide difficulty in leaving word where he may be found may constitute good cause: Decision R(S)6/55.

65-75 Determination of Incapacity for Work

As from a day to be appointed, Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 171A-171G repealed: Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(12), Sch 8.

Regulations made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt XIAA (ss 171A-171G), in so far as they are consequential on or supplementary to any regulations made under s 171D (see PARA 69) may make pilot schemes providing for their application only in relation to one or more specified areas or localities, one or more specified classes of persons, persons selected by reference to prescribed criteria or on a sampling basis: Social Security Act 1998 s 77.

In certain circumstances, a person who is a welfare to work beneficiary is also treated as incapable of work: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 13A (added by SI 1998/2231). A person is a welfare to work beneficiary on any day in a linking term, where he (1) was incapable of work for a period of incapacity for work of more than 196 days in his immediate past period of incapacity for work; (2) ceased to be entitled to the benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work on a day which falls on or after 5 October 1998; and (3) became engaged in remunerative work within one month of so ceasing to be entitled to that benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work: reg 13A(1) (amended by SI 1999/3901, SI 2006/2378). 'Linking term' means a period of 104 weeks (whether or not broken by days of incapacity for work) fixed on the first day immediately following the last day of incapacity in a period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition amended by SI 2006/2378). 'Remunerative work' means (a) work (other than exempt work under reg 17: see PARA 72) for which payment is made or which is done in expectation of payment, or (b) attendance on a training course in respect of which the person receives a training allowance in pursuance of arrangements made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2(1) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 563) or the Enterprise and New Towns (Scotland) Act 1990 s 2(3): SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4). 'Immediate past period of incapacity for work' means the most recent of (i) a period of incapacity for work under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1), (ii) a period of incapacity for work under s 152, or (iii) a term composed of a period of incapacity for work under s 30C(1) and a period of incapacity for work under s 152 and includes any two such periods of incapacity for work which are separated by a period of not more than eight weeks: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition substituted by SI 2006/757). 'Benefit' means any benefit, allowance or advantage under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (other than statutory sick pay), or under the Jobseekers Act 1995, for which entitlement is dependent on incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4).

A person is not a welfare to work beneficiary if his immediate past period of incapacity for work was ended by a determination (ie other than a determination in the circumstances applicable to a person under reg 13A(1) or (3A)) that he was, or was treated as, capable of work: reg 13A(3) (amended by SI 2006/2378). The circumstances are that the person had successfully appealed against a determination made in respect of the personal capability assessment or the own occupation test in relation to his immediate past period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(3A) (added by SI 2006/2378).

A welfare to work beneficiary is treated as incapable of work or having limited capability for work on any day in a period, consisting of a cumulative number of days of incapacity for work or limited capacity for work not exceeding 91 days in total, beginning within the linking term and ending on a day not later than 13 weeks from the end of that linking term, where he (A) claims benefit for any day falling within that linking term; (B) submits certain medical evidence (ie in accordance with the Social Security (Medical Evidence) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/615, reg 2 (amended by SI 1999/3109, SI 2000/590, SI 2001/2931, SI 2008/1554)); and (C) in his immediate past period of incapacity for work, had been assessed and determined to be incapable of work (see SI 1995/311 Pt III (regs 23-28); and PARA 68) or had been treated (under reg 10), by virtue of having a severe condition, as incapable of work: reg 13A(2).

73 Disqualifications

TEXT AND NOTES 1-6--Regulations may provide that a determination that a person is disqualified for any period in accordance with regulations under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171E are to have effect for such purposes as may be prescribed as a determination that he is to be treated as capable of work for that period, and vice versa: Social Security Act 1998 s 31(1). Provision may be made by regulations for matters of such descriptions as may be prescribed to be determined by the Secretary of State, notwithstanding that other matters fall to be determined by another authority: s 31(2). See the Social Security and Child Support (Decisions and Appeals) Regulations 1999, SI 1999/991 (see PARA 356A.13). Nothing in the Social Security Act 1998 s 31 is to be taken to prejudice the generality of the power conferred by s 17(2) (see PARA 356A.11): s 31(3).

Regulations may provide that a determination that a person is disqualified for any period in accordance with regulations under the Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 18(1)-(3) is to have effect for such purposes as may be prescribed as a determination that he is to be treated as not having limited capability for work for that period, and vice versa: 1998 Act s 31(1A) (added by 2007 Act Sch 3 para 17(7)).

NOTE 5--The reference is now to the Social Security Act 1998 Pt I Ch II (ss 8-39): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 171E(2) (amended by Social Security Act 1998 Sch 7 para 76).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) INCAPACITY BENEFIT/(ii) Determination of Incapacity for Work/74. Information and evidence.

74. Information and evidence.

The information or evidence required for the purposes of determining whether a person is capable or incapable of work is:

- 227 (1) where the own occupation test<sup>1</sup> or all work test<sup>2</sup> applies, evidence of his incapacity for work in accordance with the Social Security (Medical Evidence) Regulations 1976 (which prescribe the form of doctor's statement or other evidence required)<sup>3</sup>;
- 228 (2) where the all work test applies, such information as the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> may request in the form of a questionnaire relating to the person's ability to perform the prescribed activities<sup>5</sup>;
- 229 (3) such additional information relating to the relevant test as the Secretary of State may request<sup>6</sup>.

Where a person fails without good cause to comply with such a request for information by way of the all work questionnaire under head (2) above, he is to be treated as capable of work<sup>7</sup>.

Where a question arises as to whether a person is capable of work, he may be called by or on behalf of a doctor approved by the Secretary of State to attend for a medical examination<sup>8</sup> and where a person fails without good cause to attend for or submit himself to such an examination, he is to be treated as capable of work<sup>9</sup>.

In determining good cause under either of the above provisions, the matters to be taken into account include:

- 230 (a) whether he was outside Great Britain<sup>10</sup> at the relevant time;
- 231 (b) his state of health at the relevant time;
- 232 (c) the nature of any disability from which he suffers<sup>11</sup>.

1 As to the own occupation test see PARA 67 ante.

2 As to the all work test see PARA 68 ante.

3 See the Social Security (Medical Evidence) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/615 (as amended). In practice, this means the form MED 4 completed by his own general practitioner which asks for a diagnosis of the disabling condition but (unlike the previous medical certificates under the old sickness benefit) does not require the doctor to certify that his patient is unfit for work.

4 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

5 As to the prescribed activities see PARA 69 ante. The questionnaire requires the claimant to give his own opinion on his ability to perform the physical activities, but without showing what points are scored by which descriptors; the mental descriptors are not covered by the questionnaire, and are only brought into contention if there is evidence of mental disablement from the claimant's own general practitioner. The self assessment questionnaire is available to the adjudication officer, along with the Benefits Agency Medical Service doctor's assessment (following the medical examination: see note 8 infra).

6 See the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations, 1995 SI 1995/311, reg 6(1) (amended by SI 1995/987). This does not apply when determining (1) capacity for work for the purposes of jobseeker's allowance (as to which see PARA 263 post); or (2) whether a person is to be deemed to be incapable of work under the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, regs 10-14 (as amended) (see PARA 71 ante): reg 6(3) (substituted by SI 1995/987; amended by SI 1996/1345).

7 Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 7(1). This only applies if (1) at least six weeks have elapsed since the Secretary of State sent the first request; (2) the Secretary of State has sent a further request at least four weeks after the first; and (3) at least two weeks have elapsed since that further request was sent: see reg 7(2).

8 Ibid reg 8(1). An approved doctor means in practice a Benefits Agency Medical Service doctor, who completes a form detailing the claimant's medical history and giving the doctor's opinion on each of the prescribed descriptors. This form is before the adjudication officer (along with the claimant's self assessment questionnaire and the form MED 4 from the claimant's own general practitioner) when making the decision on incapacity.

9 Ibid reg 8(2). This only applies if written notice of the time and place for the examination was sent to the claimant at least seven days beforehand or if he agreed to accept a shorter period of notice: reg 8(3).

10 For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

11 Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 9. The word 'include' means that the question remains a wide one of fact. There must be due compliance with the requirements of notification before there can be a disqualification (even in a case where no good cause is shown): Decision R(S) 1/64. The factors to be considered in a case of failure to attend a medical examination are set out in Decision R(S) 1/87, which also emphasises that the burden of proof of good cause lies on the claimant. Good cause can arise from a firm personal religious conviction: Decision R(S) 9/51.

65-75 Determination of Incapacity for Work

As from a day to be appointed, Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 171A-171G repealed: Welfare Reform Act 2007 Sch 3 para 9(12), Sch 8.

Regulations made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt XIAA (ss 171A-171G), in so far as they are consequential on or supplementary to any regulations made under s 171D (see PARA 69) may make pilot schemes providing for their application only in relation to one or more specified areas or localities, one or more specified classes of persons, persons selected by reference to prescribed criteria or on a sampling basis: Social Security Act 1998 s 77.

In certain circumstances, a person who is a welfare to work beneficiary is also treated as incapable of work: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 13A (added by SI 1998/2231). A person is a welfare to work beneficiary on any day in a linking term, where he (1) was incapable of work for a period of incapacity for work of more than 196 days in his immediate past period of incapacity for work; (2) ceased to be entitled to the benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work on a day which falls on or after 5 October 1998; and (3) became engaged in remunerative work within one month of so ceasing to be entitled to that benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work: reg 13A(1) (amended by SI 1999/3901, SI 2006/2378). 'Linking term' means a period of 104 weeks (whether or not broken by days of incapacity for work) fixed on the first day immediately following the last day of incapacity in a period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition amended by SI 2006/2378). 'Remunerative work' means (a) work (other than exempt work under reg 17: see PARA 72) for which payment is made or which is done in expectation of payment, or (b) attendance on a training course in respect of which the person receives a training allowance in pursuance of arrangements made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2(1) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 563) or the Enterprise and New Towns (Scotland) Act 1990 s 2(3): SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4). 'Immediate past period of incapacity for work' means the most recent of (i) a period of incapacity for work under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1), (ii) a period of incapacity for work under s 152, or (iii) a term composed of a period of incapacity for work under s 30C(1) and a period of incapacity for work under s 152 and includes any two such periods of incapacity for work which are separated by a period of not more than eight weeks: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition substituted by SI 2006/757). A person is not a welfare to work beneficiary if his immediate past period of incapacity for work was ended by a determination (ie other than a determination in the circumstances applicable to a person under reg 13A(1) or (3A)) that he was, or was treated as, capable of work: reg 13A(3) (amended by SI 2006/2378). The circumstances are that the person had successfully appealed against a determination made in respect of the personal capability assessment or the own occupation test in relation to his immediate past period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(3A) (added by SI 2006/2378).

A welfare to work beneficiary is treated as incapable of work or having limited capability for work on any day in a period, consisting of a cumulative number of days of incapacity for work or limited capacity for work not exceeding 91 days in total, beginning within the linking term and ending on a day not later than 13 weeks from the end of that linking term, where he (A) claims benefit for any day falling within that linking term; (B) submits certain medical evidence (ie in accordance with the Social Security (Medical Evidence) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/615, reg 2 (amended by SI 1999/3109, SI 2000/590, SI 2001/2931, SI 2008/1554)); and (C) in his immediate past period of incapacity for work, had been assessed and determined to be incapable of work (see SI 1995/311 Pt III (regs 23-28); and PARA 68) or had been treated (under reg 10), by virtue of having a severe condition, as incapable of work: reg 13A(2).

75. Special provisions on adjudication.

Provision may be made by regulations, in relation to the determination, for any purpose for which the statutory test of incapacity for work applies<sup>1</sup>, whether a person:

- 233 (1) is, or is to be treated as, capable or incapable of work; or
- 234 (2) falls to be disqualified for any period<sup>2</sup>, and in relation to the determination for any such purpose of such other related questions as may be prescribed<sup>3</sup>, for a determination made for one such purpose to be treated as conclusive for another such purpose<sup>4</sup>. Regulations may in particular provide that a determination that a person is disqualified for any period<sup>5</sup> is to have effect for such purposes as may be prescribed as a determination that he is to be treated as capable of work for that period, and vice versa<sup>6</sup>.

Provision may also be made by regulations:

- 235 (a) for questions of such descriptions as may be prescribed to be determined by an adjudication officer<sup>7</sup>, notwithstanding that other questions fall to be determined by another authority<sup>8</sup>;
- 236 (b) requiring a social security appeal tribunal<sup>9</sup> to sit with one or more medical assessors in such classes of case as may be prescribed<sup>10</sup>; and
- 237 (c) as to the constitution of panels of medical practitioners to act as medical assessors in such cases<sup>11</sup>; and regulations under heads (b) and (c) above may confer on the President of social security appeal tribunals, medical appeal tribunals and disability appeal tribunals<sup>12</sup>, or such other person as may be prescribed, such functions as may be prescribed<sup>13</sup>.

Where a question arises as to whether a person is, or is to be treated as, capable or incapable of work in respect of any period (or whether a person is terminally ill<sup>14</sup>), that question is to be determined by an adjudication officer, notwithstanding that other questions fall to be determined by another authority<sup>15</sup>. There is therefore an appeal to a social security appeal tribunal<sup>16</sup>, but it is specifically provided that where a matter before the tribunal involves a question as to whether the claimant satisfies the all work test<sup>17</sup>, the tribunal must sit with a medical assessor<sup>18</sup>.

A determination that a person is, or is to be treated as, capable or incapable of work for the purposes of one benefit, allowance or advantage is to be treated as conclusive for the purposes of any other, in respect of the day or period in question: see the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 19.

- 18 Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 21. On any other questions (eg as to good cause for failure to comply with statutory requirements, or late claims) the tribunal will sit as normal, without a medical assessor. The president is to maintain a panel of doctors to act as medical assessors for the whole of Great Britain, and may appoint to that panel for such term as he thinks fit, and may terminate an appointment at any time: reg 22(1), (3). In order to be appointed, a doctor must have at least five years post-registration experience, and not be either (1) a civil servant in any government department; or (2) an employee of, or paid adviser to, an organisation which represents or promotes the interests of people with disabilities: reg 22(2) (amended by SI 1995/987). The medical assessor is neither a member of the tribunal, nor a witness, and is not to attest (or be asked to attest) to the question of incapability, which remains a matter for the tribunal: Decision R(I)23/57. A general power to appoint ad hoc assessors had long existed (if rarely used); under those provisions it was held that the function of a medical assessor was to act as a 'medical dictionary', available to help the tribunal to understand the medical evidence: R v Deputy Industrial Injuries Comr, ex p Jones [1962] 2 QB 677, [1962] 2 All ER 430, DC; see also Richardson v Redpath, Brown & Co Ltd [1944] AC 62, [1944] 1 All ER 110, HL, cited in Decision R(I)23/57 supra and also in Decision R(I)14/51, in which it was held that a medical assessor is not permitted to conduct a medical examination of the claimant.

UPDATE

59-75 Incapacity Benefit

The Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) makes provision for the employment and support allowance which replaces incapacity benefit and income support on grounds of incapacity for work or disability. Accordingly, as from a day to be appointed, the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 30A-30E (incapacity benefit) and ss 171A-171G (incapacity for work) are repealed: 2007 Act Sch 3 para 9(5), (12), Sch 8. As to employment and support allowance see PARA 75A.

In certain circumstances, a person who is a welfare to work beneficiary is also treated as incapable of work: Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 13A (added by SI 1998/2231). A person is a welfare to work beneficiary on any day in a linking term, where he (1) was incapable of work for a period of incapacity for work of more than 196 days in his immediate past period of incapacity for work; (2) ceased to be entitled to the benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work on a day which falls on or after 5 October 1998; and (3) became engaged in remunerative work within one month of so ceasing to be entitled to that benefit at the end of that immediate past period of incapacity for work: reg 13A(1) (amended by SI 1999/3901, SI 2006/2378). 'Immediate past period of incapacity for work' means the most recent of (i) a period of incapacity for work under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1), (ii) a period of incapacity for work under s 152, or (iii) a term composed of a period of incapacity for work under s 30C(1) and a period of incapacity for work under s 152 and includes any two such periods of incapacity for work which are separated by a period of not more than eight weeks: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition substituted by SI 2006/757). 'Benefit' means any benefit, allowance or advantage under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (other than statutory sick pay), or under the Jobseekers Act 1995, for which entitlement is dependent on incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4).

A person is not a welfare to work beneficiary if his immediate past period of incapacity for work was ended by a determination (ie other than a determination in the circumstances applicable to a person under reg 13A(1) or (3A)) that he was, or was treated as, capable of work: reg 13A(3) (amended by SI 2006/2378). The circumstances are that the person had successfully appealed against a determination made in respect of the personal capability assessment or the own occupation test in relation to his immediate past period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(3A) (added by SI 2006/2378).

4. Amount of income-related allowance and advance award of income-related allowance

In the case of an income-related allowance<sup>1</sup>, the amount payable in respect of a claimant<sup>2</sup> is (1) if he has no income, the applicable amount<sup>3</sup>; (2) if he has an income, the amount by which the applicable amount exceeds his income<sup>4</sup>. Regulations<sup>5</sup> may provide that, in prescribed cases, the applicable amount for the above purposes<sup>6</sup> is nil<sup>7</sup>. The conditions of entitlement to the support component are (a) that the assessment phase<sup>8</sup> has ended, (b) that the claimant has limited capability for work-related activity<sup>9</sup>, and (c) that such other conditions as may be prescribed are satisfied<sup>10</sup>. The conditions of entitlement to the work-related activity component are (i) that the assessment phase has ended, (ii) that the claimant does not have limited capability for work-related activity, and (iii) that such other conditions as may be prescribed are satisfied<sup>11</sup>.

Provision is made with respect to the advance award of income-related allowance<sup>12</sup>.

1 In the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) 'income-related allowance' has the meaning given by s 1(7): s 24(1). In Pt 1 'income-related allowance' means an employment and support allowance entitlement to which is based on s 1(2)(b) (see PARA 75A.1 head (2)): s 1(7).

2 For the meaning of 'claimant' see PARA 75A.1e.

3 Subject to the 2007 Act s 4(3), the applicable amount for the purposes of s 4(1) is to be calculated by (1) taking such amount, or the aggregate of such amounts, as may be prescribed, and (2) if in the claimant's case the conditions of entitlement to the support component or the work-related activity component are satisfied, adding the amount of that component: s 4(2). For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 75A.1.

11 Ibid s 4(5).

Regulations may (1) prescribe circumstances in which head (a) or (i) in the text is not to apply; (2) prescribe circumstances in which entitlement under s 4(4) or (5) is to be backdated; (3) make provision about the amount of the component under s 4(4) or (5): s 4(6). As to regulations see NOTE 7.

12 See ibid s 5. Section 5 applies to claims for an employment and support allowance by a person who (1) would be entitled to an income-related allowance, but for the fact that he does not satisfy the condition in Sch 1 para 6(1)(a), (2) would satisfy that condition if he were entitled to the component mentioned in s 4(4) or (5), and (3) is not entitled to a contributory allowance: s 5(1). For the meaning of 'entitled' and 'contributory allowance' see PARA 75A.1. In relation to claims to which s 5 applies, the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 5(1) (see PARA 330) has effect as if (a) in s 5(1)(d) (see PARA 330), there were inserted at the end 'and to such other conditions as may be prescribed', and (b) in s 5(1)(e) (see PARA 330), for 'any of those requirements' there were substituted 'any of the conditions to which the award is made subject': 2007 Act s 5(2). Regulations may, in relation to claims to which s 5 applies, make provision enabling an award to be made on terms such that the time at which benefit becomes payable under the award is later than the start of the period for which the award is made: s 5(3). As to regulations see NOTE 7.

5. Amount payable where claimant entitled to both forms of allowance

21. (a) his personal rate, and

22. (b) the amount by which the applicable amount exceeds his income<sup>7</sup>.
18

Where the amount payable to the claimant by way of an employment and support allowance does not exceed his personal rate, the allowance is to be treated as attributable to the claimant's entitlement to a contributory allowance<sup>8</sup>. Where the amount payable to the claimant by way of an employment and support allowance exceeds his personal rate, the allowance is to be taken to consist of two elements, namely (i) an amount equal to his personal rate, and (ii) an amount equal to the excess<sup>9</sup>.

8 Ibid s 6(4).

9 Ibid s 6(5). The element mentioned in head (i) in the text is to be treated as attributable to the claimant's entitlement to a contributory allowance: s 6(6). The element mentioned in head (ii) in the text is to be treated as attributable to the claimant's entitlement to an income-related allowance: s 6(7).

6. Exclusion of payments below prescribed minimum

Except in such circumstances as regulations<sup>1</sup> may provide, an employment and support allowance will not be payable where the amount otherwise payable would be less than a prescribed<sup>2</sup> minimum<sup>3</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'regulations' see PARA 75A.1. As to regulations generally under the Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) see s 25.

Regulations may include provision (i) for a person to be treated as not having limited capability for work if he fails without good cause (A) to provide information or evidence which he is required under such regulations to provide, (B) to provide information or evidence in the manner in which he is required under such regulations to provide it, or (C) to attend for, or submit himself to, a medical examination for which he is called under such regulations to attend; (ii) as to matters which are, or are not, to be taken into account in determining for the purposes of any provision made by virtue of head (i) above whether a person has good cause for any act or omission; (iii) as to circumstances in which a person is, or is not, to be regarded for the purposes of any such provision as having good cause for any act or omission<sup>8</sup>. Regulations may provide that, in prescribed circumstances, a person in relation to whom it falls to be determined whether he has limited capability for work, is to be treated, if prescribed conditions are met, as having limited capability for work until such time as it has been determined whether he has limited capability for work, or he falls in accordance with regulations under these provisions to be treated as not having limited capability for work<sup>9</sup>.

59-75 Incapacity Benefit

The Welfare Reform Act 2007 Pt 1 (ss 1-29) makes provision for the employment and support allowance which replaces incapacity benefit and income support on grounds of incapacity for work or disability. Accordingly, as from a day to be appointed, the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 30A-30E (incapacity benefit) and ss 171A-171G (incapacity for work) are repealed: 2007 Act Sch 3 para 9(5), (12), Sch 8. As to employment and support allowance see PARA 75A.

'Immediate past period of incapacity for work' means the most recent of (i) a period of incapacity for work under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 30C(1), (ii) a period of incapacity for work under s 152, or (iii) a term composed of a period of incapacity for work under s 30C(1) and a period of incapacity for work under s 152 and includes any two such periods of incapacity for work which are separated by a period of not more than eight weeks: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4) (definition substituted by SI 2006/757). 'Benefit' means any benefit, allowance or advantage under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (other than statutory sick pay), or under the Jobseekers Act 1995, for which entitlement is dependent on incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(4).

A person is not a welfare to work beneficiary if his immediate past period of incapacity for work was ended by a determination (ie other than a determination in the circumstances applicable to a person under reg 13A(1) or (3A)) that he was, or was treated as, capable of work: reg 13A(3) (amended by SI 2006/2378). The circumstances are that the person had successfully appealed against a determination made in respect of the personal capability assessment or the own occupation test in relation to his immediate past period of incapacity for work: SI 1995/311 reg 13A(3A) (added by SI 2006/2378).

A welfare to work beneficiary is treated as incapable of work or having limited capability for work on any day in a period, consisting of a cumulative number of days of incapacity for work or limited capacity for work not exceeding 91 days in total, beginning within the linking term and ending on a day not later than 13 weeks from the end of that linking term, where he (A) claims benefit for any day falling within that linking term; (B) submits certain medical evidence (ie in accordance with the Social Security (Medical Evidence) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/615, reg 2 (amended by SI 1999/3109, SI 2000/590, SI 2001/2931, SI 2008/1554); and (C) in his immediate past period of incapacity for work, had been assessed and determined to be incapable of work (see SI 1995/311 Pt III (regs 23-28); and PARA 68) or had been treated (under reg 10), by virtue of having a severe condition, as incapable of work: reg 13A(2).

(3) STATE MATERNITY ALLOWANCE

76. Entitlement.

Most benefit that is payable to a person on the ground of maternity is paid out, through the employer, by way of statutory maternity pay<sup>1</sup>. However, for those who do not qualify for that benefit<sup>2</sup> there is the state maternity allowance, a contributory benefit<sup>3</sup>. A woman is entitled to this allowance if:

- 240 (1) she has become pregnant and has reached, or been confined before reaching, the commencement of the eleventh week<sup>4</sup> before the expected week of confinement<sup>5</sup>; and
- 241 (2) she has been engaged in employment<sup>6</sup> as an employed or self-employed earner<sup>7</sup> for at least 26 weeks in the 66 weeks immediately preceding the expected week of confinement; and
- 242 (3) she satisfies the applicable contribution condition<sup>8</sup>; and
- 243 (4) she is not entitled to statutory maternity pay for the same week in respect of the same pregnancy<sup>9</sup>.

The fact that the mother of a child is being paid maternity allowance is not to be taken into consideration by any court in deciding whether to order payment of expenses incidental to the birth of the child<sup>10</sup>.

1 As to statutory maternity pay see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 365 et seq.

2 This means principally those who have been self-employed, or employees who have not been in their current employment long enough to qualify for statutory maternity pay.

3 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35 which is amended, as from October 1994, by the Maternity Allowance and Statutory Maternity Pay Regulations 1994, SI 1994/1230, regs 1(2), 2 to bring it into line with the changes to statutory maternity pay required by the Pregnant Workers Directive (EC Council Directive 92/85 (OJ L348, 28.11.92, p 1)).

4 For the meaning of 'week' see PARA 32 note 7 ante.

5 'Confinement' means (1) labour resulting in the issue of a live child; or (2) labour after 24 weeks of pregnancy resulting in the issue of a child whether alive or dead; and 'confined' is to be construed accordingly: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35(6) (amended by the Still-Birth (Definition) Act 1992 s 2(1)(a)). In the case of miscarriage or still-birth, the length of the pregnancy can be determined by reference to the estimated date of confinement (Decision R(G)4/56) or from medical evidence as to the state of the foetus (Decision R(G)12/59). Where a woman's labour begins on one day and results in the issue of a child on another day, she is taken to be confined on the day of the issue of the child or, if labour results in the issue of twins or a greater number of children, she is taken to be confined on the day of the issue of the last of them: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35(6).

TEXT AND NOTES 2-9--Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35(1), (1A) now s 35(1) (substituted by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 53(1)). The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35(1) (amended by Employment Act 2002 Sch 7 para 4(2)), provides that a woman is entitled to a maternity allowance, at the appropriate weekly rate determined under the 1992 Act s 35A (see PARA 78), if (1) she has become pregnant and has reached, or been confined before reaching, the commencement of the 11th week before the expected week of confinement; and (2) she has been engaged in employment as an employed or self-employed earner for any part of the week in the case of at least 26 of the 66 weeks immediately preceding the expected week of confinement; and (3) her average weekly earnings (within the meaning of s 35A (see PARA 78)) are not less than the maternity allowance threshold for the tax year in which the beginning of the period of 66 weeks mentioned in head (2) falls; and (4) she is not entitled to statutory maternity pay for the same week in respect of the same pregnancy.

In s 35 'the maternity allowance threshold', in relation to a tax year, means £30: s 35(6A) (s 35(6A)-(6D) added by the Employment Act 2002 Sch 7 para 4(4)). The Secretary of State may, in relation to any tax year after 2001-02, by order increase the amount for the time being specified in the 1992 Act s 35(6A) to such amount as is specified in the order: s 35(6B). When deciding whether, and (if so) by how much, to increase the amount so specified the Secretary of State must have regard to the movement, over such period as he thinks fit, in the general level of prices obtaining in Great Britain (estimated in such manner as he thinks fit): s 35(6C). The Secretary of State must in each tax year carry out such a review of the amount for the time being specified in s 35(6A) as he thinks fit: s 35(6D).

77. Contribution condition.

- 244 (1) that the claimant<sup>3</sup> must, in respect of at least 26 weeks<sup>4</sup> in the 66 weeks immediately preceding the expected week of confinement<sup>5</sup>, have actually paid contributions of a relevant class<sup>6</sup>; and
- 245 (2) in the case of Class 1 contributions<sup>7</sup>, that they were not secondary contributions<sup>8</sup> and were paid otherwise than at the reduced rate<sup>9</sup>.

The relevant classes of contributions for state maternity allowance are Classes 1 or 2<sup>10</sup>, which means that it can be claimed by the employed or the self-employed<sup>11</sup>.

As to reduced rate contributions see PARA 53 ante. In the case of a claimant paid other than weekly, any week in which (1) she did not pay contributions of a relevant class; but (2) her earnings were such that, had she been paid weekly, she would have been required to pay primary Class 1 contributions in respect of that week; and (3) there was no election in force to continue to pay at the reduced rate (see PARA 53 ante), then that week is to be treated as a week in which she actually paid such contributions otherwise than at a reduced rate: Sch 3 para 3(2). For these purposes the amount of the claimant's earnings for any week are to be determined in accordance with regulations: Sch 3 para 3(3). For the meaning of 'earnings' see PARA 33 ante. Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(3) STATE MATERNITY ALLOWANCE/78. Amount and duration of state maternity allowance.

78. Amount and duration of state maternity allowance.

- 246 (1) in the case of a woman who is engaged in employment<sup>3</sup> as an employed earner<sup>4</sup> in the week<sup>5</sup> immediately preceding the fourteenth week before the expected week of confinement<sup>6</sup>, a weekly rate equal to the lower rate of statutory maternity pay<sup>7</sup>, or the weekly rate specified for the allowance<sup>8</sup>, whichever is the higher;
- 247 (2) in any other case, that specified weekly rate<sup>9</sup>.

The allowance is payable for a period (the 'maternity allowance period') which, if she were entitled to statutory maternity pay, would be the maternity pay period for that purpose<sup>10</sup>.

A woman ceases to be entitled<sup>11</sup> if she dies before the beginning of the maternity allowance period; if she dies after the beginning, but before the end, of that period, the allowance is not payable for any week subsequent to that in which she dies<sup>12</sup>.

1 The daily rate is calculated by (1) disregarding Sunday (or such other day of the week as may be prescribed); and (2) dividing the weekly rate by six: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35(5). For the meaning of 'prescribed' see PARA 19 note 3 ante.

2 As to state maternity allowance see PARA 76 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'employment' see PARA 32 note 2 ante.

4 For the meaning of 'employed earner' see PARA 32 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'week' see PARA 32 note 7 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'confinement' see PARA 76 note 5 ante.

9 Ibid s 35(1A) (added by the Maternity Allowance and Statutory Maternity Pay Regulations 1994, SI 1994/1230, regs 1(2), 2(2)). The linkage to the statutory maternity pay rate in the case of an employed earner is necessary because the latter rate is in turn required to be no less than the equivalent rate of statutory sick pay, by the Pregnant Workers Directive (EC Council Directive 92/85 (OJ L348, 28.11.92, p 1)) art 11.

10 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35(2). For the maternity pay period (which is not to exceed 18 weeks) see s 165 (as amended); and see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 388. Regulations may provide that s 35 (as amended) and Sch 3 para 3 (as amended) (see PARA 77 note 9 ante) are to have effect subject to prescribed modifications in relation to cases in which a woman has been confined and has not made a claim for a maternity allowance in expectation of that confinement (other than a claim which has been disallowed), or has made a claim for a maternity allowance in expectation of that confinement (other than a claim which has been disallowed), but she was confined more than 11 weeks before the expected week of confinement: s 35(3)(b). Regulations may also provide that s 35(2) is to have effect subject to prescribed modifications in relation to cases in which a woman fails to satisfy the conditions referred to in s 35(1)(b), (c) (as amended) (see PARA 76 heads (2)-(3) ante) at the commencement of the eleventh week before the expected week of confinement, but subsequently satisfies those conditions at any time before she is confined: s 35(3)(c) (added by the Maternity Allowance and Statutory Maternity Pay Regulations 1994, SI 1994/1230, regs 1(2), 2(3)). The following particular modifications apply:

- 12 (1) where a woman was confined more than 11 weeks before the expected week of confinement, the maternity allowance period is 18 weeks commencing with the week immediately following the week in which she was confined, whether or not she made a claim in expectation of that confinement (Social Security (Maternity Allowance) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/416, reg 3(2)).
  - 13 (2) where a woman (a) is not entitled to the allowance at the eleventh week before the expected confinement; (b) subsequently becomes so entitled before being confined; and (c) has stopped work, the maternity allowance period is 18 weeks commencing with the week following that in which she stopped work (reg 3(2A) (added by SI 1994/1367)).
- 11 For the meaning of 'entitled' see PARA 21 note 9 ante.
- 12 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35(4).

TEXT AND NOTES--See PARA 76 TEXT AND NOTES.

TEXT AND NOTES 1-9--Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35(1A) replaced by s 35A (s 35A added by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 53(3)). For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35(1) (see PARA 76 ante) the appropriate weekly rate is, subject to s 35A(5A), whichever is the lower rate of (1) a weekly rate equivalent to 90 per cent of the woman's average weekly earnings; and (2) the weekly rate for the time being prescribed under s 166(1)(b) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 392): s 35A(1) (substituted by Employment Act 2002 s 48(1)). A woman's 'average weekly earnings' means the average weekly amount, as determined in accordance with regulations, of specified payments which (a) were made to her or for her benefit as an employed earner; or (b) are, in accordance with regulations, to be treated as made to her or for her benefit as a self-employed earner, during the specified period: s 35A(4) (s 35A as added). Regulations may make provision relating to the calculation of average weekly earnings: see s 35A(5) (amended by 2002 Act s 48(1)(b)); and the Social Security (Maternity Allowance) (Earnings) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/688 (amended by SI 2002/2690, SI 2003/659, SI 2007/1154). In the 1992 Act s 35A 'the maternity allowance threshold' has the same meaning as in s 35 (see PARA 76) and 'specified' means prescribed by or determined in accordance with regulations: s 35A(6) (substituted by 2002 Act Sch 7 para 5).

Where a woman is treated by virtue of regulations under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35A(5)(c)(i) as having received a payment in respect of each week in the specified period equal to the amount mentioned in s 35A(5)(c)(i), the appropriate weekly rate is the weekly rate for the time being prescribed under s 166(1)(b): s 35A(5A), (5B) (added by 2002 Act s 48).

NOTE 1--The daily rate is now to be taken as one-seventh of the weekly rate of the allowance: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 35(5) (amended by Social Security Act 1998 s 67).

NOTE 10--Reference to Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 3 is now to s 35A (see TEXT AND NOTES 1-9): s 35(3)(b) (amended by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 53(2)(a)). For 'conditions referred to in s 35(1)(b), (c)' read 'conditions referred to in s 35(1)(b) or (c)': s 35(3)(c); 1999 Act s 53(2)(b); 2002 Act Sch 7 para 4(3).

79. Disqualifications for state maternity allowance.

Regulations may provide for disqualifying a woman for receiving a maternity allowance<sup>1</sup> if:

- 248 (1) during the maternity allowance period<sup>2</sup> she does any work in employment<sup>3</sup> as an employed or self-employed earner<sup>4</sup>, or fails without good cause to observe any prescribed<sup>5</sup> rules of behaviour<sup>6</sup>; or
- 249 (2) at any time before she is confined<sup>7</sup> she fails without good cause<sup>8</sup> to attend for, or submit herself to, any medical examination required in accordance with the regulations<sup>9</sup>.

In the exercise of this power, provision has been made disqualifying a woman for receiving state maternity allowance if :

- 250 (a) during the maternity allowance period she does any work in employment as an employed or self-employed earner, and the disqualification is to be for such part of the maternity allowance period (but for not less than the number of days on which she so worked) as may be reasonable in the circumstances;
- 251 (b) during the maternity allowance period she fails without good cause to observe the following rules of behaviour, namely to take due care of her health and to answer reasonable inquiries (not being inquiries relating to medical examination, treatment or advice), by the Secretary of State<sup>10</sup> or his officers directed to ascertaining whether she is doing so, and such disqualification is to be for such part of the maternity allowance period as may be reasonable in the circumstances; or
- 252 (c) at any time before she is confined she fails without good cause to attend for or to submit herself to any medical examination for which she was given at least three days' notice in writing by or on behalf of the Secretary of State, and such disqualification is to be for such part of the maternity allowance period (being a part beginning not earlier than the day on which the failure occurs) as may be reasonable in the circumstances, except that in the event of her being confined after such failure she is not by reason of such failure to be so disqualified for the day on which the confinement occurs or any day thereafter<sup>11</sup>.

(4) WIDOW'S BENEFITS ETC

80. The benefits.

The regime of benefits on death has been subject to much change. The present system is that a woman who has been widowed<sup>1</sup> is entitled to a lump sum widow's payment<sup>2</sup>. If she has responsibility for a child or children, she is entitled to a widowed mother's allowance<sup>3</sup>. If over a certain age when widowed or when she ceases to be entitled to the widowed mother's allowance, she is entitled to a widow's pension instead<sup>4</sup>. The rate of the allowance and pension is linked to the rate of a Category A retirement pension<sup>5</sup>. Further, there are special rules allowing a widow to qualify more easily for incapacity benefit if unable to work when widowed or when the widowed mother's allowance ceases<sup>6</sup>. These benefits are contributory, based on her late husband's<sup>7</sup> contributions, and are not means tested.

These benefits are not complemented by any equivalent benefits for widowers<sup>8</sup> but provision is made for allowing a widower to qualify more easily for incapacity benefit if unable to work<sup>9</sup> and to receive a Category B retirement pension based on his late wife's contributions<sup>10</sup>.

There is no longer a contributory death grant to cover funeral expenses; instead a payment can be claimed to cover such expenses from the social fund, but this is of course a means tested benefit<sup>11</sup>.

80 The benefits

NOTE 8--See Application 36940/97 Fielding v United Kingdom (2002) Times, 25 February, ECtHR (application of Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999, enabling widowers to receive same benefits as widows: see PARA 84).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(4) WIDOW'S BENEFITS ETC/81. Forfeiture of widow's benefits.

81. Forfeiture of widow's benefits.

Although the social security provisions constitute a comprehensive code, they must still be applied subject to the rules of public policy, in particular that disentitling a widow to benefit where she has created her status of widowhood by killing her husband<sup>1</sup>. The position is now governed in relation to homicide by the Forfeiture Act 1982, which defines the 'forfeiture rule' as the rule of public policy which in certain circumstances precludes a person who has unlawfully killed<sup>2</sup> another from acquiring a benefit in consequence of the killing<sup>3</sup>. The forfeiture rule must stand in the case of a person convicted of murder<sup>4</sup> but in a case of manslaughter there is a discretion to modify the application of the rule as follows<sup>5</sup>.

Where a question arises as to whether, if a person were otherwise entitled to or eligible for any benefit or advantage under a relevant enactment<sup>6</sup>, that person would be precluded by virtue of the forfeiture rule from receiving the whole or part of the benefit or advantage, that question must (notwithstanding anything in any relevant enactment) be determined by a social security commissioner<sup>7</sup>. Where a commissioner determines that the forfeiture rule has precluded a person ('the offender') who has unlawfully killed another from receiving the whole or part of any such benefit or advantage, the commissioner may make a decision modifying the effect of that rule and may do so whenever the unlawful killing occurred<sup>8</sup>. He may not, however, make such a decision in any case unless he is satisfied that, having regard to the conduct of the offender and of the deceased and to such other circumstances as appear to the commissioner to be material, the justice of the case requires the effect of the rule to be so modified in that case<sup>9</sup>.

A decision under these provisions may modify the effect of the forfeiture rule in either or both of the following ways:

- 253 (1) so that it applies only in respect of a specified proportion of the benefit or advantage;
- 254 (2) so that it applies in respect of the benefit or advantage only for a specified period of time<sup>10</sup>, but may not modify the effect of the forfeiture rule so as to allow any person to receive the whole or any part of a benefit or advantage in respect of any period before 25 July 1986<sup>11</sup>.

If the commissioner thinks it expedient to do so, he may direct that his decision is to apply to any future claim for a benefit or advantage under a relevant enactment on which a question as to whether a person otherwise entitled to the benefit or advantage would be precluded by virtue of the forfeiture rule from receiving the whole or part of the benefit or advantage arises by reason of the same unlawful killing<sup>12</sup> and it is immaterial for these purposes whether the claim is in respect of the same or a different benefit or advantage<sup>13</sup>.

For the purpose of obtaining a decision whether the forfeiture rule should be modified the Secretary of State<sup>14</sup> may refer to a commissioner for review any determination of a relevant question<sup>15</sup> that was made before these provisions came into force<sup>16</sup>, whether by a commissioner or not, and must do so if the offender requests him to refer such a determination<sup>17</sup>.

Regulations under these provisions may make such provision as appears to the Lord Chancellor to be necessary or expedient for carrying these provisions into effect; and (without prejudice to the generality of that) the regulations may, in relation to the relevant question<sup>18</sup> or any determination with regard to it<sup>19</sup> or any decision modifying the effect of the forfeiture rule<sup>20</sup>:

- 255 (a) apply any provision of any relevant enactment, with or without modifications, or exclude or contain provision corresponding to any such provision; and 256 (b) make provision corresponding to the provision made<sup>21</sup> for the procedure on adjudication<sup>22</sup>.

1 See R v Chief National Insurance Comr, ex p Connor [1981] QB 758, [1981] 1 All ER 769, DC, per Lord Lane CJ (it is not the label which the law applies to the crime, but the nature of the crime (which could be other than homicide) that will determine in an individual case whether the forfeiture rule applies).

2 Unlawful killing includes unlawfully aiding, abetting, counselling or procuring the death of another: see the Forfeiture Act 1982 s 1(2).

3 Ibid s 1(1). As to forfeiture generally see WILLS vol 50 (2005 Reissue) PARAS 341-342.

4 See ibid s 5 (amended by the Social Security Act 1986 s 76(1), (4)); and Decision R(G)1/91.

5 The power to modify does not include a power to disapply the rule completely: Decision R(G)3/90.

6 For these purposes, 'relevant enactment' includes the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 and the Pension Schemes Act 1993, as well as the Pensions (Navy, Army, Air Force and Mercantile Marine) Act 1939 and the Personal Injuries (Emergency Provisions) Act 1939 (see WAR AND ARMED CONFLICT vol 49(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 595 et seq), the Polish Resettlement Act 1947 (see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 1080), and previous social security legislation: see the Forfeiture Act 1982 s 4(5) (definition amended by the Statutory Sick Pay Act 1991 s 3(1)(c); the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 ss 3, 4, Sch 1, Sch 2 para 63(3); the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 190, Sch 8 para 15).

9 Forfeiture Act 1982 s 4(1B) (as added: see note 8 supra). It is for the commissioner to consider all the circumstances, not just the fact of conviction or acquittal; where, however, a jury has made a reasoned decision on the merits, that will be important evidence, and the burden of proof is on the adjudication officer, on a standard akin to that in a criminal case: Decision R(G)2/90 (no forfeiture because unlawful killing not proved in a case where the claimant had been acquitted of murder and manslaughter). This is a wide discretion, in the exercise of which the culpability of the claimant will be an important factor, and there is certainly no obligation to modify the rule merely because the case falls short of murder: Decision R(G)3/90; and see Decision R(G)1/91 where there was full forfeiture of widow's benefits where the reduction by the Court of Appeal of a murder conviction to manslaughter was for technical reasons. In deciding whether to modify, matters such as provocation may be relevant (Decision R(G)3/90), as may mental illness (Decision R(G)3/84). However, in this context, decisions before the amendments by the Social Security Act 1986 must be treated with caution, since the law then did not permit modification and the commissioner's only function was to decide whether the forfeiture rule applied at all (Decision R(G)2/84).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(4) WIDOW'S BENEFITS ETC/82. Meaning of 'widow' and 'late husband'.

82. Meaning of 'widow' and 'late husband'.

There is no statutory definition of 'widow'. The two general requirements are that the claimant was (and remained) legally married to her husband at the date of his death, and that he has died. The first requirement may raise questions as to the validity of a marriage<sup>1</sup> and the effectiveness of any steps taken to dissolve it prior to the death<sup>2</sup>. Where the husband's death is not clearly documented, for example where he has simply disappeared, it has to be established by evidence and will not simply be presumed from elapse of time<sup>3</sup>.

'Late husband', in relation to a woman who has been more than once married, means her last husband<sup>4</sup>.

1 A void marriage has no effect and cannot be relied upon for these purposes: Decisions R(G)10/53; R(G)2/63; R(G)1/73. A voidable marriage is valid until nullified: Decisions R(G)1/73; R(G)2/73. As to the validity of a foreign marriage see CONFLICT OF LAWS vol 8(3) (Reissue) PARA 208 et seq. Expert opinion may be relied upon to determine the relevant foreign law: Decision R(G)4/93. A polygamous marriage is not valid for these purposes (Decisions R(S)2/92; R(G)4/93); in deciding whether such a marriage was effective under its own law, much will depend on the husband's domicile (Decisions R(G)1/93; R(G)1/95). However, it is provided for social security purposes that a potentially polygamous marriage is to be treated as having the same consequences as a monogamous marriage for any day on which it is in fact monogamous: see the Social Security and Family Allowances (Polygamous Marriages) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/561, reg 2(1).

2 A talaq divorce may be valid if performed abroad (Decisions R(G)2/71; R(G)4/74); though the foreign formalities must be satisfied (Decision CG17/1992). However, such a divorce will not be valid if performed in this country because it is not instituted by legal proceedings: Decision R(G)1/94.

3 This is because in England there is no statutory equivalent of the Presumption of Death (Scotland) Act 1977: see Decision R(G)1/80. Where statute has not intervened, the presumption is of continued life, not of death: Decision R(G)1/62; though cf (in the context of family law) Chard v Chard [1956] P 259, [1955] 3 All ER 721.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(4) WIDOW'S BENEFITS ETC/83. Remarriage and living together as husband and wife.

83. Remarriage and living together as husband and wife.

A widow ceases to be entitled to a widowed mother's allowance or a widow's pension if she remarries<sup>1</sup>. In addition, and more broadly, a widow is also disentitled to those benefits for any period during which she and a man to whom she is not married are living together as husband and wife<sup>2</sup>; further, a widow so living at the time of her husband's death is not entitled to a widow's payment<sup>3</sup>. The question of remarriage will usually cause few problems, unless an issue arises as to the validity of the second marriage<sup>4</sup>, but the question of living together as husband and wife causes many more difficulties<sup>5</sup>. It arises in several contexts in social security law<sup>6</sup>, and wherever it arises the same principles are to apply<sup>7</sup>. As many of the original decisions arose in relation to widow's benefits, the question is discussed in this context.

When deciding on the status of a man and woman who are living together, it is necessary to distinguish three cases :

- 257 (1) where they are living together and married;
- 258 (2) where they are unmarried but living together as husband and wife; and
- 259 (3) where they are unmarried and living together but not as husband and wife<sup>8</sup>.

The last category can cover a wide variety of relationships, such as a commercial relationship as house owner and lodger or housekeeper, through to cases where one party is caring for the other<sup>9</sup>, or where two disabled persons live together for mutual support<sup>10</sup>. The question is a wide one of fact in which both the subjective intention of the parties and the objective aspects of the relationship will be important; in approaching it, the statutory authorities consistently apply the following guidelines which have received judicial approval<sup>11</sup>:

- 260 (a) members of the same household: the couple must be living in the same household and neither partner will usually have any other home where he or she normally lives. This implies that the couple live together, apart from absences necessary for employment, visits to relatives and similar purposes<sup>12</sup>;
- 261 (b) stability: living together as husband and wife clearly implies more than an occasional or very brief association. When a couple first live together, it may be clear from the start that the relationship is similar to that of husband and wife (for example, if the woman has taken the man's name and has borne his child), but in cases where at the outset the nature of the relationship is less clear it may be right not to regard the couple as living together as husband and wife until it is apparent that a stable relationship has been formed<sup>13</sup>;
- 262 (c) financial support: in most husband and wife relationships one would expect to find financial support of one party by the other, or sharing of household expenses, but the absence of any such arrangement does not of itself prove that a couple are not living together;
- 263 (d) sexual relationship: similarly, a sexual relationship is a normal part of marriage and therefore of living together as husband and wife, but its absence at any particular time does not necessarily prove that a couple are not living as husband and wife<sup>14</sup>;
- 264 (e) children: when a couple are caring for a child of their union, there is a strong presumption that they are living together as husband and wife;

- 265 (f) public acknowledgment: whether a couple have represented themselves to other people as husband and wife is relevant. However, many couples living together do not wish to pretend that they are actually married. The fact that they retain their identity publicly as unmarried people does not mean that they cannot be regarded as living together as husband and wife<sup>15</sup>.

While these may be useful guidelines, they must not be applied too rigidly, and ultimately it is important to consider the general nature of the relationship, and also why they are living together, not just the fact that they are<sup>16</sup>.

4 See PARA 82 ante.

5 This used to be referred to as 'cohabitation', but that description is now used less often.

6 This is of particular importance in the definition of an 'unmarried couple' for the purposes of aggregation of a family's income and capital when claiming income support or income based jobseeker's allowance: see PARAS 175 note 1, 262 note 6 post.

10 Robson v Secretary of State for Social Services (1982) 3 FLR 232.

11 The guidelines were those originally laid down in the Supplementary Benefits Handbook (produced by the DHSS, as it then was); these were said to be 'admirable signposts' by Woolf J in Crake v Supplementary Benefits Commission [1982] 1 All ER 498 at 505, (1981) 2 FLR 264 at 270-271, and applied by the social security commissioner in Decisions R(G)3/81 and R(SB)17/81. As set out in the text they are taken from the final version of the Handbook (1984), in the light of certain changes to the fourth heading.

12 Absence of one party from the household (eg for an academic term) does not necessarily mean that the couple are not living together (Decision R(SB)30/83), unless the facts show that they have actually ceased so to live (Decision R(SB)19/85). A party cannot be considered to be living in more than one household at the same time: Decision R(SB)8/85.

13 Applying for a joint rental and selling one party's furniture was held to show stability in Campbell v Secretary of State for Social Services (1983) 4 FLR 138.

14 This factor has caused the most problems, and the guidance given in successive versions of the Supplementary Benefits Handbook changed: see Decision R(SB)35/85. The DHSS had sought to make this factor more neutral, to avoid criticism of being too intrusive into claimants' private lives, and social security officers are instructed not to question claimants too closely on the point. However, in Decision CIS 887/1993 the commissioner questioned this neutral stance on the basis that a sexual relationship or lack thereof is logically relevant, and that an instruction not to investigate it is inconsistent with the inquisitorial nature of the adjudication system. Under the older case law it had been held that it may be appropriate if necessary to infer a sexual relationship from the facts: Decision R(G)1/79.

15 Change of name may be an important factor: Decision R(G)1/79. See also Crake v Supplementary Benefits Commission [1982] 1 All ER 498 at 509, (1981) 2 FLR 264 at 274-275 ('..these were people who were happy together and appeared much as a family unit').

16 This appears particularly from the more recent decision in Decision CIS 87/1993 (a starred decision, to be reported); while not doubting the possible utility of the above factors, this emphasis on looking at the whole picture echoes the approach in some of the older commissioner's decisions: see Decisions R(G)3/71, R(G)2/72.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(4) WIDOW'S BENEFITS ETC/84. Widow's payment.

84. Widow's payment.

A woman who has been widowed<sup>1</sup> is entitled<sup>2</sup> to a widow's payment (in the nature of a specified lump sum<sup>3</sup>) if:

- 266 (1) she was under pensionable age<sup>4</sup> at the time when her late husband<sup>5</sup> died, or he was then not entitled to a Category A retirement pension<sup>6</sup>; and
- 267 (2) her late husband satisfied the contribution condition specified for a widow's payment<sup>7</sup>.

This entitlement only arises where the husband died on or after 11 April 1988<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'widow' see PARA 82 ante. The entitlement is lost if at the time of her husband's death the woman was living together as husband and wife with another man: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act s 36(2); and see PARA 83 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'entitled' see PARA 21 note 9 ante.

3 The sum is specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 4 Pt II (which is subject to frequent amendment).

4 For the meaning of 'pensionable age' see PARA 562 post. As to when a person attains a particular age see PARA 19 note 11 ante.

5 For the meaning of 'late husband' see PARA 82 ante.

6 As to Category A retirement pensions see PARA 568 et seq post.

7 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 36(1). As to contribution conditions generally see PARA 55 ante. The contribution condition is that (1) the contributor concerned must in respect of any one relevant year (ie any year ending before he attained pensionable age or died under that age) have actually paid contributions of a relevant class; and (2) the earnings factor derived must be not less than that year's lower earnings limit multiplied by 25: s 21(3), Sch 3 para 4(1), (3). The earnings factor referred to is that which is derived: (a) if the year in question is 1987-88 or any subsequent year, from earnings upon which primary Class 1 contributions have been paid or treated as paid and from Class 2 and Class 3 contributions; or (b) if the year in question is an earlier year, from the contributions referred to in head (1) supra: Sch 3 para 4(2). The relevant classes are Class 1, 2 or 3: see s 21(2) (as amended); and see PARA 55 ante. For the meaning of 'earnings' and 'earnings factor' see PARAS 33, 56 ante.

Where a claim is made for a widow's payment, and the last complete year before the beginning of the benefit year in which the relevant time (ie the date on which the contributor concerned attained pensionable age or died under that age) falls was either the year in which the contributor concerned first became liable for primary Class 1 or Class 2 contributions or the year preceding that in which he first became so liable, then for the purposes of satisfaction by the contributor concerned of head (2) supra of the contribution condition for a widow's payment, all earnings factors falling within s 21(4), Sch 3 para 7(4) may be aggregated and that aggregate sum is to be treated as his earnings factor for the last complete year before the beginning of the benefit year in which the relevant time falls: Sch 3 para 7(1)-(3). The earnings factors referred to are (i) the contributor's earnings factors for 1987-88 and each subsequent year derived from the aggregate of his earnings upon which primary Class 1 contributions were paid or treated as paid and from Class 2 contributions actually paid by him before the relevant time; and (ii) his earnings factors for each earlier year, derived from his contributions of a relevant class actually paid by him before the relevant time: Sch 3 para 7(4). Where a woman claims a widow's payment, the contributor concerned for the purposes of the claim is to be taken to satisfy the contribution condition for the payment if on a claim made in the past for any short-term benefit he has satisfied the first contribution condition for the benefit, by virtue of the Social Security Act 1975 Sch 3 para 8 (repealed) with contributions of a class relevant to widow's payment: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 9.

8 Ibid s 36(3). Prior to that, entitlement was to widow's allowance.

A person whose spouse or civil partner dies on or after the appointed day (as defined) is entitled to a bereavement payment if (1) either that person was under pensionable age at the time when the spouse or civil partner died or the spouse or civil partner was then not entitled to a Category A retirement pension under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44 (see PARA 568); and (2) the spouse or civil partner satisfied the contribution condition for a bereavement payment specified in Sch 3 para 4 (see NOTE 7): s 36(1)). A bereavement payment is not payable to a person if (a) that person and a person of the opposite sex to whom that person was not married were living together as husband and wife at the time of the spouse's or civil partner's death, or (b) that person and a person of the same sex who was not his or her civil partner were living together as if they were civil partners at the time of the spouse's or civil partner's death: s 36(2). For the purposes of s 36, 'the appointed day' means the day appointed for the coming into force of the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 ss 54-56: s 36(3). See further PARA 85-89.

NOTE 7--Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 3 para 4(1) amended: Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 8 para 13(2). Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/3. CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(4) WIDOW'S BENEFITS ETC/85. Widowed mother's allowance.

85. Widowed mother's allowance.

A woman who has been widowed<sup>1</sup> is entitled<sup>2</sup> to a widowed mother's allowance if her late husband<sup>3</sup> satisfied the contribution conditions specified for the benefit<sup>4</sup> and either:

- 268 (1) the woman is entitled to child benefit in respect of a qualifying child<sup>5</sup>; or
- 269 (2) the woman is pregnant by her late husband<sup>6</sup>; or
- 270 (3) if the woman and her late husband were residing together immediately before the time of his death, the woman is pregnant as the result of being artificially inseminated before that time with the semen of some person other than her husband, or as the result of the placing in her before that time of an embryo, of an egg in the process of fertilisation, or of sperm and eggs<sup>7</sup>.

The entitlement continues for as long as she satisfies one of these requirements, but ceases on remarriage<sup>8</sup>, or during any period during which she and a man to whom she is not married are living together as husband and wife<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'widow' see PARA 82 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'entitled' see PARA 21 note 9 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'late husband' see PARA 82 ante.

4 The contribution conditions are the same as those for a Category A or Category B retirement pension: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 21(3), Sch 3 para 5 (as amended); and PARA 565 post.

5 A qualifying child is either (1) a son or daughter of the woman and her late husband; (2) a child in respect of whom her late husband was immediately before his death entitled to child benefit; or (3) if the woman and her late husband were residing together immediately before his death, a child in respect of whom she was then entitled to child benefit: in addition, the beneficiary must be treated for child benefit purposes as having the child living with her or the requisite contributions must be being made to the cost of providing for the child: see ibid ss 37(2), 81(2); and the Social Security (Widow's Benefit and Retirement Pensions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/642, reg 16 (amended by SI 1987/1854). As to entitlement to child benefit see PARA 238 post. For the meaning of 'beneficiary' see PARA 21 note 2 ante.

6 Where there is doubt whether the wife is pregnant by her husband or another man, the presumption of legitimacy is to be applied and the benefit is only to be denied if that presumption is rebutted by evidence to the contrary: Decision R(G)1/92.

86A. Preservation of rights in respect of additional pensions for widows or widowers.

The Secretary of State may by regulations make such provision as is authorised by the following provisions<sup>1</sup>. The regulations may provide for any prescribed provision of the statutory rules relating to contributory benefits<sup>2</sup> which relates to additional pension for widows, widowers or surviving civil partners to have effect, in relation to persons of any prescribed description, with such modifications as may be prescribed for securing that any such additional pension, or, in the case of any provision relating to the increase of pension or payment of lump sum where entitlement is deferred<sup>3</sup>, that any constituent element of an increase or of a lump sum provided for, is increased by such percentage as may be prescribed (which may be 100 per cent)<sup>4</sup>. The regulations may amend (or further amend) any prescribed provision of a list of specified provisions<sup>5</sup> so as to substitute a reference to a later date for any reference in that provision to 5 October 2002 or 6 October 2002 or any reference to a date already substituted by virtue of this provision<sup>6</sup>. The regulations may make provision for and in connection with (1) the establishment, for a prescribed period, of a scheme for dealing with claims made by persons on the grounds that, in reliance on any incorrect or incomplete information provided by a government department with respect to the SERPS reduction (however that information came to their knowledge), they (a) failed to take any, or any particular, relevant steps<sup>7</sup> which they would have taken, or (b) took any steps which they would not have taken, had they instead received correct and complete information with respect to that reduction; and (2) securing that, where persons have made successful claims under the scheme, surviving spouses of those persons (or, as the case may be, those persons themselves) will not be affected by the SERPS reduction<sup>8</sup>. The regulations may also provide<sup>9</sup> for a case in which a person who, as a consequence of receiving incorrect or incomplete information, did not give any consideration to the taking of a step which is a step he might have taken had he considered the matter on the basis of correct and complete information, or refraining from taking a step which is a step he did take but might have refrained from taking had he considered the matter on that basis, to be treated as a case in which his failure to take the step, or his taking of the step he did take, was in reliance on the incorrect or incomplete information and as a case in which that step is one which he would have taken, or (as the case may be) would not have taken, had the information been correct and complete<sup>10</sup>.

Until such time as regulations under these provisions are made, transitional provisions apply<sup>11</sup>.

85-89 Widowed mother's allowance ... Long term incapacity benefit for widowers

The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 37-40 apply only in cases where a woman's husband has died before the appointed day (as defined), and s 41 applies only in cases where a man's wife has died before that day: s 36A(1) (s 36A added by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 55(1)).

The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 39A-39C (see PARAS 87A-87C) apply in cases where a person's spouse or civil partner dies on or after the appointed day, but s 39A also applies (in accordance with s 39A(1)(b)) in cases where a man's wife has died before that day: s 36A(2) (s 36A as added; s 36A(2) amended by Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 17).

For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 36A, 39A, 39B, 'the appointed day' means the day appointed for the coming into force of the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 ss 54-56 (see PARA 84 TEXT AND NOTES): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 36A(3) (s 36A as added). The Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 ss 54-56 came into force for the purpose of making regulations on 24 April 2000 and for all other purposes on 9 April 2001: SI 2000/1047.

87. Rate of widowed mother's allowance and widow's pension.

The weekly<sup>1</sup> rate of widowed mother's allowance<sup>2</sup> and widow's pension<sup>3</sup> is determined in accordance with the provisions applicable in the case of a Category A retirement pension<sup>4</sup>. A recipient of widowed mother's allowance is entitled to increases for her child dependants<sup>5</sup>. The rate is subject to reduction in two circumstances:

- 273 (1) where a widow's pension is payable to a woman who was under the age of 55<sup>6</sup> at the time when the applicable qualifying condition was fulfilled<sup>7</sup>, the weekly rate is reduced by seven per cent for each year by which her age at that time was less than 55, with any fraction of a year being counted as a year<sup>8</sup>;
- 274 (2) where a woman's husband dies after 5 April 2000, the additional pension<sup>9</sup> is to be one half of what it would otherwise have been<sup>10</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'week' see PARA 32 note 7 ante.

2 As to widowed mother's allowance see PARA 85 ante.

3 As to widow's pension see PARA 86 ante.

4 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 39(1) (amended by the Pensions Act 1995 s 127(2)). A Category A pension is calculated under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 44-45A (as amended and added): see PARAS 568-569 post. In the application of ss 44-45A (as amended and added) by virtue of s 39(1) (as amended), where the woman's husband was over pensionable age when he died, references in those sections to the pensioner must be taken as references to the husband, and where the husband was under pensionable age when he died, references in those sections to the pensioner and the tax year in which he attained pensionable age must be taken as references to the husband and the tax year in which he died: s 39(2) (as so amended). See also s 46(2) (as amended); and PARA 569 note 9 post. For the meaning of 'pensionable age' see PARA 562 post; and for the meaning of 'tax year' see PARA 9 note 6 ante. As to when a person attains a particular age see PARA 19 note 11 ante.

5 See ibid s 80 (as amended); and PARAS 122, 590 post. This is because s 80(2)(d) applies the child dependant increases to Category A pensions. A widow in receipt of the child dependant increase can also claim child benefit in respect of that child, but not the extra child benefit payable in respect of her being a single parent or if the child is the only or eldest child: see the Social Security (Overlapping Benefits) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/597, reg 8 (substituted by SI 1991/547).

6 In the case of a widow whose late husband died before 11 April 1988 and who either (1) was over the age of 40 but under the age of 55 at the time of her husband's death; or (2) is over the age of 40 but under the age of 55 at the time when she ceases to be entitled to a widowed mother's allowance, head (1) in the text has effect as if for '55' there were substituted '50' in both places where it occurs: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 39(6). For the meaning of 'late husband' see PARA 82 ante.

7 The time when the applicable qualifying condition is fulfilled is the time when the woman's late husband died or when she ceased to be entitled to a widowed mother's allowance: ibid s 39(5).

8 Ibid s 39(4).

9 Ie the additional pension falling to be calculated under ibid ss 44-45A (as amended and added) by virtue of s 39(1) (as amended): see PARA 569 post.

The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 37-40 apply only in cases where a woman's husband has died before the appointed day (as defined), and s 41 applies only in cases where a man's wife has died before that day: s 36A(1) (s 36A added by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 55(1)).

The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 39A-39C (see PARAS 87A-87C) apply in cases where a person's spouse or civil partner dies on or after the appointed day, but s 39A also applies (in accordance with s 39A(1)(b)) in cases where a man's wife has died before that day: s 36A(2) (s 36A as added; s 36A(2) amended by Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 17).

For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 36A, 39A, 39B, 'the appointed day' means the day appointed for the coming into force of the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 ss 54-56 (see PARA 84 TEXT AND NOTES): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 36A(3) (s 36A as added). The Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 ss 54-56 came into force for the purpose of making regulations on 24 April 2000 and for all other purposes on 9 April 2001: SI 2000/1047.

For amendments to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 39C see Pensions Act 2007 s 6(6) (amendments have effect in relation to the designated tax year and subsequent tax years: see s 6(7); for further effect see s 6(9), (10)).

The weekly rate of a widowed parent's allowance is determined in accordance with certain provisions applying in the case of a Category A retirement pension<sup>1</sup> as they apply in relation to such a pension, but subject, in particular, to certain additional provisions<sup>2</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> ie subject to the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 39C(2)-(5) (s 39C added by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 55(2)); Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 39C(1) (as added; amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 35(1), (4); the Tax Credits Act 2002 Sch 3 para 29; and the Pensions Act 2007 Sch 2 para 4(2)). As to commencement generally, see PARA 85-89. The weekly rate of a bereavement allowance is determined in accordance with the provisions of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 44 as they apply in the case of a Category A retirement pension so far as consisting only of the basic pension referred to in s 44(3)(a), but subject, in particular, to s 39C(3)-(5); s 39C(2) (as added; prospectively substituted by Pensions Act 2007 s 6(6)(a)). In the application of the 1992 Act ss 44-45, Sch 4A, or as the case may be, s 44 by virtue of s 39C(1) or (2), (1) where the deceased spouse or civil partner was over pensionable age at his or her death, references in ss 44-45 to the pensioner are to be taken as references to the deceased spouse or civil partner; and (2) where the deceased spouse or civil partner was under pensionable age at his or her death, references to the pensioner and the tax year in which he attained pensionable age are to be taken as references to the deceased spouse or civil partner and the tax year in which he or she died: s 39C(3) (as added, amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 s 35(1), (4); the Tax Credits Act 2002 Sch 3 para 29; the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 22; and the Pensions Act 2007 Sch 2 para 4(3); prospectively amended by Pensions Act 2007 s 6(6)(b)). Where a widowed parent's allowance is payable to a person whose spouse or civil partner died after 5 October 2002, the additional pension falling to be calculated under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 44-45 by virtue of s 39C(1) is one half of the amount which it would be apart from this provision: s 39C(4) (as added, amended by the Child Support, Pensions and Social Security Act 2000 ss 35(1), (4), 39(1), (2); the Tax Credits Act 2002 Sch 3 para 29; and the Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 22). Where a bereavement allowance is payable to a person who was under the age of 55 at the time of the spouse's death or civil partner's, the weekly rate of the allowance is to be reduced by seven per cent of what it would be apart from this provision multiplied by the number of years by which that person's age at that time was less than 55, any fraction of a year being counted as a year: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 39C(5) (as added and amended). See further MATRIMONIAL AND CIVIL PARTNERSHIP LAW.

Sections 44-45 also apply subject to s 46(2) and (4) (see PARA 569 NOTE 9): s 39C(1) (as added and amended).

88. Long term incapacity benefit for widows.

There are provisions making it easier for a widowed<sup>1</sup> woman to qualify for long-term incapacity benefit if she is incapable of work but is either not entitled to widow's pension or has an entitlement which is reduced on account of her age when she qualified<sup>2</sup>. These provisions apply to a woman who:

- 275 (1) on her late husband's<sup>3</sup> death is not entitled<sup>4</sup> to a widowed mother's allowance<sup>5</sup> or subsequently ceases to be entitled to such an allowance;
- 276 (2) is incapable of work<sup>6</sup> at the time when he dies or when she subsequently ceases to be so entitled;
- 277 (3) Either would have been entitled to a widow's pension<sup>7</sup> if she had been over the age of 45<sup>8</sup> when her husband died or when she ceased to be entitled to a widowed mother's allowance, or is entitled to such a pension with a reduction because of her age<sup>9</sup>; and
- 278 (4) is not otherwise entitled to incapacity benefit<sup>10</sup>, but do not apply to a woman unless either her husband died after 5 April 1979 or she ceased to be entitled to a widowed mother's allowance after that date (whenever her husband died)<sup>11</sup>. Where these provisions apply, the woman is entitled to long-term incapacity benefit<sup>12</sup> for any day of incapacity for work<sup>13</sup> which:

- 279 (a) falls in a period of incapacity for work<sup>14</sup> that began before the time when her late husband died or she subsequently ceased to be entitled to a widowed mother's allowance; and
- 280 (b) is after that time and after the first 364 days of incapacity for work in that period<sup>15</sup>.

The weekly rate of incapacity benefit under these provisions is:

- 281 (i) if the woman is not entitled to widow's pension, the amount which would apply if she were entitled to long-term incapacity benefit in the normal way<sup>16</sup>; and
- 282 (ii) if she is entitled to widow's pension but it is reduced because of her age, the difference between her weekly rate of pension and the weekly rate of long-term incapacity benefit<sup>17</sup>.

A woman is not entitled to incapacity benefit under these provisions if she is over pensionable age<sup>18</sup>; but if she has attained pensionable age and the period of incapacity for work<sup>19</sup> did not terminate before she attained that age she is, if not otherwise entitled to a Category A retirement pension<sup>20</sup>, entitled to such a pension<sup>21</sup>.

(2) SEVERE DISABLEMENT ALLOWANCE

92. In general.

Severe disablement allowance exists to provide a residual, non-contributory benefit for those who have been incapacitated for work from an early age (possibly from birth), or are both incapable of work and seriously disabled, but who have been unable to build up the contributions necessary for any major sickness-related contributory benefits<sup>1</sup>. Severe disablement allowance replaced, as from November 1984, the non-contributory invalidity pension which had served a similar function<sup>2</sup>.

Severe disablement allowance is payable to two types of claimant:

- 296 (1) those incapable of work, whose incapacity began before they reached the age of 20; and
- 297 (2) those who are both incapable of work and at least 80 per cent disabled; and in both these cases the claimant must satisfy the condition of having been incapacitated from work for a minimum period of 196 days<sup>3</sup>.

It is paid at a weekly flat rate (below that for the equivalent contributory benefits), with an age addition and increases for child or adult dependants<sup>4</sup>.

1 The provisions relating to severe disablement allowance are contained in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 68, 69 (as amended) and the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303 (as amended).

2 For transitional provisions relating to these two benefits see the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, regs 18-20 (as amended). In particular, any person who, immediately before 10 September 1984 and 29 November 1984 (the time of change) was entitled to a non-contributory invalidity pension was entitled to a severe disablement allowance for 29 November 1984 and any subsequent days which together with 29 November 1984 fell within a single period of incapacity for work, whether or not (1) he was disabled for the purposes of what is now the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 68; or (2) 29 November 1984 was appointed for the purposes of the Health and Social Security Act 1984 s 11 (repealed) in relation to persons of his age, if he satisfied the other requirements for entitlement to such an allowance: see reg 20(1) (amended by SI 1994/2947); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). However, these transitional provisions were held to offend the sex equality provisions of EC Council Directive 79/7 (OJ L6 10.1.79, p 24) as invalidity pension, prior to its replacement, could only be claimed by a married woman if she showed both that she was incapable of work and was incapable of normal household duties: see Case 384/85 Clarke v Chief Adjudication Officer [1987] ECR 2865, [1987] 3 CMLR 277, EC; Decision R(S)2/88. In the light of this, subsequent legislation provided that a woman who (a) would have been entitled to a non-contributory invalidity pension immediately before 29 November 1984 but for the requirement that she be incapable of performing normal household duties (whether or not she had made a claim for that pension); and (b) had been continuously incapable of work since that date, was to be entitled to a severe disability allowance whether or not she is disabled for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 68 and whether or not she has attained the age referred to in s 68(4)(d), if she satisfies the other requirements for entitlement to that allowance: Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 20(1A) (added by SI 1993/3194).

3 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 68(1)-(3); and PARAS 93-94 post. There is provision for the making of regulations to direct (1) that persons who have previously been entitled to a severe disability allowance may be so entitled notwithstanding that they do not satisfy the conditions specified in s 68 (as amended); and (2) that those conditions are to have effect in relation to such persons subject to such modifications as may be specified: see s 68(11)(b).

94. The disablement condition.

A person is entitled to a severe disablement allowance for any day (the relevant day) if he satisfies the following conditions:

- 300 (1) on the relevant day he is both incapable of work<sup>1</sup> and disabled; and
- 301 (2) he has been incapable of work and disabled for a period of not less than 196 consecutive days ending immediately before the relevant day<sup>2</sup>.

For these purposes, a person is disabled if he suffers from loss of physical or mental faculty such that the extent of the resulting disablement<sup>3</sup> amounts to not less than 80 per cent<sup>4</sup>.

There are, however, detailed regulatory provisions<sup>5</sup> setting out the evidence required to establish disablement of not less than 80 per cent on the relevant day, namely evidence that:

- 302 (a) on that day he is or was entitled to (a) a mobility allowance (now withdrawn and replaced by other allowances), the mobility component of disability living allowance at the higher rate or the care component of that allowance at the highest or middle rate<sup>6</sup>; or (b) to a mobility supplement<sup>7</sup>;
- 303 (b) on that day he is or was entitled to the care component of disability living allowance at the highest rate<sup>8</sup>;
- 304 (c) the extent of his disablement on that day has been assessed for the purposes of disablement pension as not less than 80 per cent<sup>9</sup>;
- 305 (d) that day is or was or is or was later than one in respect of which it has been determined under the Vaccine Damage Payments Act 1979 that he is or was severely disabled as a result of a vaccination against any of the diseases to which the 1979 Act applies;
- 306 (e) the degree of his disablement on that day has been assessed for the purpose of the Naval, Military and Air Forces etc (Disablement and Death) Service Pensions Order 1983 or the Personal Injuries (Civilians) Scheme 1983 as not less than 80 per cent;
- 307 (f) on that day he is or was registered as a blind or partially sighted person in a register compiled under the National Assistance Act 1948;
- 308 (g) he has been certified as blind or partially sighted and that in consequence he is or was registered on that day as blind or partially sighted in a register maintained by or on behalf of a regional or islands council;
- 309 (h) on that day the Secretary of State provides or provided him with an invalid carriage or other vehicle<sup>10</sup> pursuant to the National Health Service Act 1977 or makes or made payments by way of grant to him under that Act;
- 310 (i) on that day the Secretary of State provides or provided him with an invalid carriage or other vehicle pursuant to the National Health Service (Scotland) Act 1978 or makes or made payments by way of grant to him under that Act;
- 311 (j) the extent of his disablement on that day has been assessed for the purposes of severe disablement allowance as not less than 80 per cent,

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) SEVERE DISABLEMENT ALLOWANCE/95. Assessment of extent of disablement.

95. Assessment of extent of disablement.

For the purposes of the severe disablement allowance, the extent of disablement is assessed by reference to the disabilities incurred by the claimant as a result of the relevant loss of faculty<sup>1</sup> and in accordance with the following principles:

- 312 (1) subject to heads (2) and (3) below, the disabilities to be taken into account are all disabilities so incurred (whether or not involving loss of earning power or additional expense) to which the claimant may be expected, having regard to his physical and mental condition at the date of assessment, to be subject during the period taken into account by the assessment as compared with a person of the same age and sex whose physical and mental condition is normal;
- 313 (2) the assessment is made without reference to the particular circumstances of the claimant other than age, sex and physical and mental condition;
- 314 (3) the disabilities resulting from such loss of faculty as may be prescribed are taken as amounting to 100 per cent disablement and other disabilities are assessed accordingly<sup>2</sup>.

In the case of an assessment of any person's disablement for the purposes of the severe disability allowance provisions<sup>3</sup>, the period to be taken into account for any such assessment is the period during which that person has suffered and may be expected to continue to suffer from the relevant loss of faculty, beginning not later than:

- 315 (a) the first claim day, if his entitlement to benefit falls to be determined in accordance with the relevant provisions<sup>4</sup>;
- 316 (b) where his disablement has previously been assessed for the purposes of the severe disability allowance provisions<sup>5</sup> at a percentage which is not less than 80 per cent:

- 27. (i) if the period taken into account for that assessment was or included the period of 196 days ending immediately before the first claim day, the first claim day; or
- 28. (ii) if the period so taken into account included any day falling within the period of 196 days, the day immediately following that day or, if there is more than one such day, the last such day;

- 317 (c) in any other case, 196 days before the first claim day; and in any case ending not later than the day on which that person attains the age of 65 years<sup>6</sup>.

1 For these purposes, 'relevant loss of faculty' means the loss of faculty which results in the disablement: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1). For the meaning of 'claimant' see PARA 19 note 5 ante.

2 See ibid s 68(6), Sch 6 para 1. There is further provision for the making of regulations defining the general principles upon which assessment is to be made: see Sch 6 paras 2, 3.

3 le ibid s 68 (as amended).

4 le if his entitlement to benefit falls to be determined in accordance with ibid s 68(3)(b), as modified by regulation under s 68(11)(b).

5 le ibid s 68 (as amended).

6 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 68(6), Sch 6 para 4 (amended by the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance and Invalid Care Allowance) Amendment Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2556).

An assessment of any person's disablement for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 68 (as amended) must state the degree of disablement in the form of a percentage and specify the period taken into account by the assessment: Sch 6 para 5(1). For the purposes of any such assessment (1) a percentage which is not a whole number must be rounded to the nearest whole number or, if it falls equally near two whole numbers, rounded up to the higher; and (2) a percentage between five and 100 which is not a multiple of 10 must be treated, if it is a multiple of five, as being the next higher percentage which is a multiple of 10 and, in any other case, as being the nearest percentage which is a multiple of 10: Sch 6 para 5(2). If on the assessment the person's disablement is found to be less than five per cent, that degree of disablement is disregarded for the purposes of s 68 (as amended) and accordingly, the assessment must state that he is not disabled: Sch 6 para 5(3).

Where several conditions each contribute towards the total disablement, it is only the final aggregate that can be rounded up, not each component's score: see Decision CS/73/1992. As to multiple disablements generally see Decision R(S)4/89.

92-99 Severe Disablement Allowance

Subject to a saving in respect of existing severe disablement allowance beneficiaries (see SI 2000/2958 art 4), the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 68, 69 are repealed: Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 65, Sch 13 Pt IV.

95 Assessment of extent of disablement

TEXT AND NOTES 1, 2--Subject to a saving in respect of existing severe disablement allowance beneficiaries (see SI 2000/2958 art 4), the Social Security and Contributions Act 1992 Sch 6 para 1 is repealed in so far as it applied to such an allowance: Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 13 Pt IV.

NOTE 1--Definition of 'relevant loss of faculty' (in relation to severe disablement allowance) omitted: Social Security and Contributions Act 1992 s 122(1) (amended by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 Sch 13 Pt IV (amendment subject to a saving: see TEXT AND NOTES 1, 2)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) SEVERE DISABLEMENT ALLOWANCE/96. Rate of payment.

96. Rate of payment.

Severe disablement allowance is payable at a specified weekly rate<sup>1</sup>. In addition, a claimant may be entitled to the following increases in allowance:

- 318 (1) an age-related addition: if a person was under the age of 60 years on the day on which he qualified for severe disablement allowance, the weekly rate of his severe disablement allowance may be increased by an age related addition at the appropriate weekly rate<sup>2</sup>, that is to say:
- 25
29. (a) the higher rate, if he was under the age of 40 years on the day on which he qualified;
30. (b) the middle rate, if he was between the ages of 40 and 50 years on that day; and
31. (c) the lower rate, if he was between the ages of 50 and 60 years on that day<sup>3</sup>.
- 26
- 319 (2) a dependant increase: the weekly rate of a severe disablement allowance may, in such circumstances as may be prescribed, be increased for child or adult dependants by a specified appropriate amount<sup>4</sup>.

1 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 68(7). The amount so specified is contained in Sch 4 Part III para 2 (subject to frequent amendment) and is currently set at £36.95. The amount of severe disablement allowance payable for any relevant day is one seventh of the weekly rate: s 68(8) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11(1), Sch 1 Pt I para 18(2)).

2 See those rates specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 68(7), Sch 4 Pt III para 3 (as amended).

3 Ibid s 69(1). For the purposes of s 69 the day on which a person qualified for severe disablement allowance is his first day of incapacity for work in the period of not less than 196 consecutive days mentioned in s 68(2)(b) or (3)(b) (see PARAS 93-94 ante), as the case may be, which preceded the first day in his current period of entitlement: s 69(2). There are, however, provisions permitting an earlier day to be counted in certain specific instances: see the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, regs 10A, 10B (added by SI 1990/2209; substituted by SI 1991/1747); and the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 69 a person's 'current period of entitlement' is a current period (1) which consists of one or more consecutive days on which he is or has been entitled to a severe disablement allowance; and (2) which begins immediately after the last period of one or more consecutive days for which he was not entitled to such an allowance: s 69(3). There is further provision for the making of regulations in relation to qualification for severe disablement allowance: see s 69(4).

4 Ibid s 90. The amounts so specified are set out in Sch 4 Pt IV (subject to frequent amendment). These increases are governed by the provisions of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Part IV (ss 80-93) (as amended) (see PARA 121 et seq post) and the Social Security (Incapacity Benefit - Increases for Dependents) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2945, applied for these purposes by the Social Security (Dependency) Regulations 1977, SI 1977/343, reg 12(1) (substituted by SI 1994/2945).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) SEVERE DISABLEMENT ALLOWANCE/97. Limitations and disentitlements.

97. Limitations and disentitlements.

As a claimant for severe disablement allowance must be incapable of work<sup>1</sup> (under either the age condition<sup>2</sup> or the disability condition<sup>3</sup>), any limitations or disentitlements contained in the general rules as to incapacity for work dealt with elsewhere in this title<sup>4</sup> will apply equally for the purposes of the severe disablement allowance provisions. In addition, it is provided that (1) a person is not to be treated as incapable of work for any day on which he attends a training course (in respect of which a training allowance<sup>5</sup> is paid)<sup>6</sup>; and (2) for the purpose of determining whether a person has been incapable of work for a period of not less than 196 consecutive days, a day is not to be treated as a day on which that person was incapable of work if that was a day on which he was undergoing imprisonment or detention in legal custody, and which was part of a period of imprisonment or detention of more than six weeks<sup>7</sup>.

A person is not entitled to severe disablement allowance if:

- 320 (a) he is under the age of 16; or
- 321 (b) he is receiving full time education<sup>8</sup>; or
- 322 (c) he does not satisfy the prescribed conditions as to residence in Great Britain or as to presence there<sup>9</sup>; or
- 323 (d) he has attained the age of 65 years and was not entitled to severe disablement allowance immediately before he attained that age and is not treated by regulations as having been so entitled<sup>10</sup>.

A person is not entitled to the allowance for any day which as between him and his employer falls within a period of entitlement for the purposes of statutory sick pay<sup>11</sup>.

In addition to the above disentitlements, there are two circumstances in which the amount of severe disablement allowance is to be reduced. First, in any case where a severe disablement allowance is payable to a woman in respect of one or more relevant days in a week and an amount of statutory maternity pay becomes payable to her on any day in that week, the amount of severe disability allowance (including any increase for a child or adult dependant<sup>12</sup>) so payable is reduced by the amount of the statutory maternity pay, and only the balance (if any) is payable<sup>13</sup>. Secondly, where the amount of a councillor's allowance to which a person is entitled in respect of a week exceeds the specified sum<sup>14</sup>, then an amount equal to the excess is deducted from the amount of any severe disablement allowance to which he is entitled in respect of that week, and only the balance remaining (if any) is payable<sup>15</sup>.

7 See the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 7(2) (substituted by SI 1994/2947).

8 A person is treated as 'receiving full-time education' for the purposes of severe disablement allowance for any period during which (1) he is not less than 16 or more than 19 years of age; and (2) he attends for not less than 21 hours per week a course of education (so, however, that in calculating the number of hours no account is to be taken of any instruction or tuition which is not suitable for persons of the same age and sex who do not suffer from a physical or mental disability): see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 68(11) (cb) (substituted by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11(1), Sch 1 Pt 1 para 18(3)); and the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 8(1). Any temporary disruption of the education may be disregarded: see reg 8(2). A person over the age of 19 years is not to be treated as receiving full time education: reg 8(3). As to when a person attains a particular age see PARA 19 note 11 ante.

9 The prescribed conditions as to residence in Great Britain or as to presence there are that (1) on that day (a) he is ordinarily resident in Great Britain and his right to reside or remain in Great Britain is not subject to any limitation or condition, and (b) he is present in Great Britain and has been so present for a period of (or periods amounting in aggregate to) not less than 26 weeks in the 52 weeks immediately preceding that day; and (2) where that day falls within a period in which the person receives tax free emoluments (ie emoluments which are exempt from tax under any of the provisions listed in the Child Benefit (General) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/965, reg 9(1)) or is the spouse of a person receiving such emoluments, that period is immediately preceded by a period of four years during which the person receiving the emoluments was present in Great Britain for not less than 156 weeks in aggregate: see the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 3(1), (1A) (substituted by SI 1992/704; amended by SI 1996/30); and the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

Where a person has been entitled to a severe disablement allowance (or the previous non-contributory invalidity pension) for any day, the conditions as to residence in Great Britain or as to presence there do not apply to that person in respect of any subsequent day of incapacity falling within the same period of incapacity for work: Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 3(3) (amended by SI 1994/2947). Specific provision is made in relation to residence of refugees, immigrants, EC nationals and members of the forces: see the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 3(2) (as amended). These provisions may be subject to modification under the Social Security Benefit (Pensions Abroad) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/563.

In relation to head (d) in the text, a person who has attained the age of 65 years is to be treated as having been entitled to a severe disablement allowance immediately before attaining that age if immediately before attaining it (1) he would have satisfied the conditions of entitlement to that allowance or a non-contributory invalidity pension but for the provisions of the Social Security (Overlapping Benefits) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/597; or (2) he was entitled to a non-contributory invalidity pension: Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 4 (amended by SI 1994/2556); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2) (b). ### 92-99 Severe Disablement Allowance

Subject to a saving in respect of existing severe disablement allowance beneficiaries (see SI 2000/2958 art 4), the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 68, 69 are repealed: Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 65, Sch 13 Pt IV.

97 Limitations and disentitlements

TEXT AND NOTES 1-7--In addition, a person is to be treated as incapable of work on any day in a period, consisting of a cumulative number of days of incapacity for work not exceeding 91 days in total for which he makes a claim for severe disablement allowance, beginning within a linking term and ending on a day not later than 13 weeks from the end of that linking term in respect of which he has been determined to be a person who is a welfare to work beneficiary: SI 1984/1303 reg 7(1B) (added by SI 1998/2231). For the meaning of 'linking term' and 'welfare to work beneficiary', see the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 13A; and PARA 71. Also, for the purposes of severe disablement allowance, a person is to be treated as incapable of work on any day where he is treated as incapable of work under the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) (General) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/311, reg 10A (see PARA 71): SI 1984/1303 reg 7(1C) (added by SI 2000/678).

SI 1976/965 now replaced by the Child Benefit (General) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/223 (amended by SI 2007/2150, SI 2008/1879, SI 2009/3268).

SI 1975/563 amended: SI 2000/2876, SI 2001/2618, SI 2005/1551, SI 2005/2877, SI 2010/788.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) SEVERE DISABLEMENT ALLOWANCE/98. Severe disablement allowance after the age of 65 years.

98. Severe disablement allowance after the age of 65 years.

A person who has attained the age of 65 years and was entitled to a severe disablement allowance immediately before he attained that age may continue to be so entitled even though he does not still satisfy the age condition<sup>1</sup> or the disability condition<sup>2</sup>, if he satisfies the other requirements for entitlement to severe disablement allowance<sup>3</sup>. To this extent, the allowance may operate as a form of non-contributory retirement pension for those who have been incapable of work.

1    Ie the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 68(2): see PARA 93 ante.

2    Ie ibid s 68(3): see PARA 94 ante.

3    See ibid s 68(11)(a) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11(1), Sch 1 Pt I para 18(3)); and the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 5 (amended by SI 1994/2556); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). As to the other requirements for entitlement to severe disablement allowance see PARA 92 ante. The reference within the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 5 (as amended) to the age of 65 years was substituted (as from October 1994) by the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance and Invalid Care Allowance) Amendment Regulations 1994, SI 1994/ 2556, for a reference to attaining retiring age because the former regulations differentiated between the sexes and were contrary to the principle of equal treatment for men and women on matters of social security: EC Council Directive 79/7 (OJ L6 10.1.79, p 24). See also PARA 92 note 2 ante. It is now specifically provided that a woman who attained the age of 65 years before 28 October 1994 is entitled to the allowance if she would have been entitled to a severe disablement allowance (or, if attaining that age before 29 November 1984, to a non-contributory invalidity pension) but for the pensionable age provision (ie the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 68(4)(d) or the corresponding condition in respect of non-contributory invalidity pension), and otherwise satisfies the requirements for the allowance (other than the age and disability conditions); and for these purposes the previous condition for entitlement to a non-contributory invalidity pension that the claimant, if she were married or cohabiting with a man, be incapable of performing household duties ('the household duties test') is to be excluded: see the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 4A (added by SI 1994/2556). A man who attained the age of 65 years before 28 October 1994 and was entitled to either the allowance or the old non-contributory invalidity pension when he attained that age continues to be entitled to the allowance if he otherwise satisfies the requirement for the allowance (other than the age and disability conditions): Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance) Regulations 1984, SI 1984/1303, reg 5A (added by SI 1994/2556).

UPDATE

92-99 Severe Disablement Allowance

Subject to a saving in respect of existing severe disablement allowance beneficiaries (see SI 2000/2958 art 4), the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 68, 69 are repealed: Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 65, Sch 13 Pt IV.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(2) SEVERE DISABLEMENT ALLOWANCE/99. Discontinuous claims.

99. Discontinuous claims.

A person who has previously been entitled to a severe disability allowance for any day may be entitled to such an allowance on the relevant day notwithstanding that he does not satisfy the requirement for qualifying for severe disablement allowance (under either the age or disability conditions) of incapacity for work for the normally required 196 consecutive days<sup>1</sup>, if the relevant day and the earlier day fall within the same period of incapacity for work and if he satisfies the other requirements for entitlement to such an allowance<sup>2</sup>. Thus, once the person has so qualified the claim can, up to a point, be discontinuous.

In the case of young persons, a person who was incapable of work (1) for not less than 196 consecutive days commencing on or before he attained the age of 20 years, and (2) for not less than 196 consecutive days immediately preceding the relevant day, but who was capable of work for a period which does not, or for periods which in the aggregate do not, exceed 182 days where that period or those periods occurred after the 196 days referred to in head (1) above but before the 196 days referred to in head (2) above, and after he attained the age of 15 years 24 weeks, is treated for the purposes of the age condition for qualification for severe disability allowance<sup>3</sup>, and for that purpose only, as incapable of work on each day within that period or periods<sup>4</sup>.

Similarly in order to encourage persons in receipt of severe disablement allowance to attempt employment, it is provided that where (a) a person who is engaged and normally engaged in remunerative work ceases so to be engaged; and (b) he is entitled to a disability working allowance for the week in which there falls the last day on which he is so engaged; and (c) he qualified for a disability working allowance for that week by virtue of a severe disability allowance having been payable to him; and (d) the first day after he ceases to be so engaged is a day on which he is incapable of work and falls not later than the end of the period of two years beginning with the last day for which he was entitled to a severe disablement allowance, any day since that day which fell within a week for which he was entitled to a disability working allowance is treated for the purposes of any claim for a severe disablement allowance for a period commencing after he ceases to be so engaged as having been a day on which he was both incapable of work and disabled; thus such a person requalifies immediately for severe disablement allowance<sup>5</sup>. Further, there is equivalent provision allowing a person in receipt of the allowance to undertake training for work<sup>6</sup> for a period of up to two years while retaining the ability if necessary to requalify immediately for the allowance<sup>7</sup>.

92-99 Severe Disablement Allowance

Subject to a saving in respect of existing severe disablement allowance beneficiaries (see SI 2000/2958 art 4), the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 68, 69 are repealed: Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 65, Sch 13 Pt IV.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(3) INVALID CARE ALLOWANCE/100. Entitlement to invalid care allowance.

(3) INVALID CARE ALLOWANCE

100. Entitlement to invalid care allowance.

A person is entitled to an invalid care allowance for any day on which he is engaged in caring for a severely disabled person if:

- 324 (1) he is regularly and substantially engaged in caring for that person<sup>1</sup>; and
- 325 (2) he is not gainfully employed<sup>2</sup>; and
- 326 (3) the severely disabled person is a prescribed relative or other person<sup>3</sup>.

For these purposes, a 'severely disabled person' means a person in respect of whom there is payable either an attendance allowance<sup>4</sup>, or a disability living allowance (at the higher or middle rate)<sup>5</sup> or one of certain other prescribed benefits paid out of public funds<sup>6</sup>.

Invalid care allowance is payable at a specified weekly rate<sup>7</sup>, with additions where appropriate for adult and child dependants<sup>8</sup>.

1 A person is treated as engaged and as regularly and substantially engaged in caring for a severely disabled person on every day in a week if, and is not treated as regularly and substantially engaged in caring for such a person on any day in a week unless, as at that week he is, or is likely to be, engaged and regularly engaged for at least 35 hours a week in so caring: see the Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 4(1) (amended by SI 1993/1851). Where a person is caring for two or more severely disabled people in a week he is treated as engaged and regularly and substantially engaged in caring for a severely disabled person only where he is so engaged and regularly engaged for at least 35 hours in that week in caring for any one severely disabled person, considered without reference to any other severely disabled person for whom he is caring: Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 4(1A) (added by SI 1993/1851) (reversing the effects of Decision R(G)3/93). Temporary cessation of care may be disregarded as long as care has been provided for 14 out of the last 26 weeks and would have been provided for at least 22 of those weeks but for the fact that either he or the person for whom he was caring was undergoing medical or other treatment as an in-patient in a hospital or similar institution: see the Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 4(2).

Where there is a fluctuating pattern of care, averaging between weeks is not permitted: Decision R(G)3/91.

2 A person is not treated as gainfully employed on any day in a week unless his earnings in the immediately preceding week have exceeded £50 and is treated as being gainfully employed on every day in a week if his earnings in the immediately preceding week have exceeded £50: Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 8(1) (amended by SI 1993/316; and SI 1996/2744). For these purposes there is to be disregarded a person's earnings (1) for any week of temporary cessation of care (see note 1 supra); and (2) in the week immediately preceding the week in respect of which that person (if his earnings in the immediately preceding week were disregarded) would first become entitled to an invalid care allowance in respect of a severely disabled person: reg 8(2) (amended by SI 1995/2935; SI 1996/2744).

3 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 70(1). For the purposes of head (3) in the text, where a severely disabled person is being cared for by another person, that disabled person is treated as a prescribed person, whether he is related to the person caring for him or not: Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 6 (substituted by SI 1981/655; amended by SI 1996/2744).

4 See PARA 112 et seq post.

5 See PARA 102 et seq post.

6 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 70(2). For the purposes of s 70 (as amended) the prescribed payments out of public funds which constitute the persons in respect of whom they are payable as severely disabled persons are (1) a payment under s 104 (increase of disablement pension where constant attendance needed); (2) a payment such as is referred to in the Industrial Injuries and Diseases (Old Cases) Act 1975 s 7(3)(b) (repealed) (increase in specified allowance for constant attendance); (3) a payment under the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Benefit) Regulations 1975, reg 44 (revoked) in respect of the need of constant attendance; and (4) a payment by way of an allowance in respect of constant attendance on account of disablement for which a person is in receipt of war pension, being a payment the weekly rate of which is not less than the amount specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 104, Sch 4 Pt V para 2(a) (as amended): Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 3(1) (amended by SI 1996/2744). For the meaning of 'war disablement pension' for these purposes see the Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 3(2). As to war pensions generally see WAR AND ARMED CONFLICT vol 49(1) (2005 Reissue) PARA 595 et seq.

7 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 70(9), Sch 4 Pt III para 4 (subject to frequent amendment).

8 See ibid s 90. The amounts so specified are set out in Sch 4 Part IV para 9 (subject to frequent amendment). These increases are governed by the provisions of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Part IV (ss 80-93) (as amended) (see PARA 121 et seq post) and the Social Security (Incapacity Benefit - Increases for Dependents) Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2945, applied for these purposes by the Social Security (Dependency) Regulations 1977, SI 1977/343, reg 12(1) (substituted by SI 1994/2945).

The provisions of the Social Security (General Benefit) Regulations 1982, SI 1982/1408 (as amended) (relating to increase of benefit for a wife, imprisonment, interim payments, arrears, repayments, set-off of benefit and rounding of sums) are specifically applied, with any necessary modifications, to invalid care allowance: see the Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 14 (amended by SI 1995/829).

100-101 [Carer's Allowance]

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(3) INVALID CARE ALLOWANCE/101. Exceptions and limitations to entitlement.

101. Exceptions and limitations to entitlement.

A person is not entitled to an invalid care allowance:

- 327 (1) if he is under the age of 16 or receiving full-time education<sup>1</sup>;
- 328 (2) unless he satisfies prescribed conditions as to residence or presence in Great Britain<sup>2</sup>;
- 329 (3) if he has attained the age of 65 years<sup>3</sup>, unless he was so entitled (or is treated as so entitled<sup>4</sup>) immediately before attaining that age<sup>5</sup>.

No person is entitled for the same day to more than one invalid care allowance; and where two or more persons would be entitled for the same day to such an allowance in respect of the same severely disabled person, one of them only is entitled and it is such one of them (a) as they may jointly elect in the prescribed manner<sup>6</sup>; or (b) as may, in default of such an election, be determined by the Secretary of State in his discretion<sup>7</sup>.

1 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 70(3). For the purposes of s 70(3) a person is treated as 'receiving full-time education' for any period during which he attends a course of education at a university, college, school or other educational establishment for 21 hours or more a week: Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 5(1) (substituted by SI 1992/470; amended by SI 1996/2744). In calculating the hours of attendance for these purposes (1) the time spent receiving instruction or tuition, undertaking supervised study, examination or practical work or taking part in any exercise, experiment or project for which provision is made in the curriculum of the course are all to be included; but (2) any time occupied by meal breaks or spent on unsupervised study, whether undertaken on or off the premises of the educational establishment is excluded: Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 5(2) (substituted by SI 1992/470). In determining the duration of a period of full-time education, a person who has started on a course of education is treated as attending it for the usual number of hours per week throughout any vacation or any temporary interruption of his attendance until the end of the course or such earlier date as he abandons it or is dismissed from it: Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations, SI 1976/409, reg 5(3).

2 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 70(4). The prescribed conditions as to residence or presence in Great Britain for the purposes of s 70(4) in relation to any person in respect of any day are (a) that he is ordinarily resident in Great Britain; and his right to reside or remain is not subject to any limitation or condition; and (b) that he is present in Great Britain; and (c) that he has been so present for a period of, or periods amounting in the aggregate to, not less than 26 weeks in the 12 months immediately preceding that day: Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 9(1) (amended by SI 1996/30; and SI 1996/2744). Specific provision is made in relation to residence of refugees, immigrants, EC nationals and members of the forces: see the Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 9(1A) (added by SI 1996/30), reg 9(2) (amended by SI 1991/2742; and SI 1996/2744), reg 9(3); and see Decision CG/15/1991.

3 The common age for men and women of 65 years was substituted by the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance and Invalid Care Allowance) Amendment Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2556, as from 28 October 1994; for the position in relation to women and men aged 65 years before that date see the Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations, SI 1976/409, regs 10A, 11A (added by SI 1994/2556). See also PARA 92 note 2 ante. As to when a person attains a particular age see PARA 19 note 11 ante.

4 A person who has attained the age of 65 years is treated, for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 70(5) (as amended), as having been entitled to an invalid care allowance immediately before attaining that age if, immediately before attaining it he would have satisfied the conditions for entitlement to the allowance but for the provisions of the Social Security (Overlapping Benefits) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/597: Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 10 (amended by SI 1994/2556; and SI 1996/2744).

5 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 70(5) (amended by the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance and Invalid Care Allowance) Amendment Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2556, reg 2(1), (3)). However, where a person is entitled to an invalid care allowance immediately before he attains the age of 65 years he is not disentitled to that allowance after he attains that age by reason only of the fact that he is not caring for a severely disabled person or no longer satisfies the ordinary conditions for entitlement set out in s 70(1)(a), (b): see s 70(6) (amended by the Social Security (Severe Disablement Allowance and Invalid Care Allowance) Amendment Regulations 1994, SI 1994/2556, reg 2(1), (3)); and the Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 11 (amended by SI 1994/2556; and SI 1996/2744).

Such an election is not effective to confer entitlement to invalid care allowance either for the day on which the election is made or for any earlier day if such day is one for which an invalid care allowance has been paid in respect of the severely disabled person in question and has not been repaid or recovered: Social Security (Invalid Care Allowance) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/409, reg 7(2).

(4) DISABILITY LIVING ALLOWANCE

102. Introduction.

Disability living allowance was introduced as from April 1992, replacing the previous attendance allowance and mobility allowance<sup>1</sup>. Disability living allowance consists of a care component and a mobility component<sup>2</sup>; the care component is payable at three rates (higher, middle and lower rates) and the mobility component at two rates (higher and lower rates)<sup>3</sup>. A person's entitlement to a disability living allowance may be an entitlement to either component or to both of them; a person may be awarded either component for a fixed period or for life, but if his award of a disability living allowance consists of both components, he may not be awarded the components for different fixed periods<sup>4</sup>. Although much of the drafting in relation to disability allowance is new, in particular the new lower rates for each component which are aimed at extending benefit to some disabled people who did not qualify under the old allowances, the drafting of the 'day' and 'night' conditions<sup>5</sup> for the higher and middle rates of the care component and of the conditions for the higher rate of the mobility component is the same as that for the old allowances and thus the case law on these old provisions continues to be applicable.

There is no requirement that a claimant be incapable of work in order to be eligible for disability living allowance; indeed, if a disabled person is in employment for more than 16 hours per week on a low wage he or she may be able to claim disability working allowance as well as disability living allowance<sup>6</sup>.

A specialised form of adjudications applies for disability benefits<sup>7</sup>, under which, in particular, appeals on matters relating to entitlement (including periods and rates of entitlement) are heard by disability appeal tribunals<sup>8</sup>. A person awarded disability living allowance may be required to attend for, or submit himself to, a medical examination and benefit may be withheld if he fails to comply<sup>9</sup>.

1 For transitional provisions see the Social Security (Introduction of Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2891. Mobility allowance has been repealed entirely; attendance allowance has been retained, but only in the case of claims first made after the age of 65 years: see PARA 112 post.

3 See PARAS 104, 106 post.

4 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 71(2), (3). The weekly rate of a person's disability living allowance for a week for which he has only been awarded one component is the appropriate weekly rate for that component determined in accordance with prescribed regulations: s 71(4). The weekly rate of a person's disability allowance for a week for which he has been awarded both components is the aggregate of the appropriate weekly rates for the two components as so determined: s 71(5). The various rates are prescribed by regulations and subject to periodic increase: see the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 4 (amended by SI 1993/1939; and SI 1997/543); and PARAS 104, 106 post.

An appeal to a disability appeal tribunal is in the nature of a rehearing, so that the tribunal may take into account matters arising after the date of the claim, and in particular deterioration of the condition: Decision CDLA/002/1993. ### 103. Claims and awards.

A person is not entitled to a disability living allowance:

- 330 (1) unless he satisfies prescribed conditions as to residence and presence in Great Britain<sup>1</sup>;
- 331 (2) for any period preceding the date on which a claim for it is made, or treated as made, by him or on his behalf <sup>2</sup>.

In addition, a person may be awarded either component for a fixed period or for life, but if his award of a disability living allowance consists of both components, he may not be awarded the components for different fixed periods<sup>3</sup>.

1 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 71(6). For the purposes of s 71(6), the prescribed conditions as to residence and presence in Great Britain in relation to any person on any day are that (1) on that day (a) he is ordinarily resident in Great Britain (see Decision R(M)1/85) and his right to reside or remain in Great Britain is not subject to limitation or condition; (b) he is present in Great Britain; and (c) he has been so present for a period of, or for periods amounting in the aggregate to, not less than 26 weeks in the 52 weeks immediately preceding that day; and (2) where that day falls within a period in which that person (a) receives tax free emoluments, or (b) is the spouse or child of a person who receives them, that period is immediately preceded by a period of four years during which the claimant was present in Great Britain for not less than 156 weeks in aggregate: see the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 2(1) (amended by SI 1993/1939; and SI 1996/30). Specific provision is made in relation to residence of refugees, immigrants, EC nationals and members of the forces and to temporary absence: see the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 2(1A) (added by SI 1996/30), 2(2) (amended by SI 1993/1939). For the purposes of the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 2(1) (as amended), 'tax free emoluments' means emoluments which are exempt from tax under any of the provisions listed in the Child Benefit (General) Regulations 1976, SI 1976/965, reg 9 (as amended): Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations, SI 1991/2890, reg 2(3). For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

2 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 76(1). Notwithstanding s 76(1), provision may be made by regulations for a person to be entitled to a component of a disability living allowance for a period preceding the date on which a claim for such an allowance is made or treated as made by him or on his behalf if he has previously been entitled to that component: s 76(2). An exception to s 76(1) was formerly made in the case of claimants who had previously been entitled to a component of disability living allowance: see the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 5 (revoked by SI 1997/793, as from 1 September 1997).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(4) DISABILITY LIVING ALLOWANCE/104. The care component.

104. The care component.

A person is entitled to the care component of a disability living allowance for any period throughout which:

- 332 (1) he is so severely disabled physically or mentally<sup>1</sup> that (a) he requires<sup>2</sup>, in connection with his bodily functions<sup>3</sup>, attention<sup>4</sup> from another person for a significant portion of the day<sup>5</sup> (whether during a single period or a number of periods); or (b) he cannot prepare a cooked main meal<sup>6</sup> for himself if he has the ingredients; or
- 333 (2) he is so severely disabled physically or mentally<sup>7</sup> that by day (the day condition), he requires from another person (a) frequent attention<sup>8</sup> throughout the day in connection with his bodily functions<sup>9</sup>; or (b) continual supervision<sup>10</sup> throughout the day in order to avoid substantial danger<sup>11</sup> to himself or others; or
- 334 (3) he is so severely disabled physically or mentally<sup>12</sup> that at night<sup>13</sup> (the night condition) (a) he requires from another person prolonged or repeated attention<sup>14</sup> in connection with his bodily functions<sup>15</sup>; or (b) in order to avoid substantial danger to himself or others he requires another person to be awake for a prolonged period or at frequent intervals for the purpose of watching over him<sup>16</sup>.

1 The phrase 'severely disabled physically or mentally' relates to a condition of body or mind that can be defined medically; it does not include anti-social behaviour unrelated to serious mental illness: see Decision R(A)2/92.

2 The condition would appear to be that the person reasonably requires the attention or supervision in question, not that it must be shown that he medically requires it: see R v Secretary of State for Social Services, ex p Connolly [1986] 1 All ER 998, [1986] 1 WLR 421, CA; Decision R(A)3/86. Where needs are irregular, regard must be given to the person's requirements over a period of time: see Decision R(A)2/74. Evidence of practicable precautions that could be taken by the person (to avoid the need for attention or supervision) may negate a claim, but if this is to be so the adjudicating authority must specify those precautions and explain how they are practicable and compatible with the evidence of the person's condition: see Decisions R(A)1/87; and R(A)5/90.

3 'Bodily functions' include 'breathing, hearing, seeing, eating, drinking, walking, sitting, sleeping, getting in or out of bed, dressing, undressing, eliminating waste products, and the like, all of which an ordinary person, who is not suffering from any disability, does for himself'; they do not, however, include cooking, shopping or any other normal domestic duties: see R v National Insurance Comr, ex p Secretary of State for Social Services [1981] 2 All ER 738 at 741, [1981] 1 WLR 1017 at 1022, CA, per Lord Denning MR. However, what might normally constitute ordinary domestic duties may, untypically, constitute attention in connection with bodily functions if closely related to the person's disability: see Decision R(A)1/87 (cooking, where the person needed a strictly controlled diet); Decision R(A)1/91 (abnormal amounts of laundry due to incontinence or a severe skin complaint); but cf Decisions CA/124/93; and CSDLA/98/94, where the commissioner declined to follow Decision R(A)1/91; and Cockburn v Chief Adjudication Officer [1997] 3 All ER 844, [1997] 1 WLR 799, HL (where additional laundry due to incontinence was held not to be attention in connection with bodily function).

4 'Attention' indicates 'something more than a personal service, something involving care, consideration and vigilance for the person being attended. The very word suggests a service of a close and intimate nature': see R v National Insurance Comr, ex p Secretary of State for Social Services [1981] 2 All ER 738 at 741, [1981] 1 WLR 1017 at 1022, CA, per Dunn LJ; and Mallinson v Secretary of State for Social Security [1994] 2 All ER 295, [1994] 1 WLR 630, HL (assistance provided to a blind person in connection with bathing, eating and walking in unfamiliar surroundings held to be attention in connection with bodily functions). The attention may be that reasonably required to enable the person to live a normal social life, not just that reasonably required to maintain life itself: Secretary of State for Social Security v Fairey [1997] 3 All ER 844, [1997] 1 WLR 799, HL. 'Attention' is in general a more active concept than 'supervision' (see Decision R(A)1/83); however, the two are not mutually exclusive in the legislation and in a given case it may be necessary to consider them together (eg where the person is supervised, with a view to assistance if necessary, as in the case of a person suffering from epilepsy) (see Mallinson v Secretary of State for Social Security supra).

5 A 'significant' portion of the day may be composed of several short periods, and is not subject to any hard and fast rules: see Decision CSDLA/29/94 (doubting Decision CDLA/58/93).

6 The inclusion of this 'cooked meal' test in the new lower rate provision is of interest, as it had consistently been held that (in the absence of exceptional circumstances) cooking for a disabled person did not normally constitute the necessary 'attention' for the old attendance allowance: see Woodling v Secretary of State for Social Services [1984] 1 All ER 593, [1984] 1 WLR 348, HL. For the meaning of the new 'cooked meal' test see Decision CDLA/85/1994; and R v Secretary of State for Social Security, ex p Armstrong (1996) 32 BMLR 32, [1996] TLR 400, CA.

8 See note 4 supra.

9 See note 3 supra.

10 Supervision may be precautionary and anticipatory; thus, in the case for example of a person with epilepsy, another person may 'supervise' by simply being present and watching over him in between attacks: Moran v Secretary of State for Social Services (1987) Times, 14 March, CA, applied in Decision R(A)4/92, where it was held (again in the context of epilepsy) that it is enough if the supervision reduces the danger of a sudden attack, even if it cannot eliminate it. See also Decision R(A)2/75 (cerebral palsy and asthma attacks); and Decision CDLA/4/1994 (effect of warning of diabetic attacks). The requirement of supervision is that the supervision be continual, not necessarily continuous: see Decision R(A)1/73; and R(A)4/74. Where attacks are unpredictable, their relative infrequency is irrelevant so long as there remains a substantial danger which cannot be ignored: see Decision R(A)3/90; and Moran v Secretary of State for Social Services supra.

11 In applying this test of substantial danger, an adjudicating authority should consider four matters: (1) the claimant's medical condition must be such that there is a substantial danger to himself or to someone else; (2) that danger must not be too remote a possibility (the fact that an incident may be isolated or infrequent being immaterial); (3) supervision by a third party must be necessary to avoid the danger; (4) supervision must be continual: Decision R(A)1/83. The question is whether the danger is such that a reasonable person would seek to guard against it: Decisions R(A)2/89; R(A)6/89. Precautions that may be expected of the person himself to minimise or avoid the danger may be relevant but must be clearly specified (see Decision R(A)5/90); they must be reasonable (see Decision R(A)3/90). Where a person is a danger to himself (eg through schizophrenia), it is not sufficient for the adjudicating authority to say that the danger could be avoided by making the person an in-patient: Decisions R(A)2/91; R(A)3/92.

It is important for the adjudicating authorities to look at the facts of each particular case, rather than making assumptions based on what may be thought generally to be true about the kind of disability in question: Decision R(A)2/83. There is no presumption either way based on the nature of the disability: see Decision R(A)3/90, where it was held there was no presumption that epileptic claimants cannot claim unless there are complicating medical conditions.

In order to constitute 'avoiding' substantial danger, it is enough to show that the supervision effects a real reduction in the danger, even if it does not eliminate it completely: Decision R(A)3/92.

Where the ground of the claim is that the claimant is liable to fall, the adjudicating authority should consider the following: (a) whether the situations in which the claimant may fall are predictable or unpredictable; (b) if the falling is predictable, whether the claimant can reasonably be expected to avoid the risk, or place himself at such risk only when adequately supervised; (c) if the falling is unpredictable, whether the falling will give rise to substantial danger to the claimant; and (d) whether the substantial danger is too remote: Decision R(A)3/89. A decision to live alone, though not determinative, may be a strong indication that supervision in case of falls is not really required: Decision CDLA/899/1994.

12 See note 1 supra.

13 'Night' is not statutorily defined. Night does not mean the period between sunrise and sunset but has been interpreted as meaning the period of inactivity in the dark hours beginning with the time when, in accordance with its domestic routine, the household closes down for the night: see R v National Insurance Comr, ex p Secretary of State for Social Services [1974] 3 All ER 522, [1974] 1 WLR 1290, DC. Whether particular activities of the disabled person for which he requires attention, eg going to bed and getting up, take place in the day or the night is a question of fact to be determined in the light of the circumstances of each case: cf R v National Insurance Comr, ex p Secretary of State for Social Services [1974] 3 All ER 522, [1974] 1 WLR 1290, DC. There is no separate concept of a 'child's night'; thus, attention given after the child has gone to bed but before the household has closed down would seem not to be given at 'night' for these purposes: see Decision R(A)1/78.

14 See note 4 supra.

15 See note 3 supra.

16 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 72(1). The test set out in s 72(1)(c)(ii) (see head (3) (b) in the text) requires active supervision, a wakeful and watchful presence; the effect of this provision was to negate the decision in Moran v Secretary of State for Social Services (1987) Times, 14 March, CA, in its application to the night condition, so that it is no longer enough that the carer is simply available during the night, possibly asleep nearby.

105. Special provisions relating to the care component.

A person is not entitled to the care component of a disability living allowance unless:

- 335 (1) he has satisfied or is likely to satisfy one or other of the entitlement conditions<sup>1</sup> for the period of three months immediately preceding the date on which the award of that component would begin or such other period of three months as may be prescribed<sup>2</sup>; and
- 336 (2) he is likely to continue to satisfy one or other of those conditions throughout the period of six months beginning with that date or, if his death is expected within the period of six months beginning with that date, the period so beginning and ending with his death<sup>3</sup>.

During the time when a person is under 16 years of age, the condition that he cannot prepare a cooked main meal for himself if he has the ingredients<sup>4</sup> does not apply, and, in relation to any of the other care component conditions<sup>5</sup>, it must be shown that either he has such requirements substantially in excess of the normal requirements of persons of his age or he has substantial requirements of any such description which younger persons in normal physical and mental health may also have but which persons of his age and in normal physical and mental health would not have<sup>6</sup>.

A person is in general not entitled to the care component if he is being maintained free of charge while undergoing medical or other treatment as an in-patient in a hospital or similar institution under National Health Service legislation<sup>7</sup> or maintained or administered by the Defence Council<sup>8</sup>; or in circumstances in which the cost is, or may be<sup>9</sup>, borne wholly or partly out of public or local funds, in pursuance of those enactments or of any other enactment relating to persons under a disability or to young persons or to education or training<sup>10</sup>.

Special provision is made for persons suffering from renal failure and undergoing renal dialysis, deeming them to satisfy certain of the care component conditions<sup>11</sup> in prescribed circumstances<sup>12</sup>.

2    The period so prescribed for the purposes of ibid s 72(2)(a)(ii) is a period of three months ending on the day on which the person was last entitled to the care component or to attendance allowance where that day falls not more than two years before the date on which entitlement to the care component would begin (or would have begun but for any regulations made under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 5(1)(k): see PARA 330 post): see the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890 reg 6(1) (amended by SI 1993/1939). Specific provision is made in relation to this exception in the case of persons aged over 65 years: see the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890 reg 6(2)-(4) (amended by SI 1993/1939).

For the purposes of the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 8(1) (as substituted), a person may only be regarded as not being maintained free of charge in a hospital or similar institution during any period when his accommodation and services are provided under the National Health Service Act 1977 s 65 (as substituted and amended), the National Health Service (Scotland) Act 1978 s 58, Sch 7A para 14 or the National Health Service and Community Care Act 1990 Sch 2 para 14 : Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 8(2) (amended by SI 1992/2869).

UPDATE

105 Special provisions relating to the care component

TEXT AND NOTE 3--The modifications mentioned in the 1992 Act s 72(1A) (see PARA 104) have effect in relation to the application of s 72(1) for the purposes of s 72(2), but only (1) in the case of a person who is under the age of 16 on the date on which the award of the care component would begin, and (2) in relation to so much of any period mentioned in s 72(2) as falls before the day on which he reaches the age of 16: s 72(2A) (added by Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 52(3)).

TEXT AND NOTE 6--1992 Act s 72(6) repealed: Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 52(5), Sch 8.

NOTE 6--SI 1987/1968 now replaced, in so far as it relates to child benefit or guardian's allowance, by Child Benefit (General) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/223 (see PARA 237-257).

TEXT AND NOTES 8, 10--Regulations may provide that no amount in respect of a disability living allowance which is attributable to entitlement to the care component will be payable in respect of a person for a period when he is a resident of a care home in circumstances in which any of the costs of any qualifying services provided for him are borne out of public or local funds under a specified enactment: 1992 Act s 72(8) (s 72(8)-(13) substituted by subsequent s 72(8)-(13), by Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 60(2)). The reference in s 72(8) to a care home is to an establishment that provides accommodation together with nursing or personal care: s 72(9). The following are qualifying services for the purposes of s 72(8) (1) accommodation, (2) board, and (3) personal care: s 72(10). The reference in s 72(8) to a specified enactment is to an enactment which is, or is of a description, specified for the purposes of s 72(8) by regulations: s 72(11). The power to specify an enactment for the purposes of s 72(8) includes power to specify it only in relation to its application for a particular purpose: s 72(12). In s 72, 'enactment' includes an enactment comprised in, or in an instrument made under, an Act of the Scottish Parliament: s 72(13).

NOTE 8--The period during which a person is maintained free of charge while undergoing medical or other treatment as an in-patient begins on the day after the day he enters a hospital or similar institution and ends on the day before the day he leaves: SI 1991/2890 reg 8(2A) (added by SI 1999/1326; and amended by SI 2000/1401).

NOTE 10--SI 1991/2890 reg 9 substituted: SI 2007/2875. SI 1991/2890 reg 9A, Sch 3 revoked: SI 2001/3767. SI 1991/2890 reg 10 further amended: SI 2000/1401, SI 2002/208, SI 2002/3019, SI 2003/2259, SI 2007/2875.

TEXT AND NOTE 12--1992 Act s 72(7) amended: Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 52(6). 1992 Act s 72(1A) (see PARA 104) has effect subject to regulations made under s 72(7) (except as otherwise prescribed): s 72(7A) (added by 2007 Act s 52(7)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(4) DISABILITY LIVING ALLOWANCE/106. The mobility component.

106. The mobility component.

A person is entitled to the mobility component of a disability living allowance for any period in which he is over the age of five years and throughout which:

- 337 (1) he is suffering from physical disablement<sup>1</sup> such that he is either unable to walk or virtually unable to do so<sup>2</sup>; or
- 338 (2) he is both blind<sup>3</sup> and deaf<sup>4</sup> and is, by reason of the combined effect thereof, unable, without the assistance of another person, to walk to any intended or required destination while out of doors<sup>5</sup>; or
- 339 (3) he is severely mentally impaired<sup>6</sup>, displays severe behavioural problems<sup>7</sup> and satisfies the day and night conditions<sup>8</sup> for the care component<sup>9</sup>; or
- 340 (4) he is able to walk but is so severely disabled physically or mentally<sup>10</sup> that, disregarding any ability he may have to use routes which are familiar to him on his own, he cannot take advantage of the faculty out of doors without guidance or supervision<sup>11</sup> from another person most of the time<sup>12</sup>.

A person is not entitled to the mobility component for a period unless during most of that period his condition will be such as permits him from time to time to benefit from enhanced facilities for locomotion<sup>13</sup>.

1 The cause of the inability to walk must be physical, not mental or functional; thus the following have been held not to qualify: agoraphobia (Decision R(M)1/80); hysteria (Decision R(M)1/88, affd on appeal in Harrison v Secretary of State for Social Services (1987), CA, reported as an appendix to Decision R(M)1/88). Down's syndrome does, however, qualify: see Decision R(M)2/78, affd in Decision R(M)3/86.

It is the physical inability to walk that must be impaired; the claimant must show he is unable to move a foot rather than that he lacks the power to direct his movement to a desired destination; blindness is a physical condition, but the need for guidance that it may produce is not in itself sufficient if the actual walking ability remains unimpaired: Lees v Secretary of State for Social Services [1985] AC 930, [1985] 2 All ER 203, HL (also reported as an appendix to Decision R(M)1/84); cf, however, Decision R(M)2/81, where a blind person who also suffered from a problem of balance and direction which directly affected his ability to walk was held to qualify (though note the discussion in Decision R(M)1/86 as to whether this case, and also Decision R(M)1/83 concerning supervision due to mental retardation, may be affected by the decision in Lees v Secretary of State for Social Services supra). Behavioural problems affecting walking are unlikely to qualify under this head: Decision R(M)3/86. Note, however, that a person suffering from blindness or from mental or behavioural problems, though failing under this head, may now qualify for the lower rate of mobility component under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(1)(d) (see head (4) in the text), or (in a severe case) for the higher rate under s 73(1)(b) or (c) (see heads (2)-(3) in the text).

2 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(1)(a). As to the meaning of 'unable to walk or virtually unable to do so' see PARA 107 post.

3 A person is to be considered to be blind only where the degree of disablement resulting from the loss of vision amounts to 100%: Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 12(2)(a) (amended by SI 1993/1939).

4 A person is to be considered to be deaf only where the degree of disablement resulting from loss of hearing (when using any artificial aid which he habitually uses or which is suitable in his case) amounts to not less than 80% on a scale where 100% represents absolute deafness: Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 12(2)(b) (amended by SI 1993/1939; and SI 1994/1779). In the case of blindness and deafness, these percentages are to be construed in the same way as for industrial injury benefit: Decision CDLA/192/1994. As to industrial injury benefit see PARA 126 et seq post.

5 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(1)(b), (2); and the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 12(3) (amended by SI 1993/1939).

6 A person is 'severely mentally impaired' if he suffers from a state of arrested development or incomplete physical development of the brain, which results in severe impairment of intelligence and social functioning: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(6); and the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 12(5) (amended by SI 1993/1939). This definition (with its emphasis on the development of the brain initially) does not cover Alzheimer's disease: see Decisions CDLA/156/1994; and CDLA/393/1994 (whether schizophrenia arose while brain still developing).

7 A person suffers from 'severe behavioural problems' if he exhibits disruptive behaviour which (1) is extreme; (2) regularly requires another person to intervene and physically restrain him in order to prevent him causing physical injury to himself or another, or damage to property; and (3) is so unpredictable that he requires another person to be present and watching over him whenever he is awake: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(6); and Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 12(6) (amended by SI 1993/1939).

8 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 72(1)(b), (c): see PARA 104 ante.

9 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(1)(c), (3). A person who is to be taken for the purposes of s 72 to satisfy or not to satisfy a condition mentioned in s 72(1)(b), (c) is to be taken to satisfy or not to satisfy it for the purposes of s 73(3)(c): s 73(7).

10 The inclusion of mental disablement here may mean that a person who fails to qualify under head (1) in the text for a higher rate allowance because the disablement is not physical (see note 1 supra) may qualify for a lower rate allowance under this head: see Decision CDLA/42/94 (anxiety and agoraphobia limiting the faculty of walking, though physically capable).

11 For the interpretation of 'supervision' in the context of the care component see PARA 104 note 10 ante. It has been held that supervision, in this context, can include encouragement or reassurance (in the case of a mental condition): Decision CDLA/42/94. Inability to ask for directions, however, does not in itself show a need for supervision: Decision CDLA/240/1994.

12 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(1)(d). This provision is not concerned with supervision to avoid danger to the claimant (eg through a tendency to fall); such supervision is provided for by s 72(1)(b) (the 'day condition' for the care component: see PARA 104 ante): Decision CDLA/757/1994.

13 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(8). 'Benefit' is to be construed widely; persons who are comatose, or so severely deranged as to need supervision and restraint of a high order, will be excluded from entitlement, but otherwise most claimants will be able to show potential benefit from increased mobility, if only 'from time to time': Decision R(M)2/83.

UPDATE

106 The mobility component

TEXT AND NOTE 1--For 'the age of five years' read 'the relevant age': Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(1) (amended by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 67(3)). 'The relevant age' means (1) in relation to the conditions mentioned in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(1)(a), (b) or (c) (see TEXT heads (1)-(3)), the age of three; (2) in relation to the conditions mentioned in s 73(1)(d) (see TEXT head (4)), the age of five: s 73(1A) (added by Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 67(3)).

NOTE 6--A high intelligence quotient is not sufficient to deprive an autistic child of entitlement to disability living allowance as a person suffering from 'severe impairment of intelligence' within the meaning of SI 1991/2890 reg 12(5): Megarry v Chief Adjudication Officer (1999) Times, 11 November, CA.

NOTE 10--For the purposes of head (4), a person who is able to walk is to be taken not to satisfy the condition of being so severely disabled physically or mentally that he cannot take advantage of the faculty out of doors without guidance or supervision from another person most of the time if he does not take advantage of the faculty in such circumstances because of fear or anxiety (SI 1991/2890 reg 12(7) (added by SI 2002/648)), but this does not apply where the fear or anxiety is a symptom of a mental disability; and so severe as to prevent the person from taking advantage of the faculty in such circumstances (SI 1991/2890 reg 12(8) (added by SI 2002/648)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(4) DISABILITY LIVING ALLOWANCE/107. The meaning of 'unable to walk' or 'virtually unable to walk'.

107. The meaning of 'unable to walk' or 'virtually unable to walk'.

A person is to be taken to satisfy the condition of being unable to walk or virtually unable to walk<sup>1</sup> only in the following circumstances:

- 341 (1) his physical condition as a whole is such that, without having regard to circumstances peculiar to that person as to the place of residence or as to the place of, or nature of, employment (a) he is unable to walk<sup>2</sup>; or (b) his ability to walk out of doors is so limited, as regards the distance over which or the speed at which or length of time for which or manner in which he can make progress on foot without severe discomfort<sup>3</sup>, that he is virtually unable to walk<sup>4</sup>; or (c) the exertion required to walk would constitute a danger to his life or would be likely to lead to a serious deterioration in his health<sup>5</sup>; or
- 342 (2) he has both legs amputated at levels which are either through or above the ankle, or he has one leg so amputated and is without the other leg, or is without both legs to the same extent as if it, or they, had been so amputated<sup>6</sup>.

Except in the case set out in head (2) above, a person is to be taken not to be unable or virtually unable to walk if he:

- 343 (i) is not unable or virtually unable to walk with a prosthesis or artificial aid which he habitually wears or uses; or
- 344 (ii) would not be unable or virtually unable to walk if he wore or used a prosthesis or an artificial aid which is suitable in his case<sup>7</sup>.

1    le within the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(1)(a): see PARA 106 ante.

2    'Walk' means to advance so that at least one foot is always on the ground; thus, a one legged person progressing with the aid of crutches is unable to walk, but in such a case the crucial question is whether it is reasonable to expect him to use a prosthesis (see note 7 infra): Decision R(M)2/89. In general, the concept of 'walking' relates to the physical ability to do so, not the power to direct the resulting movements: Lees v Secretary of State for Social Services [1985] AC 930, [1985] 2 All ER 203, HL (also reported as an appendix to Decision R(M)1/84).

3    Severe discomfort is not synonymous with severe pain or distress and may include breathlessness: Cassinelli v Secretary of State for Social Services [1991] TLR 562, CA. It must, however, arise from the walking itself and not from some other factor such as mental retardation: Decision R(M)1/83. Severe discomfort is not a condition of entitlement; there may be limits on the ability to walk outdoors which do not involve discomfort, though any extended walking accomplishment must be ignored if it can only be attained with severe discomfort: Decision R(M)1/81.

4    'Virtually unable to walk' means unable to walk to any appreciable extent or practically unable to walk; the statutory test requires consideration of walking outdoors on a normal pavement or road which, though not involving climbing, must include normal inclines and other hazards: Decision R(M)1/91 (approving and applying Decision R(M)1/78; and Decision R(M)3/78). Applying the test is a question of fact and judgment; in particular, no distance limit is laid down, though if the claimant can walk more than about 25 yards he is likely to be found not virtually unable to walk unless there are other definable difficulties: Decision CDLA/1042/95. If the person can physically walk a considerable distance, he will not qualify solely on the ground that he needs supervision because of fear, for example, of a seizure: Decision R(M)1/78. On the other hand, a need for physical support while walking (as opposed to precautionary support or guidance) may be taken into account, though subject to the further question whether the person could substitute for that physical support the use of an artificial aid suitable in his case (see note 7 infra): Decision R(M)1/90. Note that a need for precautionary support or guidance may now entitle the claimant to the lower rate of the mobility component: see PARA 106 ante.

5 Whether there is the necessary danger or deterioration is a question of fact, but the tribunal should look at the exertion required by the walking itself without regard to extraneous circumstances; the test does not extend to conditions or symptoms (eg fits or attacks) which might intervene during the course of walking without there being any connection or relationship with the walking: Decision R(M)3/78.

6 Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 12(1) (amended by SI 1993/1939).

7 Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 12(4) (amended by SI 1993/1939). Consideration must be given to the following matters in order: (1) to any artificial aid or prosthesis habitually used (and the claimant's walking ability without severe discomfort while using it); and (2) to any alternative aid or prosthesis which exists, where the essential point is its suitability in his case: Decision R(M)2/89. However, this speculative exercise is not to be taken further and applied to any further treatment that the claimant could have; thus, the claimant must be considered in the light of his existing condition, not as he might be after a further operation (even if he has refused it): Decision CM/084/1993 (a starred decision, which may be reported).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(4) DISABILITY LIVING ALLOWANCE/108. Special provisions relating to the mobility component.

108. Special provisions relating to the mobility component.

A person is not entitled to the mobility component of a disability living allowance unless (1) throughout the period of three months immediately preceding the date on which the award of that component would begin (or such other period as may be prescribed) he has satisfied or is likely to satisfy one or other of the prescribed entitlement conditions<sup>1</sup>; and (2) he is likely to continue to satisfy such condition throughout the period of six months beginning with that date (or, if death is expected within six months, the period so beginning and ending with his death)<sup>2</sup>.

A person is not entitled to the mobility component while under the age of five years<sup>3</sup>. During the time when a person is under the age of 16 years, he is not entitled to the lower rate mobility component<sup>4</sup> unless (a) he requires substantially more guidance or supervision from another person than persons of his age in normal physical and mental health would require; or (b) persons of his age in normal physical and mental health would not require such guidance or supervision<sup>5</sup>.

The mobility component is not payable to any person who would otherwise be entitled to it in respect of any period (i) during which that person has the use of an invalid carriage or other vehicle provided by the Secretary of State<sup>6</sup> which is a vehicle propelled by petrol engine or by electric power supplied for use on the road and to be controlled by the occupant; or (ii) in respect of which that person has received or is receiving a grant or other analogous payment towards the costs of running a private car<sup>7</sup>.

However, the component may still be payable if the Secretary of State has issued a certificate to the effect that he is satisfied (A) that the person in question either has purchased or taken on hire or hire purchase or intends to do so, a private car or similar vehicle for a consideration which is more than nominal, on or about a date (not being earlier than 13 January 1982) specified in the certificate; (B) that that person intends to retain possession of the car at least during, and learn to drive it within, the period of six months or such greater or lesser length of time as may be specified in the certificate beginning on the date mentioned above; and (C) that that person will use disability living allowance by virtue of entitlement to the mobility component in whole or in part during that period towards meeting the expenses of acquiring the car<sup>8</sup>. Where arrangements have been made through the charity 'Motability' for a person receiving the higher rate of the mobility component to have a vehicle on hire or hire purchase, the Secretary of State may arrange for payment to be made on behalf of that person directly in settlement of sums due under those arrangements<sup>9</sup>.

Except in certain cases<sup>10</sup>, it is a condition for the receipt of disability living allowance which is attributable to the entitlement to the mobility component for any period in respect of any person, that during that period he is not maintained free of charge while undergoing medical or other treatment as an in-patient in a hospital or similar institution<sup>11</sup>.

2    Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(9). For the qualification of these rules in relation to persons who are terminally ill see PARA 110 post. The period prescribed for the purposes of s 73(9)(a)(ii) (such other period as may be prescribed) is a period of three months ending on the day on which the person was last entitled to the mobility component or to mobility allowance, where that day falls not more than two years before the date on which entitlement to the mobility component would begin or would have begun but for any regulations made under the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 5(1)(k) (which enables regulations to provide for the day on which entitlement to benefit is to begin or end: see PARA 330 post): Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 11 (amended by SI 1993/1939).

5 Ibid s 73(4). Where a claim is made for a disability living allowance by a child, the Secretary of State must appoint an adult living with the child (normally a parent) to exercise the child's rights and to receive and deal with the sums payable: see the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 43(1) (amended by SI 1991/2741); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

6 le a vehicle provided by the Secretary of State under the National Health Service Act 1977 s 5(2)(a), Sch 2 (as amended) or the National Health Service (Scotland) Act 1978 s 46 (as amended). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

7 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 73(13), 74; and the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 42(1) (amended by SI 1991/2741). A person who has notified the Secretary of State that he no longer wishes to use such an invalid carriage or other vehicle and has signed an undertaking that he will not use it while it remains in his possession awaiting collection, will be treated as not having the use of that invalid carriage or other vehicle: see the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 42(2).

Persons who were in possession of an invalid carriage (or other vehicle provided in pursuance of the Health Services and Public Health Act 1968 s 33 (repealed)) on 1 January 1976 (or had claimed one by then, or were in possession at prescribed times between 1 January 1970 and 31 March 1978) may be issued a certificate by the Secretary of State deeming them to satisfy the condition for the higher rate, of being unable or virtually unable to walk: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 74(1), 2(a); and the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 13, Sch 2.

8 Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 42(4) (amended by SI 1991/2741). The Secretary of State may cancel the certificate if the person parts with possession of the car, or for any other reason: see the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 42(4) (as so amended).

9 See the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, reg 44(1) (amended by SI 1991/2741). Provision is made for the termination of such arrangements: see the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, regs 44, 45, 46 (amended by SI 1991/2741; and SI 1990/2208).

10 le those cases set out in the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 12B (added by SI 1996/1436; amended by SI 1996/1767).

11 See the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations, SI 1991/2890, reg 12A (added by SI 1996/1436). For these purposes, the qualifying hospitals or similar institutions are those under the National Health Service Act 1977, or the National Health Service and Community Care Act 1990 or one maintained or administered by the Defence Council: see the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations, SI 1991/2890, reg 12A (added by SI 1996/1436). For the purposes of the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations, SI 1991/2890, reg 12A (as added), a person can only be regarded as not being maintained free of charge in a hospital or similar institution during any period when his accommodation and services are provided under the National Health Service Act 1977 s 65 (as substituted and amended), the National Health Service (Scotland) Act 1978 s 58, Sch 7A para 14 or the National Health Service and Community Care Act 1990 Sch 2 para 14 (repealed): see the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations, SI 1991/2890, reg 12A(2) (added by SI 1996/1436).

UPDATE

108 Special provisions relating to the mobility component

TEXT AND NOTES--SI 1987/1968 now replaced, in so far as it relates to child benefit or guardian's allowance, by Child Benefit (General) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/223 (see PARA 237-257).

TEXT AND NOTES 2, 5--In its application to a person in relation to so much of a period as falls before the day on which he reaches the age of 16, the 1992 Act s 73(1) has effect subject to the modification that the condition mentioned in s 73(1)(d) will not be taken to be satisfied unless (1) he requires substantially more guidance or supervision from another person than persons of his age in normal physical and mental health would require, or (2) persons of his age in normal physical and mental health would not require such guidance or supervision: s 73(4A) (substituted, for s 73(4) as originally enacted, by Welfare Reform Act 2007 s 53(2)). The 1992 Act s 73(4A) has effect subject to regulations made under s 73(5) (except as otherwise prescribed): s 73(5A) (added by 2007 Act s 53(4)). The modifications mentioned in the 1992 Act s 73(4A) will have effect in relation to the application of s 73(1) for the purposes of s 73(9), but only (a) in the case of a person who is under the age of 16 on the date on which the award of the mobility component would begin, and (b) in relation to so much of any period mentioned in s 73(9) as falls before the day on which he reaches the age of 16: s 73(9A) (added by 2007 Act s 53(5)).

109. Rates of assessment.

For both the care and mobility components of disability living allowance different rates of assessment are prescribed<sup>1</sup>:

- 345 (1) in the case of the care component there are three rates of assessment: the highest rate, the middle rate and the lowest rate<sup>2</sup>. The weekly rate of the care component payable to a person for each week in the period for which he is awarded that component is:
- 27
32. (a) the highest rate, if (i) throughout the period of three months immediately preceding the date on which the award of that component would begin (or such other period as may be prescribed) he has satisfied or is likely to satisfy both of the prescribed conditions of entitlement<sup>3</sup> to the care component; and (ii) he is likely to continue to satisfy those conditions throughout the period of six months beginning with that date or (if his death is expected within the period of six months beginning with that date) the period so beginning and ending with his death<sup>4</sup>;
33. (b) the middle rate, if he satisfies or is likely to satisfy one or other of the prescribed conditions of entitlement to the care component<sup>5</sup> throughout both periods mentioned in head (a) above<sup>6</sup>;
34. (c) the lowest rate in any other case<sup>7</sup>.
- 28
- 346 (2) in the case of the mobility component there are two weekly rates of assessment: the higher rate and the lower rate<sup>8</sup>. The weekly rate of the care component payable to a person for each week in the period for which he is awarded that component is:
- 29
35. (a) the higher rate, if throughout the period of three months immediately preceding the date on which the award of that component would begin (or such other period as may be prescribed) he has satisfied or is likely to satisfy one or other of the prescribed conditions of entitlement<sup>9</sup> to the mobility component and he is likely to continue to satisfy one or other of those conditions throughout the period of six months beginning with that date or (if his death is expected within the period of six months beginning with that date) the period so beginning and ending with his death<sup>10</sup>;
36. (b) in any other case a person will only be entitled to the lower rate<sup>11</sup>.
- 30

A payment to or in respect of any person which is attributable to his entitlement to the mobility component, and the right to receive such a payment, are to be disregarded in applying any enactment or instrument under which regard is to be had to a person's means<sup>12</sup>.

110. Disability living allowance claims by persons who are terminally ill.

Where a claim is made for a disability living allowance by a person who is terminally ill<sup>1</sup>, special rules apply, to the following effect:

- 347 (1) the normal requirement of presence in Great Britain for not less than 26 of the 52 preceding weeks<sup>2</sup> does not apply<sup>3</sup>;
- 348 (2) he is deemed to satisfy the day and night conditions for the higher rate of the care component<sup>4</sup> for the period of three months immediately preceding the date of the claim or, if later, the first date on which he is terminally ill<sup>5</sup> and to satisfy or be likely to satisfy those conditions for the remainder of his life beginning with that date<sup>6</sup>;
- 349 (3) he may qualify for the mobility component<sup>7</sup> immediately, without having to show that he has suffered from the relevant condition<sup>8</sup> for the three months preceding the claim<sup>9</sup>;
- 350 (4) a claim may be made on his behalf by another, which is treated as made by the terminally ill person notwithstanding that it is made without his knowledge or authority<sup>10</sup>.

1 A person is 'terminally ill' at any time if at that time he suffers from a progressive disease and his death in consequence of that disease can reasonably be expected within six months: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 66(2)(a), applied by ss 73(5), 73(12). See also PARA 62 note 8 ante.

For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

3 Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 2(4). This concession (which did not appear in the old attendance allowance scheme) effectively negates the decision in Decision R(A)1/94 (child born terminally ill not entitled to attendance allowance until 26 weeks after his birth).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(4) DISABILITY LIVING ALLOWANCE/111. Disability living allowance for persons aged 65 or over.

111. Disability living allowance for persons aged 65 or over.

In general<sup>1</sup>, no person is entitled to either component of a disability living allowance for any period after he attains the age of 65 years otherwise than by virtue of an award made before he attains that age<sup>2</sup>. That apart, a person first satisfying the entitlement conditions after reaching the age of 65 years will (1) only qualify, if at all, for attendance allowance<sup>3</sup> (which has no equivalent of the lower rate of the care component); and (2) receive no assistance in relation to mobility needs.

Further special rules apply in the case of persons aged over 65 years where the person has an award of disability living allowance made before he attained that age and, upon a written application for that award to be reviewed, an adjudicating authority is satisfied that the decision awarding the allowance ought to be both reviewed and revised<sup>4</sup>. Such a revision may take place on the ground that there has been a relevant change in circumstances since the decision was given<sup>5</sup>. However, where an existing award is either reviewed after the recipient attains the age of 65 years or is the subject of a renewal claim<sup>6</sup> there are restrictions on what the person may continue to qualify for:

- 351 (a) where a person was entitled on the previous award or on the award under review to the care component (i) payable at the lowest rate, that person is not precluded, solely by reason of the fact that he is aged 65 years or over, from entitlement to the care component; (ii) at the middle or highest rate, that person is not precluded, solely by reason of his being aged 65 years or over, from entitlement to the care component payable at the middle or highest rate; but in both cases this is subject to serving a six month (rather than the usual three month<sup>7</sup>) qualifying period<sup>8</sup>;
- 352 (b) where a person on or after attaining the age of 65 years is entitled to the mobility component payable at the higher rate<sup>9</sup> he is not precluded from entitlement to the mobility component, by reason solely of his age, by virtue of having satisfied or being likely to satisfy one or other of the first three conditions of entitlement to such component<sup>10</sup>;
- 353 (c) where a person on or after attaining the age of 65 years is entitled to the mobility component payable at the lower rate<sup>11</sup>, he is not precluded, solely by reason of his age, from entitlement to that component but it is fixed at the lower rate<sup>12</sup>;
- 354 (d) where a person on or after attaining the age of 65 years is entitled to the mobility component, he is not precluded from entitlement pursuant to the relevant provisions<sup>13</sup>, provided he has satisfied such conditions throughout the period of six months immediately preceding the date on which the award of that component would begin<sup>14</sup>.

2    Ibid s 75(1). The Social Security

(Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890 (as amended), provide that a person is not precluded from entitlement to either component of a disability allowance by reason only that he has attained the age of 65 years, if (1) he made a claim for disability living allowance before he attained the age of 65 years, which was not determined before he attained that age; and (2) he did not at the time he made the claim have an award of disability living allowance for a period ending on or after the day he attained the age of 65 years; in determining the claim of a person to whom this applies, where the person otherwise satisfies the conditions of entitlement to either or both components of disability living allowance for a period commencing before his sixty-fifth birthday (other than the requirements of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 73(9)(a) (three month qualifying period), the determination must be made without regard to the fact that he is aged 65 years or over at the time the claim is determined: see the Social Security (Disability Living Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2890, reg 3(1), (2), (3) (amended by SI 1993/1939; further prospectively amended as from 6 October 1997 by SI 1997/349). ### 111 Disability living allowance for persons aged 65 or over

TEXT AND NOTE 2--In 1992 Act s 75(1) for 'the age of 65 years' read 'pensionable age': Pensions Act 2007 Sch 1 para 42 (this amendment has effect as from 6 April 2024: see s 13(3)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(5) ATTENDANCE ALLOWANCE/112. In general.

(5) ATTENDANCE ALLOWANCE

112. In general.

Historically, attendance allowance was the principal benefit aimed at providing for the care needs of people with disabilities, but it has now been largely superseded by the care component of disability living allowance<sup>1</sup>. Attendance allowance has, however, been retained as a benefit providing care needs for those who claim it who are above the age of 65 years<sup>2</sup>. One important effect of this arrangement (rather than simply extending the care component of disability living allowance to a person of any age) is that, for a person claiming who is over the age of 65 years, the disability must be sufficiently serious to qualify for the equivalent of the higher or middle rates of disability living allowance<sup>3</sup>, because there is no equivalent in attendance allowance of the lower rate of disability living allowance (for which it is easier to qualify)<sup>4</sup>.

A person awarded attendance allowance may be required to attend for, or submit himself to, a medical examination and benefit may be withheld if he fails to comply<sup>5</sup>.

1 See PARA 104 ante. As to disability living allowance generally see PARAS 102-111 ante.

2 The general rule is that a person can only receive the care component of disability living allowance past the age of 65 years if he was already in receipt of it on reaching that age: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 75. For the complex rules on retaining the care component past the age of 65 years, and the position where the care needs later change see PARA 111 ante.

3 See PARA 109 ante.

4 For the different rates of care component see PARAS 104, 109 ante. The inception of disability living allowance and its restriction in the case of those claiming aged over 65 years also has the effect that the mobility component can only continue to be paid to those already in receipt of it (see PARA 111 ante). Unlike attendance allowance, however, the old mobility allowance has been withdrawn completely, and so there is now no provision at all for those whose mobility needs arise after they have attained the age of 65 years.

The tests for attendance allowance (the 'day attendance condition' and the 'night attendance condition': see PARA 113 post) are long-standing, with much case law on them; however, they were taken over directly into the law on a higher and middle rate care component of disability living allowance, now the principal benefit, as to which see PARAS 102-111 ante.

5 See PARA 376 note 2 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(5) ATTENDANCE ALLOWANCE/113. Entitlement.

113. Entitlement.

A person is entitled to an attendance allowance if (1) he is aged 65 years or over; (2) he is not entitled to the care component of disability living allowance<sup>1</sup>; (3) he satisfies the prescribed conditions as to residence and presence in Great Britain<sup>2</sup>; and (4) he satisfies either of the following conditions:

- 355 (a) he is so severely disabled physically or mentally that, by day, he requires from another person either frequent attention throughout the day in connection with his bodily functions or continual supervision throughout the day in order to avoid substantial danger to himself or others (the day attendance condition)<sup>3</sup>;
- 356 (b) he is so severely disabled physically or mentally that, at night, he requires from another person prolonged or repeated attention in connection with his bodily functions or in order to avoid substantial danger to himself or others he requires another person to be awake for a prolonged period or at frequent intervals for the purpose of watching over him (the night attendance condition)<sup>4</sup>.

2 The prescribed conditions as to residence and presence in Great Britain in relation to any person on any day are that (1) on that day he is ordinarily resident in Great Britain and his right to reside or remain in Great Britain is not subject to any limitation or condition, he is present in Great Britain, and has been so present for a period of (or for periods amounting in aggregate to) not less than 26 weeks in the 52 weeks immediately preceding that day; and (2) where that day falls within a period in which that person receives tax free emoluments or is the spouse of a person who receives tax free emoluments, that period is immediately preceded by a period of four years during which the claimant was present in Great Britain for not less than 156 weeks in aggregate: see the Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2740, reg 2(1) (amended by SI 1996/30); and the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). Where a person is terminally ill and makes a claim for attendance allowance expressly on the ground that he is such a person, reg 2(1) (as amended) applies to him as if reg 2(1)(a)(iii) (as amended) (26 weeks' presence in Great Britain) was omitted: reg 2(3). For the meaning of 'terminally ill' see PARA 115 note 1 post.

Specific provision is made in relation to residence of refugees, immigrants, EC nationals and members of the forces: see the Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2740, reg 2(1A) (added by SI 1996/30), reg 2(2). The expression 'tax free emoluments' means emoluments which are exempt from tax under any of the provisions listed in the Child Benefit (General) Regulations 1976 reg 9(1) (as amended): Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2740, reg 2(4). For the meaning of 'Great Britain' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

UPDATE

113 Entitlement

TEXT AND NOTES--In 1992 Act s 64(1) for 'is aged 65 or over' read 'has attained pensionable age': Pensions Act 2007 Sch 1 para 41 (this amendment has effect as from 6 April 2024: see s 13(3)).

NOTE 2--For 'his right to reside or remain ... any limitation or condition' read 'he is not a person subject to immigration control within the meaning of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 s 115(9) or s 115 does not apply to him for the purposes of entitlement to invalid care allowance by virtue of the Social Security (Immigration and Asylum) Consequential Amendments Regulations 2000, SI 2000/636, reg 2<sup>1</sup>: SI 1991/2740 reg 2(1) (amended by SI 2000/636). SI 1991/2740 reg 2(1) further amended: SI 2006/2378. SI 1991/2740 reg 2(2) amended: SI 2005/2877.

No appeal lies against a decision whether to certify, in accordance with regulations made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 64(1), that it is consistent with the proper administration of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 to treat a person as though he were present in Great Britain: Social Security Act 1998 s 12(1), Sch 2 para 5.

NOTES 3, 4--Circumstances may be prescribed in which a person is to be taken to satisfy or not to satisfy such of the conditions mentioned in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 64(2) and (3) as may be prescribed: s 64(4) (added by the Welfare Reform and Pensions Act 1999 s 66(1)).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(5) ATTENDANCE ALLOWANCE/114. Period and rate of allowance.

114. Period and rate of allowance.

The period for which a person is entitled to an attendance allowance is:

- 357 (1) a period throughout which he has satisfied or is likely to satisfy the day or the night attendance condition<sup>1</sup> or both; and
- 358 (2) a period preceded immediately, or within two years, by one of not less than six months throughout which he satisfied, or is likely to satisfy, one or both of those conditions<sup>2</sup>.

Attendance allowance is payable at two rates: the weekly rate of attendance allowance payable to a person for any period is the higher rate<sup>3</sup> if, both as regards that period and as regards the immediately preceding period of six months required<sup>4</sup>, he has satisfied or is likely to satisfy both the day and the night attendance conditions, and is at the lower rate in any other case<sup>5</sup>.

1 See PARA 113 ante.

2 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 65(1); Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2740, reg 3; Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). For these purposes, a person who suffers from renal failure and is undergoing (two or more times a week) renal dialysis treatment of a type which normally requires the attendance of or supervision by another person, during the period of dialysis, or which, because of the particular circumstances of his case, in fact requires another person, during the period of dialysis, to attend in connection with the bodily functions of the person undergoing renal dialysis or to supervise that person in order that he avoids substantial danger to himself, either by day or by night, is deemed to satisfy or be likely to satisfy the equivalent day or night attendance condition; or if he is undergoing such treatment both day and night he is deemed to satisfy either the day or the night attendance condition but not both: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 65(2); the Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2740, reg 5(1), (2); and the Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). This provision does not however apply to a person undergoing such treatment where that treatment is provided under the National Health Service Act 1977, is in a hospital or similar institution, is out-patient treatment and takes place with the assistance or supervision of any member of staff of the hospital or similar institution: see the Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2740, reg 5(3). Regulation 5(3) does not apply for the purposes of determining whether a person is to be taken to satisfy either of the day or night attendance conditions (ie those set out in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 64(1)(a), (b); see PARA 113 ante) during the period of six months referred to in s 65(1)(b): Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2740, reg 5(4); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

3 Ie that specified in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 65(3), Sch 4 Pt III para 1 (subject to frequent amendment).

4 See ibid s 65(1)(b).

5 Ibid s 65(3). Both the higher and lower rates are fixed amounts as set out in Sch 4 Pt III para 1; the rates are the same as the higher and middle rates for the care component of disability living allowance. Except in so far as regulations otherwise provide and subject to s 66(1), a claim for attendance allowance may be made during the period of six months immediately preceding the period for which the person to whom the claim relates is entitled to the allowance and an award may be made in pursuance of a claim so made, subject to the condition that, throughout that period of six months, that person satisfies (1) both the day and night attendance conditions; or (2) if the award is at the lower rate, one of those conditions: s 65(6).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(5) ATTENDANCE ALLOWANCE/115. Attendance allowance for the terminally ill.

115. Attendance allowance for the terminally ill.

If a terminally ill person<sup>1</sup> makes a claim<sup>2</sup> expressly on the ground that he is such a person then:

- 359 (1) he is taken (a) to satisfy, or to be likely to satisfy, both the day attendance condition and the night attendance condition<sup>3</sup> for the remainder of his life, beginning with the date of the claim or, if later, the first date on which he is terminally ill; and (b) to have satisfied those condition for the period of six months immediately preceding that date; and
- 360 (2) the period for which he is entitled to attendance allowance is the remainder of the person's life, beginning with that date<sup>4</sup>.

1 For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 66(1), a person is terminally ill at any time if at the time he suffers from a progressive disease and his death in consequence of it can reasonably be expected within six months: s 66(2)(a). As to the review of the decision of an adjudication officer that a person is or was terminally ill for these purposes see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 30(4); and PARA 376 post. As to applications for review under s 30 (as amended) of a decision relating to attendance allowance on the ground that the person is or was terminally ill see s 32(5); and PARA 376 post. As to review by an adjudication officer of a decision of a social security appeal tribunal, a disability appeal tribunal or a commissioner that a person is or was terminally ill see s 35(1); and PARA 377 post. For the meaning of 'commissioner' see PARA 30 note 3 ante.

2 For the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 66(1), where a person purports to make a claim for an attendance allowance on behalf of another, that other is to be regarded as making the claim, notwithstanding that it is made without his knowledge or authority: s 66(2)(b).

3 See ibid s 64; and PARA 113 ante.

116. Exclusions.

A person who is undergoing treatment for renal failure<sup>1</sup> where the treatment is provided under the National Health Service Act 1977, is in a hospital or other similar institution, is out-patient treatment and takes place with the assistance or supervision of any member of staff of the hospital or similar institution, is deemed not to satisfy the day or night attendance conditions<sup>2</sup> or both<sup>3</sup>.

Except in certain situations and subject to modifications<sup>4</sup>, a person may not be paid any amount in respect of an attendance allowance for any period where throughout that period he is a person for whom accommodation is provided in pursuance of the National Assistance Act 1948 or in circumstances where the cost of the accommodation is or may be borne wholly or partly out of public or local funds in pursuance of that Act or of any other enactment relating to persons under a disability<sup>5</sup>.

Subject to certain provisions<sup>6</sup>, it is a condition for the receipt of an attendance allowance for any period in respect of any person that during that period he is not maintained free of charge while undergoing medical treatment as an in-patient in a hospital or similar institution<sup>7</sup>.

<sup>3</sup> See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 67(1); and the Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2740, reg 5(3). This provision does not however apply for the purpose of determining whether a person is to be taken to satisfy either of the day or night attendance conditions (see note 2 supra) during the period of six months referred to in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 65(1)(b) (qualifying period for attendance allowance): Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2740, reg 5(4); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b).

<sup>4</sup> Ie (1) those exceptions specified in the Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2740, regs 7(2), (3), 8 (as amended); and (2) subject to modification set out in reg 7A (as added).

<sup>6</sup> Ie those cases set out in the Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations 1991, SI 1991/2740, reg 8 (as added).

<sup>7</sup> See ibid reg 6(1) (substituted by SI 1992/2869). For these purposes, the qualifying hospitals or similar institutions are those under the National Health Service Act 1977 or the National Health Service and Community Care Act 1990 or one maintained or administered by the Defence Council: see the Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations, SI 1991/2740, reg 6 (as so substituted). For the purposes of reg 6(1) (as substituted), a person can only be regarded as not being maintained free of charge in a hospital or similar institution during any period when his accommodation and services are provided under the National Health Service Act 1977 s 65 (as substituted and amended), the National Health Service (Scotland) Act 1978 s 58, Sch 7A para 14 or the National Health Service and Community Care Act 1990 Sch 2 para 14: see the Social Security (Attendance Allowance) Regulations, SI 1991/2740, reg 6(2) (amended by SI 1992/2869).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/4. NON-CONTRIBUTORY BENEFITS/(6) GUARDIAN'S ALLOWANCE/117. Conditions of entitlement.

(6) GUARDIAN'S ALLOWANCE

117. Conditions of entitlement.

A person is entitled to a guardian's allowance in respect of a child<sup>1</sup> if:

- 361 (1) he is entitled to child benefit in respect of that child<sup>2</sup>; and
- 362 (2) Either:
  - 31 37. (a) both of the child's parents are dead; or
  - 38. (b) one of the child's parents is dead and the person claiming a guardian's allowance shows that he was at the date of the death unaware of, and has failed after all reasonable efforts to discover, the whereabouts of the other parent<sup>3</sup>; or
  - 39. (c) one of the child's parents is dead and the other is in prison<sup>4</sup>; and
- 32 363 (3) Either:
  - 33 40. (a) the beneficiary would be treated for the purposes of child benefit<sup>5</sup> as having the child living with him; or
  - 41. (b) the requisite contributions are being made to the cost of providing for the child<sup>6</sup>.
- 34

No person is entitled to a guardian's allowance in respect of a child of which he or she is the parent<sup>7</sup>. However, where a person has adopted a child and was entitled to a guardian's allowance in respect of the child immediately before the adoption, the entitlement does not terminate<sup>8</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see PARA 19 note 11 ante.

2 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 77(1)(a). As to entitlement to child benefit generally see PARA 237 et seq post.

3 The interpretation of 'knowing the whereabouts of the other parent' has caused difficulties for tribunals; it is not necessary to know detailed whereabouts (in the sense of an address or residence) and thus a claim failed where the father attended the mother's funeral and was seen there by the person claiming the allowance: see Decision R(G)2/83. A key factor may be the ability to communicate in some way, to some extent, with the other parent and thus, actual contact with the other parent may defeat a claim: see Decision CG/60/92. If no such contact is made, it may be necessary to consider the means available to the claimant for establishing contact: Decision CSG/8/92. 'Reasonable efforts' means steps which would be reasonably expected to be made by a person who wanted to find that other person: Decision R(G)2/83. Where facts come to light after the claim, they are to be taken into consideration; if the other parent's whereabouts are discovered there is no entitlement to the allowance even if there are no practicable means of requiring that parent to contribute: Decision R(G)3/68.

4 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 77(1)(b), (2). A surviving parent is to be treated as being in prison if he is serving a sentence of imprisonment of not less than five years, or of imprisonment for life or is in legal custody as a person sentenced or ordered to be kept in custody during Her Majesty's pleasure or until the directions of Her Majesty are known: Social Security (Guardian's Allowance) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/515, reg 5(1); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). For the purposes of calculating the period of five years referred to in the Social Security (Guardian's Allowance) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/515, reg 5: (1) no account is taken of any period of the sentence served before the death of the deceased parent; (2) no account is taken of any reduction in the period of the sentence by virtue of any enactment providing for it to be treated as reduced in respect of any period of custody before sentence; (3) any continuous period (other than a period before the death of the deceased parent) immediately preceding the imposition of the sentence, being a period throughout which the offender was in custody and not serving a sentence of imprisonment, is aggregated with the sentence; (4) consecutive sentences are aggregated, so however that there is excluded from aggregation with a later sentence such period (if any) of an earlier sentence (not being a sentence of five years or more) as was served before the imposition of the earlier sentence; in each case so however that nothing is construed so as to permit payment of guardian's allowance in respect of any period before the date of sentence: see reg 5(2). Further provisions as to calculation of the period of imprisonment are contained in reg 5(3), (4). Where a surviving parent contributes towards the cost of providing for his child, the weekly rate of any guardian's allowance payable is reduced by an amount equal to the rate of that contribution for the calendar week ending last before the week for which the allowance is payable: reg 5(6). For the purposes of reg 5(6), if the surviving parent normally so contributes at the weekly rate specified in relation to guardian's allowance in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 4 Pt III (subject to frequent amendment) he is treated as continuously so contributing at that rate notwithstanding that for occasional weeks he does not so contribute at that rate or at all: Social Security (Guardian's Allowance) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/515, reg 5(7).

There is provision for requiring the surviving parent in prison to pay into the National Insurance Fund an amount equal to the guardian's allowance paid thereunder: see reg 5(8). The general requirement is of imprisonment; no allowance is payable on the basis that the surviving parent is subject to some form of restriction order under the mental health legislation (even though that order was made as a result of criminal proceedings): Decision R(G)2/80.

5 As to child benefit generally see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt IX (ss 141-147) (as amended); and PARA 237 et seq post.

6 Ibid s 77(4), (5). The condition set out in head (3)(b) in the text is to be treated as satisfied if, but only if, (1) such contributions are being made at a weekly rate not less than the amount of the guardian's allowance by the beneficiary (or, where the beneficiary is one of two spouses residing together, by them together); and (2) except in prescribed cases, the contributions are over and above those required for the purposes of receiving child benefit pursuant to s 143(1)(b) (see PARA 240 post): s 77(6). For the meaning of 'beneficiary' see PARA 21 note 2 ante.

Section 77 provides for the making of regulations for modification of the ordinary criteria for guardian's allowance in cases of illegitimacy, adoption, divorce and provision relating to persons treated as in prison: see s 77(8).

7 Ibid s 77(10). Where, however, there has been an adoption (which in law substitutes the adoptive parent for the natural parent) and the adoptive parent dies, a natural parent who then takes over looking after the child can claim the allowance: Secretary of State for Social Services v S [1983] 3 All ER 173, [1983] 1 WLR 1110, CA.

118. Residence requirements.

There is no entitlement to a guardian's allowance in respect of a child unless at least one of the child's parents satisfies, or immediately before his death satisfied, the following conditions:

- 364 (1) one at least of the child's parents was born in the United Kingdom<sup>1</sup>; or
- 365 (2) at the date of the death of the parent (or other person) whose death gives rise to the claim for guardian's allowance, one at least of the child's parents had been present in Great Britain for at least 52 weeks in the aggregate out of any period of two years after attaining the age of 16 years<sup>2</sup>.

In addition, the requirement that the claimant be entitled to child benefit in respect of the child<sup>3</sup> means that the residence requirements for that benefit, that is to say child benefit, (relating to both the claimant and the child) must also be satisfied<sup>4</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'child' see PARA 19 note 11 ante; and for the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

2 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 77(3); and the Social Security (Guardian's Allowance) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/515, reg 6(1) (substituted by SI 1977/342); Interpretation Act 1978 s 17(2)(b). For the purposes of head (2) in the text, notwithstanding that on any day a person was absent from Great Britain he is treated as though he had been present in Great Britain if his absence was by reason only of the fact that on that day (1) he was abroad in his capacity as a serving member of the forces (within the meaning of the definition in the Social Security (Contributions) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/591, reg 1(2) (as amended)) or an airman or mariner (within the meaning of regs 81, 86); or (2) he was in prescribed employment in connection with continental shelf operations (within the meaning of reg 85): see the Social Security (Guardian's Allowance) Regulations 1975, SI 1975/515, reg 6(2) (substituted by SI 1977/342). Where a child is adopted, it is the adoptive parent who must satisfy these conditions, not the natural parents: see the Social Security (Guardian's Allowance) Regulations, SI 1975/515, reg 6(3)(a). In the case of an illegitimate child (other than one to whom reg 6(3)(a) applies (adopted child) a condition in relation to an illegitimate child must be satisfied by the mother, but where a person has been established (within reg 3(1): see PARA 119 post) as the father, a condition may be satisfied by either the mother or the father: reg 6(3)(b).

3 See PARA 117 ante.

In cases where a child has been adopted in pursuance of an order made in the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man or by an overseas adoption within the meaning of the Adoption Act 1968<sup>1</sup>, the provisions of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 are modified as follows;

- 366 (1) in the case of a child adopted by two spouses jointly, references to the child's parents are read as references to those spouses; and
- 367 (2) in the case of a child adopted by one person only, the conditions of entitlement<sup>2</sup> apply on the death of that person<sup>3</sup>.

Where a child is illegitimate<sup>4</sup> and a person has been found by a court of competent jurisdiction to be the father of the child, or there is no such finding but in the opinion of the determining authority the paternity of the child has been admitted or established, then the guardian's allowance conditions of entitlement<sup>5</sup> operate as if the mother and father of the child were the child's parents<sup>6</sup>; otherwise, those conditions apply on the death of the mother<sup>7</sup>.

Where the marriage of a child's parents was terminated by divorce<sup>8</sup> and where at the death of one of the parents the child was not resident with, or being maintained by, the other parent (and there was no residence order in favour of that other parent or order imposing any liability on him for the child's maintenance), then the conditions of entitlement<sup>9</sup> apply on the death of one of the child's parents<sup>10</sup>.

120. Amount and payment.

Guardian's allowance in respect of a child is payable at a specified weekly rate<sup>1</sup>.

Where a husband and wife are residing together and they would each be entitled to a guardian's allowance in respect of the same child, only the wife is to be entitled, but payment may be made either to her or to him unless she elects in the prescribed manner that payment is not to be made to him<sup>2</sup>.

<sup>1</sup> Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 77(7). The rate so specified is currently £11.15: see s 77(7), Sch 4 Pt III para 5 (subject to frequent amendment). The allowance may be claimed as well as child benefit for the same child, but if any amount is received as extra child benefit (ie the weekly rate for the only, elder or eldest child of a lone parent, known as 'one parent benefit': see PARA 255 post) that extra must be deducted: see the Social Security (Overlapping Benefits) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/597, reg 8(1) (substituted by SI 1991/547); the the Social Security (Overlapping Benefits) Regulations 1979, SI 1979/597, reg 8(3) (substituted by SI 1996/1803). Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/5. INCREASES FOR DEPENDANTS/121. Meaning of 'dependency'.

121. Meaning of 'dependency'.

Provision is made in Part IV of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992<sup>1</sup> for certain benefits to be increased by amounts in respect of child and adult dependants<sup>2</sup>.

Regulations may provide:

- 368 (1) for determining the circumstances in which a person is or is not to be taken<sup>3</sup> to be wholly or mainly, or to a substantial extent, maintaining, or to be contributing at any weekly<sup>4</sup> rate to the maintenance of, another person or to be, or have been, contributing at any weekly rate to the cost of providing for a child<sup>5</sup>;
- 369 (2) for the purposes of the provisions relating to an increase of benefit<sup>6</sup> in respect of a wife or other adult dependant, that where:
  - 35 42. (a) a person is partly maintained by each of two or more beneficiaries<sup>7</sup>, each of whom would be entitled to such an increase in respect of that person if he were wholly or mainly maintaining that person; and
  - 43. (b) the contributions made by those two or more beneficiaries towards the maintenance of that person amount in the aggregate to sums which would, if they had been contributed by one of those beneficiaries, have been sufficient to satisfy the requirements of regulations under these provisions,
  - 36 370 that person is to be taken to be wholly or mainly maintained by such of those beneficiaries as may be prescribed<sup>8</sup>;
  - 371 (3) for any sum or sums paid by a person by way of contribution towards either or both of the following, that is to say the maintenance of his or her spouse and the cost of providing for one or more children, to be treated for the purposes of any specified statutory provisions<sup>9</sup> as such contributions, of such respective amounts equal in the aggregate to that sum or those sums, in respect of such persons, as may be determined in accordance with the regulations so as to secure as large a payment as possible by way of benefit in respect of the dependants<sup>10</sup>.

Although the term 'dependant' is not specifically defined, there is a general linkage in the case of a child to entitlement to child benefit<sup>11</sup>, and in the case of either a child or an adult it is specifically provided that a beneficiary is not to be deemed to be maintaining another person unless that beneficiary:

- 372 (i) when unemployed or incapable of work or entitled to a Category A or B retirement pension<sup>12</sup>, contributes towards the maintenance of that person an amount not less than the amount of increase of benefit received in respect of that person; and
- 373 (ii) when in employment or not incapable of work or not entitled to such a pension, contributed more than half of the actual cost of maintenance of that person<sup>13</sup>.

The question whether a particular person is wholly or mainly maintaining another person living with him in a single household (when the household income will normally be mixed) is governed not by legislation but by the 'family fund test' which has been evolved through commissioners' decisions<sup>14</sup> and is to apply unless there are wholly exceptional circumstances<sup>15</sup>. The test requires the apportionment of the household's weekly income among its members<sup>16</sup>.

Such a notice may be revoked and replaced by the parties at any time: see reg 2(3). 15   See Decision R(I)1/57.

16   The test, of some complexity, is set out in Decision R(S)12/83 para 10. The principal stages are:

14   (1) the weekly 'income' of the household must be ascertained (including earnings, benefits and any maintenance payments); this is to be net of income tax, contributions and other deductions;

15   (2) the amount of the family fund is assumed to be the aggregate cost of maintenance of the household; the cost of maintaining each member of the family is worked out by dividing the fund in the proportion of one for each child under 14 and two for each other member; this gives each member's 'unit cost';

- 16 (3) the net earnings of each member are treated as contributed by that member; pensions and contributory benefits are treated as the income of the person in respect of whom they are paid, but non-contributory and income-related benefits are not counted (Decision R(S)7/89);
- 17 (4) the net contribution of each member of the family (contribution minus unit cost) is then worked out, in particular the surplus (if any) contributed by the claimant;
- 18 (5) the claimant's and any other surpluses (and any contributions from outside the family) are then applied rateably in meeting the aggregate deficits of those with deficits. If the claimant's surplus (assuming there to be one) applied towards meeting the deficit of a member of the household amounts to more than half of his net unit cost, then he is wholly or mainly maintaining that person; if not, he is not;
- 19 (6) a complication arises if a contribution from outside (eg maintenance under a court order) is earmarked for a particular member, rather than for the household as a whole. Such amounts are to be applied to reducing the deficit of that member, before the claimant's surplus and any non-earmarked funds from outside are applied in meeting the various deficits. Child benefit is not to be considered as earmarked, but rather as a contribution by the parent receiving it (Decision CU/108/1993).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/5. INCREASES FOR DEPENDANTS/122. Increase of benefit for child dependants.

122. Increase of benefit for child dependants.

A beneficiary<sup>1</sup> in receipt of short-term incapacity benefit<sup>2</sup> (at the higher rate or where the beneficiary is over pensionable age)<sup>3</sup>, long-term incapacity benefit<sup>4</sup> or a Category A, B or C retirement pension<sup>5</sup> is in general entitled<sup>6</sup> to an increase in that benefit or pension<sup>7</sup> for any period in which he is entitled to child benefit<sup>8</sup> in respect of a child or children<sup>9</sup>.

In any case where a beneficiary is one of two persons who are spouses residing together or an unmarried couple<sup>10</sup>, and the other person had earnings<sup>11</sup> in any week<sup>12</sup>, no such increase in the amount of the benefit or pension is payable for the following week if the other person's earnings exceeded prescribed limits<sup>13</sup>.

A woman in receipt of a widowed mother's allowance<sup>14</sup> is entitled to a dependant's addition for qualifying children<sup>15</sup> in respect of whom she is for the time being entitled to child benefit<sup>16</sup>.

The weekly rate of a child's special allowance<sup>17</sup> for any period for which the beneficiary is entitled to child benefit in respect of two or more children with respect to whom the statutory conditions<sup>18</sup> are satisfied is to be increased in respect of each respectively of those children other than the elder or eldest by the specified amount<sup>19</sup>.

Where a beneficiary is entitled to receive, in respect of a particular child, payment of an amount by way of increase of benefit under these provisions, that amount is not payable unless either the beneficiary would be treated for the purposes of child benefit law<sup>20</sup> as having the child living with him or the requisite contributions are being made to the cost of providing for the child<sup>21</sup>. The requisite contributions must be made, at a weekly rate not less than the amount by way of increase of benefit referred to above, by the beneficiary or, where the beneficiary is one of two spouses residing together, by them together<sup>22</sup> and, except in prescribed cases<sup>23</sup>, the contributions must be over and above the applicable rate<sup>24</sup> of child benefit<sup>25</sup>. Regulations provide for a person to be treated (for qualifying purposes) as if he were or had been entitled to child benefit, or as if he were not or had not been so entitled<sup>26</sup>.

11 Except as may be prescribed, in ibid s 80 (as amended) and ss 82-86A (as amended and added) (see PARAS 122-123, 590-592 post), and in regulations under s 86A (as added), any reference to earnings includes a reference to payments by way of occupational or personal pension: s 89(1) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11(1), Sch 1 para 26). For the purposes of the above-mentioned provisions, the Secretary of State may by regulations provide, in relation to cases where payments by way of occupational or personal pension are made otherwise than weekly, that any necessary apportionment of the payments must be made in such manner and on such basis as may be prescribed: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 89(2). 'Payments by way of occupational or personal pension' means, in relation to a person, periodical payments which, in connection with the coming to an end of an employment of his, fall to be made to him (1) out of money provided wholly or partly by the employer under arrangements made by the employer; or (2) out of money provided under an enactment or instrument having the force of law in any part of the United Kingdom or elsewhere; or (3) under a personal pension scheme as previously defined in the Social Security Act 1986 s 84(1) (definition repealed: see now the Pension Schemes Act 1993 s 1; and PARA 710 post); or (4) under a contract or trust scheme approved under the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988 Pt XIV Ch III (ss 618-629) (as amended) (see PARAS 677-709 post); or (5) under a personal pension scheme approved under Pt XIV Ch IV (ss 630-655) (as amended) (see PARA 711 et seq post): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1). ## 124. Special cases; trade disputes and fluctuating earnings.

A beneficiary<sup>1</sup> is not entitled to an adult dependant increase<sup>2</sup> if the person in respect of whom he would be entitled<sup>3</sup> to it is or would be subject to the trade dispute disqualification<sup>4</sup> for jobseeker's allowance<sup>5</sup>.

Where a beneficiary has been awarded a dependency increase<sup>6</sup> but ceases to become entitled to it by reason only that the weekly earnings<sup>7</sup> of some other person ('the relevant earner') exceed the amount of the increase or, as the case may be, some other specified amount, then, if the beneficiary would otherwise have continued to be entitled to the increase if the excess of earnings were disregarded, the award continues in force but the increase is not payable for any week if the earnings relevant to that week<sup>8</sup> exceed the amount of the increase or, as the case may be, the specified amount<sup>9</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'beneficiary' see PARA 21 note 2 ante.

2 Ie to an increase in any benefit under or by virtue of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 82-88 (as amended) (see PARAS 23 ante, 590 et seq post) or an increase in benefit for an adult dependant by virtue of regulations under s 90 (see PARA 123 ante): s 91(1) (amended by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11(1), Sch 1 para 27).

3 For the meaning of 'entitled' see PARA 21 note 9 ante.

4 Ie he is prevented from being entitled to a jobseeker's allowance by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 14 (as amended) (see PARA 301 post) or would be so prevented if he were otherwise entitled to that benefit: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 91(2) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), Sch 2 para 27).

7 For the meaning of 'earnings' see PARA 33 ante; and for the meaning of 'week' see PARA 32 note 7 ante.

8 For these purposes the earnings which are relevant to any week are those earnings of the relevant earner which would otherwise be taken into account in determining whether the beneficiary is entitled to the increase for the week in question: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 92(2).

6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT

(1) IN GENERAL

126. The industrial injuries scheme.

The industrial injuries scheme came into operation on 5 July 1948<sup>1</sup>, taking the place of the workmen's compensation scheme (which dated back to 1897) and, in its place, providing a scheme of compulsory insurance against personal injury caused by accidents arising out of, and in the course of, employment and against prescribed diseases and injuries due to the nature of a person's employment. It differed from the previous scheme in being state-run and not dependent on loss of earnings. Title to benefit has never depended on the payment of qualifying contributions.

There were originally three benefits under the industrial injuries scheme: (1) injury benefit; (2) disablement benefit; and (3) death benefit. Injury benefit was an income replacement benefit payable during the initial period of incapacity for work, and historically set at a higher rate than ordinary sickness benefit (the 'industrial preference'). Disablement benefit relates to a measured loss of faculty from the accident and is payable whether or not the person is or remains incapable of work<sup>2</sup>. Injury benefit was abolished as from 6 April 1983; by that time the industrial preference had been reduced in value, and the benefit was replaced by entitlement to the modern income replacement benefits of statutory sick pay if still in work<sup>3</sup> and sickness benefit (now incapacity benefit<sup>4</sup>) if not still in work or if still incapable of work when statutory sick pay expires after 28 weeks of entitlement. Death benefit was payable to certain dependants, but was abolished as from 6 April 1988<sup>5</sup>.

The rate of disablement benefit is determined by the extent of the disablement<sup>6</sup>. The threshold for the disablement pension is set at 14 per cent<sup>7</sup>. The rate of the disablement pension may be increased by specified increases in relation to constant attendance<sup>8</sup> and exceptionally severe disablement<sup>9</sup>. However, further increases in relation to reduced earnings, unemployability and periods of approved hospital treatment have been abolished<sup>10</sup>.

The legal test for entitlement to disablement benefit is the same as that which applied for the purposes of the workmen's compensation scheme between 1897 and 1948 (accident arising out of, and in the course of, employment), during which time it was administered through the courts, producing a body of case law, rather than through the present system of appeal tribunals and commissioners<sup>11</sup>.

The Secretary of State<sup>12</sup> may promote research into the causes and incidence of accidents arising out of and in the course of employment, or injuries and diseases which are due to the nature of employment or which it is contemplated might be prescribed for the statutory purposes<sup>13</sup>, either by himself employing persons to conduct such research or by contributing to the expenses of, or otherwise assisting, other persons engaged in such research<sup>14</sup>. He may pay to persons so employed by him such salaries or remuneration, and such travelling and other allowances, as he may determine with the consent of the Treasury<sup>15</sup>.

9 See PARA 149 post.

10 See PARA 161 post. In relation to these (especially the reduced earnings allowance) there is now only entitlement, if at all, for those persons already receiving the benefit at the appropriate date of abolition. In addition, separate provisions still apply to 'old cases' (ie those entitled to workmen's compensation when it was abolished in 1948): see PARA 167 post.

11 While workmen's compensation cases are still authoritative on large parts of the current law, the emphasis in this title is on commissioners' decisions on the post-1948 legislation. However, pre-1948 court decisions have been included where they are still particularly useful on the interpretation of a particular aspect of the legislation.

127. The right to industrial injuries benefit.

Industrial injuries benefit<sup>1</sup> is payable where an employed earner<sup>2</sup> suffers personal injury<sup>3</sup> caused after 4 July 1948 by accident<sup>4</sup> arising out of<sup>5</sup> and in the course of his employment<sup>6</sup>, being employed earner's employment<sup>7</sup>. Industrial injuries benefit consists of the following benefits: (1) disablement benefit<sup>8</sup>; (2) reduced earnings allowance<sup>9</sup>; (3) retirement allowance<sup>10</sup>; and (4) industrial death benefit<sup>11</sup>. For the purposes of industrial injuries benefit, an accident arising in the course of an employed earner's employment is to be taken, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, also to have arisen out of that employment<sup>12</sup>.

Benefit is not payable in respect of an accident happening while the earner is outside Great Britain<sup>13</sup>, but this is subject to a power to amend by regulations<sup>14</sup>. Such an amendment now provides that where a person on or after 1 October 1986 sustains an accident arising out of, and in the course of, his employment or contracts a prescribed disease due to the nature of his employment, that employment is to be treated as employed earner's employment notwithstanding that he is employed outside Great Britain, and any benefit to which he would otherwise be entitled is payable from the date of his return to Great Britain, notwithstanding that the accident happened or the disease was contracted while he was outside it<sup>15</sup>.

For these purposes, 'work' in the context of 'incapable of work' or 'incapacity for work' means work which the person in question can reasonably be expected to do<sup>16</sup>. The general tests for incapacity for work which now apply elsewhere in the social security legislation<sup>17</sup> do not apply for the purposes of industrial injuries benefit<sup>18</sup>.

1 'Industrial injuries benefit' means benefit under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt V (ss 94-111), Schs 6, 7 (but not Sch 8 (as amended)): s 122(1); and see the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 191, which contains an identical definition.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(1) IN GENERAL/128. Relevant employments.

128. Relevant employments.

In certain provisions<sup>1</sup>, 'employed earner's employment' is to be taken to include any employment by virtue of which a person is, or is treated by regulations as being for the purposes of industrial injuries benefit, an employed earner<sup>2</sup>. Any reference in the industrial injuries and diseases provisions<sup>3</sup> to an 'employed earner' or 'employed earner's employment' is to be construed, in relation to any time before 6 April 1975, as a reference respectively to an 'insured person' or 'insurable employment' within the meaning of the provisions relating to industrial injuries and diseases which were in force at that time<sup>4</sup>.

Regulations may provide that any prescribed employment must not be treated for the purposes of industrial injuries benefit as employed earner's employment notwithstanding that it would be so treated apart from the regulations<sup>5</sup>. The ordinary rules as to categorisation of earners<sup>6</sup> are modified in certain circumstances by regulations<sup>7</sup> so that particular employments are treated as employed earners' employments for industrial injuries purposes only<sup>8</sup> and others are excluded<sup>9</sup>. There are special rules governing mariners and airmen<sup>10</sup>.

In relation to (1) a person who is an employed earner<sup>11</sup> otherwise than by virtue of a contract of service<sup>12</sup> or apprenticeship; or (2) any other employed earner (a) who is employed for the purpose of any game or recreation and is engaged or paid through a club, or (b) in whose case it appears to the Secretary of State<sup>13</sup> there is special difficulty in the application of all or any of the provisions of Part V of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 relating to employers, regulations may provide for a prescribed person to be treated in respect of industrial injuries benefit and its administration as the earner's employer<sup>14</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(1) IN GENERAL/129. Establishing an industrial accident.

129. Establishing an industrial accident.

The definition of an industrial accident has given rise to a particularly large body of case law, both under the modern social security legislation and under the workmen's compensation legislation which it replaced<sup>1</sup>. Two points may be made with regard to the approach to be adopted by an adjudicating authority. The first is that, in spite of the volume of the case law, the decision as to whether there has been an industrial accident is ultimately one of fact<sup>2</sup>. This does not mean that there are no principles in this area<sup>3</sup>, but it does mean that the full facts of a case must be considered in the light of the statutory wording<sup>4</sup>. The second is that, although it is necessary to break the definition down into its component parts for the purpose of analysis, a decision may ultimately have to be taken on the application of the particular facts to the composite phrase 'accident arising out of and in the course of employment'<sup>5</sup>.

A claimant<sup>6</sup> may be aided in proving the double requirement that the accident arose out of and in the course of the employment by a statutory presumption that an accident arising in the course of an employed earner's employment is to be taken, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, also to have arisen out of that employment<sup>7</sup>. Given the wording<sup>8</sup>, however, this means that if there is indeed evidence to the contrary the presumption disappears and that evidence must be considered with all the other evidence available<sup>9</sup>.

Where, in connection with any claim<sup>10</sup> for industrial injuries benefit<sup>11</sup>, it is determined that the relevant accident<sup>12</sup> was or was not an industrial accident, an express declaration of that fact must be made and recorded and, subject as follows, a claimant is entitled to have the question whether the relevant accident was an industrial accident determined notwithstanding that his claim is disallowed on other grounds<sup>13</sup>. Subject to certain provisions<sup>14</sup>, any person suffering personal injury by accident is entitled, if he claims the accident was an industrial accident, to have that question determined, and a declaration made and recorded accordingly, notwithstanding that no claim for benefit has been made in connection with which the question arises<sup>15</sup>. The adjudication officer, social security appeal tribunal or commissioner<sup>16</sup>, as the case may be, may refuse to determine the question whether an accident was an industrial accident if satisfied that it is unlikely to be necessary to determine the question for the purposes of any claim for benefit; but any such refusal of an adjudication officer or social security appeal tribunal is subject to appeal to a social security appeal tribunal or commissioner, as the case may be<sup>17</sup>. Any such declaration that an accident was or was not an industrial accident is conclusive for the purposes of any claim for industrial injuries benefit in respect of that accident<sup>18</sup>.

For these purposes<sup>19</sup>, an accident whereby a person suffers personal injury is deemed, in relation to him, to be an industrial accident if:

- 376 (1) it arises out of and in the course of his employment<sup>20</sup>;
- 377 (2) that employment is employed earner's employment<sup>21</sup>;
- 378 (3) payment of benefit is not precluded because the accident happened while he was outside Great Britain<sup>22</sup>.

A decision under these provisions is final except that it may be reviewed<sup>23</sup> if, but only if, the adjudication officer or social security appeal tribunal, as the case may be, is satisfied that the decision was given in consequence of wilful non-disclosure or misrepresentation of a material fact<sup>24</sup>.

The contrary evidence must be more than speculation, but need not amount to proof: Decisions R(I)1/64; and CI/207/1987. For example, an unexplained fall while at work might attract the presumption (Decisions CI127/50; and R(I)64/51), but it might be rebutted in such a case by evidence of an illness or condition which could have caused the fall such as epilepsy (Decisions CI68/49; R(I)12/51; and R(I)5/63). Evidence in rebuttal could also come from the fact that the employee was doing something for his own benefit (Decisions R(I)24/51; R(I)68/52; R(I)24/56; and R(I)1/59) or was drunk (Decision R(I)5/59).

UPDATE

129 Establishing an industrial accident

TEXT AND NOTES--Where, in connection with any claim for industrial injuries benefit, it is decided that the relevant accident was or was not an industrial accident (1) an express declaration of that fact must be made and recorded, and (2) subject to the Social Security Act 1998 s 29(3), a claimant is entitled to have the issue whether the relevant accident was an industrial accident decided notwithstanding that his claim is disallowed on other grounds: s 29(1). For the meaning of 'claimant' see PARA 356A.1. Subject to ss 29(3) and 30, any person suffering personal injury by accident is entitled, if he claims the accident was an industrial accident (a) to have that issue decided, and (b) to have a declaration made and recorded accordingly, notwithstanding that no claim for benefit has been made in connection with which the issue arises: s 29(2). The 1998 Act Pt I Ch II (ss 8-39: see PARA 356A) applies for that purpose as if the issue had arisen in connection with a claim for benefit: s 29(2). The Secretary of State, the First-tier Tribunal or the Upper Tribunal (as the case may be) may refuse to decide the issue whether an accident was an industrial accident if satisfied that it is unlikely to be necessary to decide the issue for the purposes of any claim for benefit, and Pt I Ch II applies as if any such refusal were a decision on the issue: s 29(3) (amended by SI 2008/2833). Subject to the 1998 Act ss 9-15 (see PARA 356A), any declaration under s 29 that an accident was or was not an industrial accident is conclusive for the purposes of any claim for industrial injuries benefit in respect of that accident: s 29(4). Section 29(4) is modified in relation to deaths occurring before 11 April 1988, or for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 60(2) (see PARA 565): see the Social Security Act 1998 s 29(5).

For the purposes of s 29 (but subject to s 30), an accident whereby a person suffers personal injury is deemed, in relation to him, to be an industrial accident if (i) it arises out of and in the course of his employment, (ii) that employment is employed earner's employment for the purposes of the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt V (ss 94-122), and (iii) payment of benefit is not under s 94(5) (see PARA 127) precluded because the accident happened while he was outside Great Britain: Social Security Act 1998 s 29(6).

A decision under s 29 is final except that ss 9 (see PARA 356A.2) and s 10 (see PARA 356A.2) apply to a decision under s 29 that an accident was or was not an industrial accident as they apply to a decision under s 8 (see PARA 356A.1) if, but only if, the Secretary of State is satisfied that the decision under s 29 was given in consequence of any wilful non-disclosure or misrepresentation of a material fact: s 29(7).

A decision (given under s 29(2) or otherwise) that an accident was an industrial accident is to be taken as determining only that heads (i)-(iii) are satisfied in relation to the accident: s 30(1). Subject to s 30(3), (4), no such decision is to be taken as importing a decision as to the origin of any injury or disability suffered by the claimant, whether or not there is an event identifiable as an accident apart from any injury that may have been received: s 30(2). A decision that, on a particular occasion when there was no event so identifiable, a person had an industrial accident by reason of an injury is to be treated as a decision that, if the injury was suffered by accident on that occasion, the accident was an industrial accident: s 30(3). A decision that an accident was an industrial accident may be given, and a declaration to that effect be made and recorded in accordance with s 29, without its having been found that personal injury resulted from the accident: s 30(4). This has effect subject to the discretion under s 29(3) to refuse to decide the issue if it is unlikely to be necessary for the purposes of a claim for benefit: s 30(5).

130. Meaning of 'personal injury'.

The first requirement of the right to benefit is that the claimant must have suffered personal injury<sup>1</sup>. This normally excludes damage to any form of artificial prosthesis, such as an artificial leg<sup>2</sup> or spectacles<sup>3</sup>. Where, however, the prosthesis is a part of the living body (as with an artificial hip), damage to it may constitute personal injury<sup>4</sup>. There must normally be some physiological injury or change for the worse<sup>5</sup>, so that an increase simply in a level of pain will not be sufficient<sup>6</sup>. Personal injury can include nervous shock<sup>7</sup>. However, as with cases of more subtle physiological changes, there may be substantial difficulties in such cases in showing that there was in fact an accident or that it was linked to the employment<sup>8</sup>.

8 In Decision CI/054/94 severe psychological shock suffered by the claimant when he saw the Piper Alpha disaster (in which his brother died) on television while at home on sick leave did not arise out of and in the course of employment.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(1) IN GENERAL/131. Meaning of 'accident'.

131. Meaning of 'accident'.

An accident is an unlooked-for mishap or an untoward event which is not expected or designed<sup>1</sup>. 'Unexpected' in this context means unexpected by the person injured, and so the definition may include a deliberate assault by another person<sup>2</sup>. However, a self-inflicted injury such as suicide is unlikely to qualify<sup>3</sup>, unless there is a condition of nervous or mental derangement as a result of the accident or shock resulting from it which, as a matter of causation, can be said to have led to the suicide<sup>4</sup>.

The normal case will be where the accident is an event which causes injury to the claimant, but the definition also covers cases<sup>5</sup> of physiological or pathological changes for the worse which occur while the person is at work (such as a fit or a heart attack) where the accident actually is the injury<sup>6</sup>. In such a case (unless there is evidence of further injury, for example through falling as a result of the attack) the difficulty is not whether there was an accident, but whether it arose out of the employment as a matter of causation; if not, it will not be an industrial accident even though it occurred during working hours<sup>7</sup>.

Whatever the kind of accident, a causal link must be shown between the accident and the injury, at least to the extent of the accident having been a contributory cause, if not the sole cause<sup>8</sup>. The significance of this is that there can be an accident even where the injury was partly due to some existing weakness or susceptibility<sup>9</sup>. Further, a non-industrial injury may qualify if it came about as a result of a previous industrial action, provided the causal link remains<sup>10</sup>. Where there are successive accidents, each apparently linked to the employment, each must be looked at in isolation to see whether it qualifies as an industrial accident, although on the facts one may have a bearing on the other<sup>11</sup>.

1 This is the definition given in Fenton v J Thorley & Co Ltd [1903] AC 443 at 448, 19 TLR 684 at 685, HL, per Lord Macnaghten, which has been frequently cited and adopted. See eg Decision CI/365/89. The fact that the event in question was caused by the carelessness does not prevent it being accidental for these purposes: Fenton v J Thorley & Co Ltd supra at 453 and at 686 per Lord Lindley; Harris v Associated Portland Cement Manufacturers Ltd [1939] AC 71, [1938] 4 All ER 831, HL.

3 Decisions R(I)38/51; R(I)19/52; and R(I)23/57.

4 Decisions R(I)2/57; and R(I)36/60. In the latter case, there was still the causal link when the state of depression caused by the accident led to suicide four months later. However, if there is no actual derangement and the person later commits suicide simply because he cannot face the physical consequences of the accident the chain of causation may be broken: Dixon v Sutton Heath and Lea Green Colliery Ltd (No 2) (1930) 23 BWCC 135, CA; Decision CI172/50.

5 Sometimes referred to as 'internal accidents' eg caused by heavy lifting: Decision R(I)11/80.

6 Jones v Secretary of State for Social Services [1972] AC 944, [1972] 1 All ER 145, HL.

7 Decision R(I)6/82. Where the event in question was in fact the culmination of a series of events (eg frequent heavy lifting) leading up to the internal change, there may be the further complication of distinguishing between an accident and a process: see PARA 132 post.

8 Decisions R(I)14/51; and R(I)12/58. Independent fault on the part of the claimant himself may be construed as the effective cause and so disentitle him: Decision R(I)4/58 (burns caused by claimant lighting a cigarette while covered in inflammable liquid from an accident at work).

9 Decisions R(I)2/52; R(I)14/51; and R(I)19/63. The 'eggshell skull' principle may be applied here, as in the law of tort: Decision R(I)6/91; and see NEGLIGENCE vol 78 (2010) PARA 62 et seq.

UPDATE

131 Meaning of 'accident'

NOTE 1--Identification of an accident or accidents causing injury to a claimant is crucial to the establishment of entitlement to industrial injury benefit under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 94(1): Chief Adjudication Officer v Faulds [2000] 1 WLR 1035, HL.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(1) IN GENERAL/132. 'Accident' distinguished from process.

132. 'Accident' distinguished from process.

A particular difficulty may arise where there has been the onset of a condition or disease over a period of time, because the claimant must show that there was an incident or series of incidents that can fairly be termed an accident causing that condition or disease. If that can be shown, there is an injury by accident, which may give rise to an entitlement to benefit<sup>1</sup>. If, however, that cannot be shown, the case falls into the category of a 'process', which is not covered by the industrial injury scheme<sup>2</sup>. In the latter case, the claimant will only succeed if the disease is a prescribed one for the purposes of the separate industrial disease provisions, and he satisfies any further conditions imposed by those provisions<sup>3</sup>.

The distinction between an accident and a process is fundamental to the scheme, but has not been without problems. A claimant may be helped by either or both of two principles. The first is that it may be sufficient that the event relied on was merely the last in a chain of events or deteriorations<sup>4</sup>. The second is that there may be no need to date a specific occurrence, provided that it is clear that it must have happened and had the necessary causative effect<sup>5</sup>. In spite of this, the adjudicating authorities may need to take difficult decisions on marginal facts<sup>6</sup>. The considerable amount of case law on this point may offer some guidance<sup>7</sup> but ultimately the decision has to be taken in the light of all the facts of the particular case, and not as a result of supposed rules of law established by previous decisions<sup>8</sup>.

An example of the problems in this area concerns the controversy over passive smoking, especially in offices. Normally, the harm resulting from contact over a period of time with smokers will be viewed as a process and so a claim will fail<sup>9</sup>. If, however, it can be proved that the harm in fact occurred through one or more definable occurrences of ingestion of smoke on specific occasions, this may tip the balance and constitute an accident (or series of accidents) giving rise to entitlement<sup>10</sup>. In this instance the distinction is particularly important because it has been held that passive smoking damage does not come under the prescribed disease of occupational asthma<sup>11</sup>, and so if an accident cannot be shown there will be no entitlement to benefit at all.

4 Decision R(I)54/53 (coronary thrombosis caused by particularly heavy lifting, although probably developing over a period of work); Decision R(I)18/54 (wearing a pad over a period of time producing a sudden numbness in the leg).

5 Decision CI46/59 (may need to fix a reasonable date if otherwise unascertainable); Decision CI196/50 (tuberculosis could have been caused by one massive infection, rather than exposure over a period); Decision R(I)24/54 (repeated pricks to hands causing traumatic cysts); Decision R(I)43/55 (psychoneurotic condition caused by exposure to repeated explosions qualified as injury by a series of accidents). See also Decision CI/278/1993. On this basis, mental injury caused by work-related stress may be caused by accident, especially if the onset is relatively quick although not datable: Decision CI/554/1992.

6 The period of onset may be an important factor here, with a relatively short period pointing to an accident rather than a process (see eg Decisions R(I)18/54; R(I)43/61; and R(I)4/62, all of which were successful and which concerned onset periods of two months, three days and two weeks respectively). However, it is always possible to point to seemingly inconsistent cases on this point (see eg Decisions R(I)42/51 and R(I)19/56, which were unsuccessful and concerned onset periods of two months and three days respectively), and ultimately the inquiry must be a general one, taking into account all the circumstances and not just the onset period: R v Industrial Injuries Comr, ex p Starr, reported as an appendix to Decision R(I)11/74.

7 An accident was established in the following cases: Fife Coal Co Ltd v Young [1940] AC 479, [1940] 2 All ER 85, HL (dropped foot through continual kneeling); Decision CI 29/49 (strained heart due to heavy lifting); Decision CI 159/50 (trainee nurse catching polio from infected child); Decision R(I)3/51 (fibrositis caused by two drenchings from rain at work); Decision R(I)31/52 (fibrositis from severe draught during a single morning); Decision CI/72/1987 (orchestra oboe player contracting throat hernia). Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(1) IN GENERAL/133. Accident arising in the course of employment.

133. Accident arising in the course of employment.

In order for an accident to qualify as an industrial accident for the purposes of industrial injuries benefit, the first requirement is that it must have arisen in the course of employment<sup>1</sup>. This will be so in relation to an accident if it occurs while he is doing what an employee so employed may reasonably do within the time during which he is employed, and at a place where he may reasonably be during that time to do that thing<sup>2</sup>. Several factors may have to be considered in any one case, such as time, place, occupation, actions at the time of the accident and whether the employee was acting under orders<sup>3</sup>. As elsewhere in the industrial injuries scheme, there is a large body of guiding case law (under both the existing scheme and the previous workmen's compensation legislation) but ultimately each case must be decided as a question of fact<sup>4</sup>; excessive reliance on previous, apparently similar, reported cases without applying them fully to the findings of fact may be an error of law<sup>5</sup>.

The place of work will normally cover the actual workplace and the access to it<sup>6</sup>, but may not include accidents in a 'public zone', that is an area to which in practice the public have access<sup>7</sup>. Problems may arise with employees who have no normal workplace, work out in the community<sup>8</sup> or are on call<sup>9</sup>.

With regard to the time of the work, an employee may be in the course of employment not only during actual working hours, but also for a certain period before and afterwards<sup>10</sup>.

Even with a relatively wide interpretation of place and time of employment there could still be harsh distinctions drawn if too literal an approach were taken as to what the course of the employment itself covers, and so it has long been recognised that there must be included certain activities which are reasonably incidental to the employment itself<sup>11</sup>. Thus, an employee will not take himself out of the course of the employment merely by talking to a friend or smoking in the general context of the employment<sup>12</sup>. This is particularly important in relation to breaks in employment, which will generally remain in the course of employment if taken in accordance with the employer's permission<sup>13</sup>. However, it must be borne in mind that the phrase 'reasonably incidental' is not part of the statutory test, and caution may need to be exercised when applying it outside the established category of breaks during employment<sup>14</sup>.

1 See PARA 127 ante.

2 See Moore v Manchester Liners Ltd [1910] AC 498 at 500, HL, per Lord Loreburn. A more succinct formulation is that the employee must be doing something he was employed to do: St Helens Colliery Co Ltd v Hewitson [1924] AC 59 at 71, 40 TLR 125 at 127, HL, per Lord Atkinson; Smith v Stages [1989] AC 928, [1989] 1 All ER 833, HL.

3 If acting directly under orders, the employee will almost certainly be in the course of employment, but the fact that he was not so acting will not always disqualify him: Decision R(I)1/70 (still in the course of employment although acting in an unauthorised manner). Acting merely in a permitted, as opposed to ordered, manner may still qualify: Decision R(I)1/88 (returning home by permitted company vehicle held in the course of employment).

4 Nancollas v Insurance Officer [1985] 1 All ER 833, CA; Smith v Stages [1989] AC 928, [1989] 1 All ER 833, HL; and see PARA 129 ante.

7 Decisions R(I)1/68; R(I)43/51; R(I)72/51; R(I)7/52; and R(I)41/57.

8 In Decision R(I)4/70 a civil servant working partly by making home visits was covered for a street accident when about to make his first visit of the day; but in Decision R(I)2/67 a home help on her way to her first call was held not in the course of employment, as this was merely preparatory to her work. See also Decisions R(I)12/75; R(I)14/81; and R(I)1/83. An employee working away from home is covered by an accident in accommodation where he is required to be: Decision R(I)30/57; but not if in accommodation chosen by himself (even if recommended by the employer): Decision R(I)22/54.

9 Being on call alone will not necessarily mean that the employee remains in the course of employment: Decision R(I)28/53 (fire officer on 24 hour call not covered for accident while at home); followed in Decision R(I)5/81. Where, however, there are restrictions on where the employee can be while on call, the employee may remain in the course of employment: R v National Insurance Comr, ex p Reed reported as an appendix to Decision R(I)7/80 (police sergeant permitted to take lunch at home while on call held covered while travelling back to the police station). Thus, where a driver was injured after he had delivered the passengers to a sporting event but before he was due to pick them up again he was not covered: Decisions R(I)10/52; and R(I)32/51. However, this was distinguished in Decision R(I)11/55 where the driver was required by the employer to remain with the coach or at the sports ground in case he was needed.

10 R v National Insurance Comr, ex p East [1976] ICR 206, DC. In that case the following passage from Willis' Workmen's Compensation (37th Edn, 1945) p 36 was approved. 'The course of employment may be taken to have commenced although the hour for actual work has not struck, if the workman's arrival on the premises is either not unreasonably early, or is necessitated by the circumstances of the employment, or if, at the time of the accident, he is doing something on the employer's premises which is necessary to be done to equip himself for his work': R v National Insurance Comr, ex p East supra at 210 per Lord Widgery CJ.

Thus, arriving reasonably early to avoid rush and congestion may be in the course of employment: Decisions R(I)22/56; and R(I)3/62. However, the travelling itself may not be covered (Decision R(I)22/53), or going to a canteen for food before a shift starts (Decision R(I)11/54); see also Decision R(I)1/59 (arriving early for a game of billiards). Likewise a reasonable period may be allowed at the end of a shift, for example in the case of a miner taking a bath: Decisions CI 24/49; CI 26/49; and CI 211/49. However, remaining on the premises for the employee's own purposes, for example to have a meal in the canteen, may not be covered (Decision R(I)14/61), nor attending the premises other than during work time for the employee's own purposes, for example to collect pay (Decision CI 114/1987); cf Molloy v South Wales Anthracite Colliery Co (1910) 4 BWCC 65, CA (collecting tools); Riley v William Holland & Sons Ltd [1911] 1 KB 1029, 4 BWCC 155, CA (collecting wages).

11 Armstrong, Whitworth & Co Ltd v Redford [1920] AC 757, HL; applied in R v Industrial Injuries Comr, ex p Amalgamated Engineering Union (No 2) [1966] 2 QB 31, [1966] 1 All ER 97, CA. See also Charles R Davidson & Co Ltd v M'Robb [1918] AC 304, 10 BWCC 673, HL.

Thus, the employee remained in the course of employment in Decision R(I)16/62 (employee injured by employer's chiropodist during normal working hours); Decision R(I)2/63 (injury caused by gas explosion following authorised lighting of cigarette); Decision R(I)17/63 (injury while handing over sweet); Decision R(I)2/58 (attendance at day release class); Decision R(I)4/73 (collecting pools coupons during working hours); and Decision R(I)1/77 (putting up Christmas decorations at work). Participation in trade union meetings may be covered if concerning matters relating to the employer: Decisions R(I) 63/51; R(I)9/57; R(I)46/59; and R(I)10/80.

13 Decisions CI 34/50; R(I)11/53; and R(I)4/67. An employee may, however, take himself out of the course of employment by overstaying a permitted break (R v Industrial Injuries Comr, ex p Amalgamated Engineering Union (No 2) [1966] 2 QB 31, [1966] 1 All ER 97, CA; Decision R(I)4/66); or by leaving the place where he should be during the break (Decision R(I)10/81 (merchant seaman going ashore for own purposes)).

UPDATE

133 Accident arising in the course of employment

NOTE 2--The two questions to be asked are what are the employee's work duties, and was the employee discharging a duty at the time of the accident: Chief Adjudication Officer v Rhodes [1999] ICR 178, CA.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(1) IN GENERAL/134. Accident arising out of the employment.

134. Accident arising out of the employment.

It is not sufficient that the accident arose factually in the course of the employment; it is also necessary that it arose out of the employment<sup>1</sup>. This is primarily a question of causation, designed to ensure that benefit is only payable to those injured by employment risks. It is necessary to ask whether it was a part of the employee's employment that he should have acted as he was acting, or should have been in the position in which he was, whereby in the course of that employment he sustained injury<sup>2</sup>. If an employment risk was not the cause of the accident, it will not arise out of the accident, but if it was, the accident will arise out of the employment unless an act done by the employee for his own purposes has added or created a risk different from the employment risk and this different risk is the real cause of the accident<sup>3</sup>.

This emphasis upon the existence of an employment risk may mean that a claimant does not qualify for benefit if he is injured by a common risk which could have befallen anyone in his position, even though the accident happened during working time<sup>4</sup>. However, it is essential to consider further whether the circumstances of the employment were such as to involve increased exposure to what otherwise would be a common risk, in which case the accident may be held to have arisen out of the employment<sup>5</sup>. The distinction may be a fine one<sup>6</sup>, although the tendency may be to adopt a relatively liberal approach in marginal cases<sup>7</sup>.

The claimant's own conduct will only be relevant if it is serious enough to take him outside the employment altogether, which primarily means creating a different or added risk<sup>8</sup>. Short of that, there is no provision to take that conduct into account to reduce any benefit, by analogy with contributory negligence<sup>9</sup>.

1 There is a statutory presumption that an accident arising in the course of employment arises also out of that employment: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 94(3); and PARA 127 ante. However, this only applies in the absence of evidence to the contrary, which means that it may be of limited use: see PARA 129 ante.

3 See Decision R(I)2/63, where an industrial accident resulted from an explosion caused when the claimant lit a cigarette where, unbeknown to him, gas was escaping from an unlit blow-pipe. The question whether the claimant created an added or different risk is one of fact, to be determined in the light of all the circumstances of the case: Decision R(I)2/63 supra at paras 26, 29. See also Decision R(I)77/54 (boy attempting to start machinery); Decision R(I)12/61 (repairer helping a shotfirer and causing explosion in an unauthorised manner). However, the principle of added peril remains only a factor when deciding whether or not a particular act was within the employee's employment: Thomas v Ocean Coal Co Ltd [1933] AC 100 at 109, 25 BWCC 436 at 445, HL, per Lord Buckmaster; Noble v Southern Rly Co [1940] AC 583 at 591-592, [1940] 2 All ER 383 at 387, HL, per Viscount Maugham.

6 Contrast the following cases: Decision R(I)62/53 (driver struck by piece of flying grit while driving lorry held to be common risk); Decision R(I)67/53 (police motor cyclist struck by piece of flying grit while driving motor cycle held to be an industrial accident); Decision R(I)23/58 (agricultural worker struck by lightning while sheltering under a tree held to be industrial accident); Decision R(I)7/60 (agricultural worker struck by lightning while walking across a field held to be common risk).

7 See eg Decision CI/387/1988 (employee suffering nervous shock through seeing colleague in the terminal stage of an illness to which he himself was exposed); and Decision CSI/54/89 (employee injured trying to save a child, while in the street in the course of employment). Both of these accidents were held to arise out of the employment.

8 See Decision R(I)2/63; and note 3 supra. On similar facts in Decision R(I)24/51 there was such a different or added risk where fires were prohibited by the employer. Acting in contravention of orders or statutory obligations is now covered by the legislation: see PARA 138 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(1) IN GENERAL/135. Travelling to and from work.

135. Travelling to and from work.

An accident happening while an employed earner is, with the express or implied<sup>1</sup> permission of his employer<sup>2</sup>, travelling as a passenger<sup>3</sup> by any vehicle<sup>4</sup> to or from his place of work is, notwithstanding that he is under no obligation to his employer to travel by that vehicle, to be taken to arise out of and in the course of his employment if (1) the accident would have been taken so to have arisen had he been under such an obligation; and (2) at the time of the accident the vehicle is being operated by or on behalf of his employer or some other person by whom it is provided in pursuance of arrangements<sup>5</sup> made with his employer, and is not being operated in the ordinary course of a public transport service<sup>6</sup>.

Outside this relatively narrow statutory category, the question of accidents while travelling to and from work has been one of the most difficult under the legislation, and has produced a large body of case law under both the existing system and the previous workmen's compensation system<sup>7</sup>. However, the modern approach is to accept that there is no conclusive test, and that a statutory authority when adjudicating on the matter must adopt a broad approach and weigh all the factors in the particular case, rather than seek to find an answer in the reported case law<sup>8</sup>. Following on from this, the House of Lords has now reviewed the whole question<sup>9</sup> and reaffirmed that the paramount rule is that an employee travelling on the highway would be acting in the course of employment if, but only if, he is at the material time going about his employer's business<sup>10</sup>.

Applying that principle, the following propositions were made. An employee travelling from his ordinary residence to his regular place of work, whatever the means of transport and even if it is provided by the employer, is not on duty and is not acting in the course of his employment, but if he is obliged by his contract of service to use the employer's transport, he would normally, in the absence of an express condition to the contrary, be regarded as acting in the course of his employment while doing so<sup>11</sup>. Travelling in the employer's time between workplaces (one of which may be the regular workplace) or in the course of a peripatetic occupation, whether accompanied by goods or tools or simply in order to reach a succession of workplaces (as an inspector of gas meters might do), will be in the course of the employment<sup>12</sup>. Receipt of wages (but not receipt of a travelling allowance<sup>13</sup>) will indicate that the employee is travelling in the employer's time and for his benefit and is acting in the course of his employment, and in such a case the fact that the employee may have discretion as to the mode and time of travelling will not take the journey out of the course of his employment. An employee travelling in the employer's time from his ordinary residence to a workplace other than his regular workplace or in the course of a peripatetic occupation or to a scene of an emergency (such as a fire, an accident or mechanical breakdown of plant) will be acting in the course of his employment. A deviation from or interruption of a journey undertaken in the course of employment (unless the deviation or interruption is merely incidental to the journey) will for the time being (which may include an overnight interruption) take the employee out of the course of his employment. Return journeys are to be treated on the same footing as outward journeys<sup>14</sup>.

It is therefore submitted that the correct approach now is to weigh carefully all the facts in the case under consideration, drawing such guidance from the propositions above as may be appropriate.

2 Where there has been a divergence from the route without the employer's permission this provision may cease to apply: Decision R(I)50/55 (member of furniture removal team killed on the journey from a public house to his home; held not an industrial accident).

3 'Passenger' does not include the driver of the vehicle and so does not apply to a cyclist: Decisions CI 49/59; R(I)9/51; and R(I)51/51. As this is an artificial extension of the course of employment, it must be strictly limited to the circumstances described, and will not apply, for example, to a person in the roadway prior to boarding the vehicle: Decision R(I)67/52. See also Decisions R(I)79/51; R(I)1/53; and R(I)48/54.

4 'Vehicle' includes a ship, vessel, hovercraft or aircraft: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 99(2). It has been held to include a tractor being used to transport an employee home: Decision R(I)42/56.

5 Normally the arrangements would be made by contract between the employer and the provider of the vehicle. In the absence of a contract, there must be some definite, ascertainable arrangement between them which excludes the general public: Decision R(I)67/51 (special times fixed for running ordinary passenger trains insufficient). The arrangement must be with the employer: Decision R(I)101/49. In Decision R(I)5/80 there was a contract between the employer and a bus company to provide a passenger service for employees, but the employee was injured while travelling in the bus driver's private car for part of the return journey; this was outside the terms of the agreement and the accident was not an industrial accident.

7 The old case law is set out in Neligan Social Security Case Law: Digest of Commissioners' Decisions Ch 8.

8 Nancollas v Insurance Officer [1985] 1 All ER 833, CA. There remains a distinction to be drawn between cases where the act is done under an obligation to the employer (which will almost invariably be in the course of employment) and those where the act is merely done with the employer's permission (which may or may not be in the course of employment, depending on the facts): Decision R(I)1/88.

9 See Smith v Stages [1989] AC 928, [1989] 1 All ER 833, HL. The case in fact relates to the vicarious liability of an employer in the law of tort in relation to a road accident caused by his employee, but the tests are the same and the case has been adopted and applied in the social security context: see Decisions CI/110/1988; CI/163/1988; and R(I)1/91.

There may, of course, be an overlap here with the more general question of the nature and place of the particular employment: see PARA 133 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(1) IN GENERAL/136. Accidents during recreation and training.

136. Accidents during recreation and training.

Generally, an accident which results from an activity in which the claimant is obliged to engage by virtue of the terms (whether express or implied) of his contract of employment should be regarded as arising out of and in the course of employment<sup>1</sup>. Therefore, where participation in recreation is part of the claimant's duty, or such a normal and regular incident of his duty that it can be regarded as part of it, an accident in the course of that participation arises out of and in the course of employment<sup>2</sup>. Beyond that, there is a difficult distinction to be drawn, especially as it has been stated that the concept of activities 'reasonably incidental' to the employment is to be used with caution in this area<sup>3</sup>. Thus, a police constable selected to play football for his police force was not in the course of his employment during the match<sup>4</sup>. However, an officer might be considered to be in the course of employment if the recreational activity was organised as part of a programme designed to suit him for his duties<sup>5</sup>.

1 Claims were allowed in Decision CI 228/50 (apprentice injured during compulsory training); and Decision R(I)2/68 (apprentice injured during voluntary training). Claims were disallowed in Decision CI 229/50 (employee expected but not obliged to take part in a physical training class); and Decision R(I)10/80 (school cleaner granted paid leave for a trade union training course and injured on the premises where it was being held).

2 In the case of a nurse injured while playing games (especially in a mental home) the matter depends on the predominant purpose of those games. If it is to provide exercise for the nurse and only incidentally for the entertainment of the patients, it is not part of the employment, but if it is predominantly to exercise or occupy the patients it is part of the employment: Decisions R(I)13/51; R(I)33/56; and R(I)3/57. A school teacher injured at a Christmas party which she was required to attend succeeded in her claim: Decision R(I)62/52. However, claims were unsuccessful in the cases of a laboratory technician injured playing football on the hospital grounds during the lunch hour, which was encouraged by the employer (Decision R(I)2/69) and an airline stewardess injured playing tennis on a stop-over (Decision R(I)4/81).

5 R v National Insurance Comr, ex p Michael [1977] 2 All ER 420 at 431, [1977] ICR 121 at 135, CA, per Lawton LJ. In Decision R(I)3/81 a police cadet required to compete in a swimming championship as part of a training exercise was in the course of employment when injured in a road accident on the way back to the training school. A similar distinction can be seen in the cases relating to firemen suffering sporting injuries. Cases have succeeded where participation was compulsory (Decision R(I)68/51) or where the playing of volleyball during recreational periods during long periods of waiting was encouraged as a way of maintaining fitness (Decision R(I)13/66, not following earlier decisions to the contrary in Decisions CI 17/50; and CI 145/50). Where, however, the injury was sustained by a fireman playing football in the evening after hours at a residential college it was held that the accident did not arise in the course of employment: Decision R(I)2/80.

137. Accidents in the course of illegal employments.

The Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> may direct that the relevant employment<sup>2</sup> is, in relation to that accident, disease or injury, to be treated as having been employed earner's employment<sup>3</sup> notwithstanding that by reason of a contravention of, or non-compliance with, some provision contained in or having effect under an enactment passed for the protection of employed persons or any class of employed persons, either (1) the contract purporting to govern the employment was void; or (2) the employed person was not lawfully employed in the relevant employment at the time when, or in the place where, the accident happened or the disease or injury was contracted or received<sup>4</sup>.

The Secretary of State may make such a direction in any case where (a) a claim<sup>5</sup> is made for industrial injuries benefit<sup>6</sup> in respect of an accident, or of a prescribed disease or injury; or (b) an application is made<sup>7</sup> for a declaration that an accident was an industrial accident, or for a corresponding declaration as to a prescribed disease or injury<sup>8</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

2 'Relevant employment' means (1) in relation to an accident, the employment out of and in the course of which the accident arises; and (2) in relation to a prescribed disease or injury, the employment to the nature of which the disease or injury is due: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 97(3). NOTE 7--The reference is now to the Social Security Act 1998 s 29: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 97(1) (amended by the Social Security Act 1998 Sch 7 para 64).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(1) IN GENERAL/138. Accident when employee acting in breach of regulations or instructions.

138. Accident when employee acting in breach of regulations or instructions.

An accident is to be taken to arise out of and in the course of an employed earner's employment<sup>1</sup>, notwithstanding that he is at the time of the accident acting in contravention of any statutory or other regulations<sup>2</sup> applicable to his employment, or of any orders given by or on behalf of his employer<sup>3</sup>, or that he is acting without instructions from his employer<sup>4</sup>, if (1) the accident would have been taken so to have arisen had the act not been done in contravention of any such regulations or orders, or without such instructions, as the case may be; and (2) the act is done for the purposes of and in connection with the employer's trade or business<sup>5</sup>.

Three questions have to be asked: (a) whether, looking at the facts as a whole, including any regulations or orders affecting the employee, the accident was one which arose out of and in the course of employment; (b) if the first question is answered in the negative, whether the negative answer is due to the fact that, when the accident occurred, the employee was acting in contravention of some regulation or order; (c) if the second question is answered in the affirmative, whether the act which the employee was engaged in performing was done by him for the purposes of and in connection with employer's trade or business<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to employed earner's employment see PARA 128 ante.

2 Eg riding in a tub contrary to statutory regulations as to coal mines (Decision CI 11/49; James Nimmo & Co Ltd v Hargrey (1941) 34 BWCC 121, HL). This does not extend to a mere notice in a bus or warning by the bus steward (Decision CI 182/49), nor a prohibition which has never been enforced (Decision CI 220/49). The claimant must have entered upon the course of his employment: Decision R(I)28/55.

3 Eg see Decision R(I)6/55, where a kitchen hand slipped when hanging a wet apron in a recess near an oven he had been forbidden to use.

4 Eg see Decision R(I)76/51, where a ship's fireman voluntarily helped a seaman to put hatches in place; and Decision R(I)4/59, where the claimant was injured on a public highway going to meet his employer's lorry.

5 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 98. 'Trade or business' includes, in relation to a public or local authority, the exercise and performance of the powers and duties of that authority: s 122(1).

6 See Noble v Southern Rly Co [1940] AC 583 at 591, [1940] 2 All ER 383 at 386-387, HL, per Viscount Maugham; adopted in Decision CI 210/50. Earlier cases tended to draw a sharp distinction between cases to which the statutory provisions now contained in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 98 could apply and cases where the actions of the employee were such that he was not engaged on what he was employed to do at all: see eg Decision R(I)12/61 (colliery repairer injured while coupling up a shot for shot firer); and Decision R(I)17/61 (colliery worker finishing his work and walking up the haulage way while it was still working, in breach of orders). In neither case could the employee claim the protection of the statutory provisions.

In R v D'Albuquerque, ex p Bresnahan [1966] 1 Lloyd's Rep 69, DC (reported as an appendix to Decision R(I)1/66) the death of a dock labourer, employed as a 'hooker-on', whilst driving a fork lift truck was held not to arise in the course of employment because driving the truck was not within the scope of his employment; but this decision has been doubted: see Kay v ITW Ltd [1968] 1 QB 140 at 157, [1967] 3 All ER 22 at 29, CA, per Sachs LJ. R v D'Albuquerque, ex p Bresnahan supra was distinguished in Decision R(I)1/70, where a dock labourer loading a ship was injured while driving an electric truck to fetch the necessary slings; he was not authorised or permitted to drive the truck, but it was held that this was merely an unauthorised manner of carrying out his employment and so the statutory provisions now contained in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 98 applied. See further Decision CI 9/74 (unreported) in which R v D'Albuquerque, ex p Bresnahan supra was no longer regarded as good law.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(1) IN GENERAL/139. Accidents happening while meeting emergencies.

139. Accidents happening while meeting emergencies.

An accident happening to an employed earner<sup>1</sup> in or about any premises<sup>2</sup> at which he is for the time being employed for the purposes of his employer's trade or business<sup>3</sup> is to be taken to arise out of and in the course of his employment if it happens while he is taking steps, on an actual or supposed emergency<sup>4</sup> at those premises, to rescue, succour or protect persons who are, or are thought to be or possibly to be, injured or imperilled, or to avert or minimise serious damage to property<sup>5</sup>.

In addition to the above statutory provision, an accident may be held to arise out of a person's employment on ordinary principles if, at the time of the occurrence, the employee was acting reasonably and sensibly in dealing with something that happened unexpectedly, and so was doing something incidental to his employment<sup>6</sup>. It is sufficient that the employee qualifies either under the general principle or the special statutory provision<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'employed earner' see PARA 128 ante.

2 'Premises' do not include the public highway (Decision CI 52/54), but may include a road adjacent to the premises in question (Decision R(I)46/60). A delivery person may be covered for an emergency at the premises to which he is delivering: Decision R(I)6/63.

3 For the meaning of 'trade or business' see PARA 138 note 5 ante. Premises at which an employed earner is for the time being employed for the purposes of training (organised by an industrial training board or the Secretary of State) are deemed to be premises at which he is for the time being employed for the purposes of his employer's trade or business: Industrial Training Act 1982 s 18(4). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

4 This does not necessarily imply imminent danger: Decision CI 280/49; following Culpeck v Orient Steam Navigation Co Ltd (1922) 15 BWCC 187, CA; and Dermody v Higgs & Hill Ltd [1937] 4 All ER 379, 30 BWCC 351, CA.

5 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 100. The onus is on the claimant to prove that the statutory conditions are satisfied: Decisions R(I)5/54; and R(I)6/63.

6 See Decision CI 280/49 (claimant injured while helping a workman to hold up window frames); Decision R(I)11/51 (lorry driver knocked down while helping a fellow road user who was in difficulties); Decision R(I)62/51 (watchman injured while going, at a policeman's invitation, to investigate a light in nearby premises); Decision R(I)63/54 (off-duty van driver injured while rescuing the van from a burning garage). However, the claimant's actions were held not to be reasonable and sensible, and so the claim failed, in Decision R(I)32/54 (claimant injured while climbing into factory because the person responsible for opening it had not arrived).

7 Decisions CI 280/49; and R(I)6/63.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(1) IN GENERAL/140. Accident caused by misconduct etc.

140. Accident caused by misconduct etc.

An accident happening after 19 December 1961<sup>1</sup> is to be treated for the purposes of industrial injuries benefit<sup>2</sup>, where it would not apart from this provision be so treated, as arising out of an employed earner's employment<sup>3</sup> if:

- 379 (1) the accident arises in the course of the employment<sup>4</sup>; and
- 380 (2) the accident either is caused (a) by another person's misconduct, skylarking or negligence, or (b) by steps taken in consequence of any such misconduct, skylarking or negligence, or (c) by the behaviour or presence of an animal (including a bird, fish or insect), or is caused by or consists in the employed earner being struck by any object or by lightning; and
- 381 (3) the employed earner did not directly or indirectly induce or contribute to the happening of the accident by his conduct outside the employment or by any act not incidental to the employment<sup>5</sup>.

1 The day preceding the coming into force of the Family Allowances and National Insurance Act 1961 s 2 (repealed).

2 For the meaning of 'industrial injuries benefit' see PARA 127 note 1 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'employed earner's employment' see PARA 128 ante.

4 See PARA 133 ante.

5 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 101. This provision was introduced partly to reverse the effects of R v National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Comr, ex p Richardson [1958] 2 All ER 689, [1958] 1 WLR 851, DC, where a bus conductor assaulted on his bus was denied benefit on the basis that the attack was made on him simply as a person who happened to be there, rather than as the conductor, and so did not arise out of the employment.

In Decision R(I)3/69 a factory worker on a permitted smoke break was hit by a snowball by a young fellow employee. He followed the latter in order to remonstrate with him, but in doing so trapped his hand in a door. It was held that the claimant had not taken himself out of the course of employment, nor had his conduct contributed to the accident (aliter if he had been trying to retaliate), and so the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 101 applied to him, deeming it to have been an industrial accident.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(2) DISABLEMENT PENSION/141. Disablement pension.

(2) DISABLEMENT PENSION

141. Disablement pension.

An employed earner<sup>1</sup> is entitled to disablement pension if he suffers as the result of the relevant accident<sup>2</sup> from loss of physical or mental faculty<sup>3</sup> such that the assessed<sup>4</sup> extent of the resulting disablement amounts to not less than 14 per cent or, on a claim<sup>5</sup> made before 1 October 1986, 20 per cent<sup>6</sup>. However, a person is not entitled to a disablement pension until after the expiry of 90 days (disregarding Sundays) beginning with the day of the relevant accident<sup>7</sup>. The burden lies on the claimant to show on the balance of probabilities that he satisfies the conditions governing the claim<sup>8</sup>.

Where disablement pension is payable for a period<sup>9</sup>, it is paid at the appropriate weekly rate<sup>10</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'employed earner' see PARA 128 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'relevant accident' see PARA 129 note 12 ante. The requirement that the disablement be suffered as a result of the relevant accident means that the necessary causal link must be established. This entails showing that the accident was a real and effective, if not the only, cause: Decision R(I)3/66. Whether there has been an industrial accident is determined by the usual adjudicating authorities (ie the adjudication officer, with appeal to a social security appeal tribunal, and then to a commissioner), but whether that accident resulted in a loss of faculty is a disablement question which is to be determined by the medical authorities (ie the adjudicating medical practitioner or medical appeal tribunal): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 45(1)(a). However, it is specifically provided that a decision by the former authorities that there has been an industrial accident causing injury is not to be taken as importing a decision as to the origin of any injury or disablement suffered by the claimant (which therefore can be adjudicated upon afresh by the latter authorities): see s 60(3) (reversing Jones v Secretary of State for Social Services [1972] AC 944, [1972] 1 All ER 145, HL).

3 'Loss of physical faculty' includes disfigurement whether or not accompanied by any loss of physical faculty: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 122(1). The loss of a kidney has been held to be a loss of faculty (even though the claimant could still exist on the other): Decision R(I)14/66. In considering a question of loss of faculty, the use of aids to mitigate the consequences of such a loss must be disregarded: Decision R(I)7/67.

4 As to the principles of assessment see PARA 142 post.

5 For the meaning of 'claim' see PARA 19 note 5 ante.

6 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 103(1). Where an assessment of disablement on a claim made on or after 1 October 1986 is less than 20% but not less than 14%, it is to be treated as 20%: s 103(3).

7 Ibid s 103(6).

8 Decisions R(I)32/61; and R(I)12/62.

9 If this period is limited by reference to a definite date, the pension ceases on the death of the beneficiary before that date: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 103(8). As to the period of assessment see PARA 145 post.

10 Ibid s 103(7). The rates are specified in s 103(7), Sch 4 Pt V (subject to frequent amendment). For the varying degrees of disablement, differing amounts are payable depending on whether or not the beneficiary is over the age of 18 or is entitled to an increase of benefit in respect of a child or adult dependant: see Sch 4 para 1.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(2) DISABLEMENT PENSION/142. General principles for assessing extent of disablement.

142. General principles for assessing extent of disablement.

In the determination of the extent of an employed earner's<sup>1</sup> disablement for the purposes of disablement pension there may be added to the percentage of the disablement resulting from the relevant accident<sup>2</sup> the assessed<sup>3</sup> percentage<sup>4</sup> of any present disablement of his (1) which resulted from any other accident after 4 July 1948 arising out of and in the course of his employment, being employed earner's employment<sup>5</sup>; and (2) in respect of which a disablement gratuity was not paid to him after a final assessment of his disablement, as well as any percentage which may be added in accordance with regulations<sup>6</sup>.

For the purposes of disablement benefit, the extent of disablement is assessed by reference to the disabilities incurred by the claimant as a result of the relevant loss of faculty<sup>7</sup>, in accordance with the following principles:

- 382 (a) Except as provided in heads (b) to (d) below, the disabilities to be taken into account are all disabilities so incurred (whether or not involving loss of earning power or additional expense) to which the claimant<sup>8</sup> may be expected, having regard to his physical and mental condition at the date of the assessment, to be subject during the period taken into account by the assessment as compared with a person of the same age and sex whose physical and mental condition is normal<sup>9</sup>;
- 383 (b) regulations may make provision as to the extent (if any) to which any disabilities are to be taken into account where they are disabilities which, though resulting from the relevant loss of faculty, also result, or without the relevant accident might have been expected to result, from a cause other than the relevant accident<sup>10</sup>;
- 384 (c) the assessment is made without reference to the particular circumstances of the claimant other than age, sex, and physical and mental condition<sup>11</sup>;
- 385 (d) the disabilities resulting from such loss of faculty as may be prescribed are taken as amounting to 100 per cent disablement and other disabilities are assessed accordingly<sup>12</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'employed earner' see PARA 128 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'relevant accident' see PARA 129 note 12 ante.

3 In the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt V (ss 94-111), Schs 6-8, 'assessed', in relation to the extent of any disablement, means assessed in accordance with s 103(5), Sch 6 (as amended); and for the purposes of Sch 6 (as amended) there must be taken to be no relevant loss of faculty when the extent of the resulting disablement, if so assessed, would not amount to 1%: s 103(5). For the meaning of 'loss of physical faculty' see PARA 141 note 3 ante.

4 Where the assessment of disablement is between 20% and 100% which is not a multiple of 10, it is treated, if it is a multiple of 5, as being the next higher percentage which is a multiple of 10, and, if it is not a multiple of 5, as being the nearest percentage which is a multiple of 10; and where the assessment of disablement on a claim made on or after 1 October 1986 is less than 20%, but not less than 14%, it is treated as 20%: ibid s 103(3).

5 For the meaning of 'employed earner's employment' see PARA 128 ante.

6 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 103(2). The regulations referred to are those under s 109(2) made by virtue of s 109(4)(b). Regulations under head (d) in the text or Sch 6 para 2 may include provision (1) for adjusting or reviewing an assessment made before the date of the coming into force of those regulations; (2) for any resulting alteration of that assessment to have effect as from that date, but no assessment is to be reduced by virtue of this provision: Sch 6 para 3. At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made. Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(2) DISABLEMENT PENSION/143. Special rules for assessing extent of disablement.

143. Special rules for assessing extent of disablement.

There are special rules applying where the disabilities result from the relevant loss of faculty<sup>1</sup> and also from some other effective cause<sup>2</sup>. Where that other cause is a congenital defect or an injury or disease<sup>3</sup> which pre-dates the relevant accident, the total disablement is to be assessed, subject to an offset of the extent of the disablement if the accident had not happened<sup>4</sup>. Where that other cause is an injury or disease occurring after the relevant accident<sup>5</sup> (and not directly attributable to it), account is to be taken of the disablement that would have resulted throughout the period if the other cause had not occurred; where, however, that assessment is 11 per cent or more, the assessment is also to include disablement resulting from that other cause except to the extent to which the claimant would have been subject thereto if the relevant accident had not happened<sup>6</sup>.

Any assessment of the extent of the disablement resulting from the relevant loss of faculty may be reviewed by an adjudicating medical practitioner if he is satisfied that since the making of the assessment there has been an unforeseen aggravation of the results of the relevant injury<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'relevant loss of faculty' see PARA 142 note 7 ante.

2 See the Social Security (General Benefit) Regulations 1982, SI 1982/1408, reg 11(2); and Decision R(I)3/91.

3 An offset on this basis may only be made where there is some definite existing or developing impairment; it is not enough that the claimant had merely some existing susceptibility or latent problem: Decisions R(I)2/74; R(I)13/75; R(I)3/76; R(I)1/81; and CI/34/93.

4 See the Social Security (General Benefit) Regulations 1982, SI 1982/1408, reg 11(3) (amended by SI 1993/1985); Murrell v Secretary of State for Social Services, CA (reported as an Appendix to Decision R(I)3/84); and Decision CI/606/1993.

5 For the meaning of 'relevant accident' see PARA 129 note 12 ante.

6 See the Social Security (General Benefit) Regulations 1982, SI 1982/1408, reg 11(4) (amended by SI 1993/1985). The first rule allows the claimant to keep the assessment from the industrial accident even though, on common law principles of causation, the later occurrence might be said to have superseded it as the real cause of the total disability. The second rule (where the original assessment was more than 11%) allows the claimant to have the benefit of any extent to which the second occurrence aggravated the effect of the industrial accident (on the same principle as reg 11(3) (as amended)): see eg R v Industrial Injuries Comr, ex p Cable [1968] 1 QB 729, [1968] 1 All ER 9, CA (claimant lost the sight of one eye in an industrial accident; held entitled to the extra aggravation of that condition when he later lost the sight in the other eye due to disease); and Decision R(I)3/91.

7 Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 47(4). Where the assessment was made by a medical appeal tribunal, any such review must have the leave of that tribunal: see s 47(7). The normal principles of assessment apply on a review: Decisions R(I)18/61; and R(I)18/62. Normally a final assessment cannot be re-assessed downwards for improvement. If, however, such a final assessment is reviewed for unforeseen aggravation and is replaced by a provisional assessment, then any future improvement can be taken into account when that provisional assessment expires, which may result in a further assessment lower than that in the original final assessment: Parker v Chief Adjudication Officer (1991), CA (reported as an Appendix to Decision R(I)2/90). The reviewing authority may not call into question the original decision as to the loss of faculty and its link to the accident or disease: Decision CI/437/92. Special restrictions apply on reviewing for unforeseen aggravation an assessment in relation to occupational deafness: see the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, regs 30, 31 (amended by SI 1993/861).

An assessment for the purposes of disablement pension<sup>1</sup> must state the degree of disablement as a percentage<sup>2</sup>. A scale setting out the degree of disablement to be attributed to a number of specific injuries has been prescribed<sup>3</sup>. Increases or reductions may be made to the prescribed percentage for a specified injury where the degree of disablement prescribed does not provide a reasonable assessment of the extent of disablement resulting from the relevant loss of faculty<sup>4</sup>. Where a percentage is to be assessed in the case of an injury which is not specified, such regard as may be appropriate is to be paid to the prescribed percentages for the specified injuries<sup>5</sup>.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(2) DISABLEMENT PENSION/145. The period of assessment.

145. The period of assessment.

An assessment for the purposes of disablement pension<sup>1</sup> must state the period taken into account by it and where the period is limited by reference to a definite date, it must specify whether the assessment is provisional or final<sup>2</sup>. The period to be taken into account by an assessment<sup>3</sup> of the extent of a claimant's<sup>4</sup> disablement is the period (beginning not earlier than the end of the period of 90 days from the day of the relevant accident<sup>5</sup> limited by reference either to the claimant's life or to a definite date) during which the claimant has suffered and may be expected to continue to suffer from the relevant loss of faculty<sup>6</sup>.

If on any assessment the condition of the claimant is not such, having regard to the possibility of changes in that condition (whether predictable or not), as to allow of a final assessment being made up to the end of the specified period<sup>7</sup> a provisional assessment must be made, taking into account such shorter period only as seems reasonable having regard to his condition and that possibility; and on the next assessment the period to be taken into account begins with the end of the period taken into account by the provisional assessment<sup>8</sup>.

6    Ibid Sch 6 para 6(1). For the meaning of 'relevant loss of faculty' see PARA 142 note 7 ante. Different percentages may be fixed for different parts of the assessment period: Decision R(I)30/61. In the case of byssinosis, the minimum period is to be a year; in the case of occupational deafness, the initial assessment must be provisional for a period of five years, and any subsequent assessment must be for at least five years: see the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, regs 20(3), 29.

Where the assessed extent of a claimant's disablement amounts to less than 14% then that assessment is a final assessment and the period to be taken into account by it does not end before the earliest date on which it seems likely that the extent of the disablement will be less than 1%: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 6 para 6(3). However, this does not apply in any case where it seems likely that (1) the assessed extent of the disablement will be aggregated with the assessed extent of any present disablement; and (2) that aggregate will amount to 14% or more: Sch 6 para 6(4). Where the extent of the claimant's disablement is assessed at different percentages for different parts of the period taken into account by the assessment, then (a) Sch 6 para 6(3) does not apply in relation to the assessment unless the percentage assessed for the latest part of that period is less than 14%; and (b) in any such case, Sch 6 para 6(3) applies only in relation to that part of that period (and subject to Sch 6 para 6(4)): Sch 6 para 6(5).

However, if a later tribunal is to differ from a previous decision it should give clear reasons: Kitchen v Secretary of State for Social Services [1993] NLJ Rep 1370, CA. The assessed percentages of two separate industrial accidents may be aggregated in determining the extent of the claimant's disablement<sup>1</sup>.

Where a person suffers two or more successive accidents arising out of and in the course of his employed earner's employment<sup>2</sup>: (1) he is not for the same period entitled (apart from any increase of benefit<sup>3</sup>) to receive industrial injuries benefit<sup>4</sup> by way of two or more disablement pensions at an aggregate weekly rate exceeding the appropriate specified amount<sup>5</sup>; and (2) regulations<sup>6</sup> may provide for adjusting (a) disablement benefit, or the conditions for the receipt of that benefit, in any case where he has received or may be entitled to a disablement gratuity; (b) any increase of benefit, or the conditions for its receipt<sup>7</sup>.

Where there are two or more industrial accidents or diseases which together produce a degree of disability over and above that produced by the last one looked at in isolation, that extra degree of disability is to be attributed to the last accident or disease, leaving any assessment in respect of the earlier accident or disease undisturbed<sup>8</sup>. Where a disablement pension is payable in respect of an assessment<sup>1</sup> of 100 per cent, then if as the result of the relevant loss of faculty<sup>2</sup> the beneficiary<sup>3</sup> requires constant attendance, the weekly rate of the pension is increased by an amount not exceeding the specified amount<sup>4</sup>. 148. Period and rate of constant attendance allowance.

Constant attendance allowance is payable for such period as may be determined at the time it is granted and may be renewed from time to time<sup>1</sup>. Generally, however, it may not be paid for any period when the beneficiary is receiving, or has received, free in-patient treatment in a hospital or similar institution<sup>2</sup>. The increase must not exceed a specified weekly maximum according to whether or not it is a case of exceptionally severe disablement<sup>3</sup>. Thus, where the beneficiary is so severely disabled as to be entirely or almost entirely dependent on that attendance for the necessities of life, and is likely to remain so dependent for a prolonged period, the attendance required being whole-time, the specified maximum is higher<sup>4</sup> than where the beneficiary is so dependent to a substantial extent and likely to remain so for a prolonged period<sup>5</sup>. However, in the second case, if the attendance required is only part-time, it is such sum as may be reasonable in the circumstances, and where the extent of the attendance is greater by reason of the beneficiary's exceptionally severe disablement, the maximum is a sum not exceeding one and a half times the lesser amount<sup>6</sup>.

(3) INDUSTRIAL DISEASES

(i) In general

150. The coverage of industrial diseases.

The distinction traditionally drawn in the industrial injuries scheme between an accident and a process means that most diseases will not be covered by that scheme, even where their contraction was caused by the employed earner's work<sup>1</sup>. To fill that gap, separate provisions exist, extending entitlement to disablement benefit to employed earners suffering industrially-linked diseases<sup>2</sup>. This is done by a system of prescription of such diseases, so that a claimant will succeed if, but only if, he contracts a prescribed disease in the appropriate prescribed circumstances<sup>3</sup>. There is no residual category in this jurisdiction allowing a claimant to prove on the evidence that a non-prescribed disease was actually caused by a work activity. The only flexibility in the system lies in the power of the Secretary of State<sup>4</sup> to add to the prescribed list; and while this is done periodically, there can be time delays between concern arising medically over a possible work-related cause for a particular disease and that causal link being sufficiently demonstrated over time to justify adding a new disease to the list. Once it is so added, the effect is only prospective<sup>5</sup>. Moreover, the prescription system also has the effect of affixing specific limitations to entitlement which may mean that, as time and technology move on, the conditions become harder to satisfy, but this is not a reason for giving a more relaxed interpretation to the original wording<sup>6</sup>.

The ordinary accident-based system and the special industrial disease system are mutually exclusive in that a person is not entitled to benefit in respect of a disease as being an injury by accident arising out of and in the course of employment if at the time of the accident the disease is in relation to him a prescribed disease by virtue of the occupation in which he is engaged in that employment<sup>7</sup>.

1 As to the distinction between accident and process see PARA 132 ante.

2 These are contained in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 ss 108-110; and the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967 (as amended).

If the disease is not prescribed, a claimant may try to show that its contraction was indeed an accident, but given the distinction between accident and process (see PARA 132 ante) that may be difficult: see eg Decision R(I)6/91 (passive smoking; any ill health so caused will usually be a process, unless unusually the claimant can point to relatively specific instances of poisoning).

151. Conditions for prescription of a disease.

A disease or injury<sup>1</sup> may be prescribed in relation to any employed earners<sup>2</sup> if the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup> is satisfied that:

- 386 (1) it ought to be treated, having regard to its causes and incidence and any other relevant considerations, as a risk of their occupations and not as a risk common to all persons<sup>4</sup>; and
- 387 (2) it is such that, in the absence of special circumstances, the attribution of particular cases to the nature of the employment can be established or presumed with reasonable certainty<sup>5</sup>.

Advice on the prescription of new diseases is in practice provided by the Industrial Injuries Advisory Council<sup>6</sup>, which is also to be consulted in most cases on draft regulations relating to industrial injury benefit<sup>7</sup>.

1 The prescription system applies to personal injury (other than an injury caused by accident arising out of and in the course of employment) as well as diseases: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 108(1)(b); and PARA 153 post. - 391 (4) miscellaneous conditions<sup>5</sup>.

Each disease or condition is linked to a prescribed occupation which may refer to either a particular type of work or a more general work-related activity<sup>6</sup>. There are specific provisions setting out the occupations for which pneumoconiosis is prescribed<sup>7</sup>.

1 See the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 2(a), Sch 1 Pt I (as amended). 'Prescribed disease' means a disease or injury prescribed under Pt II, and references to a prescribed disease being contracted is deemed to include references to a prescribed injury being received: reg 1(2). There is extensive case law in the form of commissioners' decisions on the detailed interpretation of these complex prescriptions, which lies outside the scope of this work: see Neligan Social Security Case Law: Digest of Commissioners' Decisions Ch 9.

(ii) Entitlement

153. Conditions of benefit in respect of a prescribed disease.

Industrial injuries benefit<sup>1</sup> is payable in respect of a person who has been in employed earner's employment<sup>2</sup> and in respect of a prescribed disease<sup>3</sup> or any prescribed personal injury (other than an injury caused by accident arising out of and in the course of employment<sup>4</sup>) which is due to the nature of that employment and which developed after 4 July 1948<sup>5</sup>.

The benefit and the conditions for its receipt are in general the same as in the case of personal injury by accident arising out of and in the course of employment<sup>6</sup>, but subject to a power to make amendments and modifications where necessary<sup>7</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'industrial injuries benefit' see PARA 127 note 1 ante.

2 For the meaning of 'employed earner's employment' see PARA 128 ante.

3 For the meaning of 'prescribed disease' see PARA 152 note 1 ante.

4 The question whether the disease is due to the nature of the employment is to be decided by an adjudication officer (with appeal to a social security appeal tribunal), not by the medical authorities: Decision R(I)4/91. The person must have been employed in the occupation, which means actually engaged in it; it is not sufficient that he had a contractual obligation to do it if he did not in fact do so to a more than negligible extent: Decisions CI60/49; R(I)4/53; R(I)8/57; R(I)3/78; and R(I)2/79. It is not enough that a substance which features in the prescription was in use in the industrial premises in question (Decision R(I)2/77); or that it entered that workplace from other premises (Decision CI/379/94).

5 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 108(1). Regulations prescribing any disease or injury for those purposes may provide that a person who developed the disease or injury on or at any time after a date specified in the regulations (being a date before the regulations came into force but not before 5 July 1948) is to be treated, subject to any prescribed modifications of s 108, s 109 or s 110, as if the regulations had been in force when he developed the disease or injury: s 108(3). Provision may be made by regulations for determining (1) the time at which a person is to be treated as having developed any prescribed disease or injury; and (2) the circumstances in which such a disease or injury is, where the person in question has previously suffered from it, to be treated as having recrudesced or as having been contracted or received afresh: s 108(4). The power conferred by head (1) supra includes power to provide that the time at which a person is to be treated as having developed a prescribed disease or injury is the date on which he first makes a claim which results in the payment of benefit by virtue of s 108 or s 110 in respect of that disease or injury: s 108(5).

At the date at which this volume states the law, no such regulations had been made. However, by virtue of the Social Security (Consequential Provisions) Act 1992 s 2(2), the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967 (as amended) have effect partly under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 108(1), (3), (4).

7 See ibid s 109(2)-(7). The relevant modifications are contained in the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, regs 11-19 (as amended), Sch 2.

153 Conditions of benefit in respect of a prescribed disease

TEXT AND NOTES--Regulations must provide for applying the provisions of the Social Security Act 1998 Pt I Ch II (ss 8-39: see PARA 356A), subject to any prescribed additions or modifications, in relation to decisions made or falling to be made under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 109: Social Security Act 1998 s 32.

NOTE 7--Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 109(2) amended: Social Security Act 1998 Sch 7 para 65.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(3) INDUSTRIAL DISEASES/(ii) Entitlement/154. Resulting conditions.

154. Resulting conditions.

Where a person is or was in employed earner's<sup>1</sup> employment and a disease is or was prescribed in relation to him in that employment, and he is suffering from a condition which, in his case, has resulted from that disease, he is to be treated as if he were suffering from that disease, whether or not the condition from which he is suffering is itself a prescribed disease<sup>2</sup>.

1 'Employed earner' means employed earner for the purposes of industrial injuries benefit, and 'employed earner's employment' is to be construed accordingly: Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 1(2).

2 Ibid reg 3. For the meaning of 'prescribed disease' see PARA 152 note 1 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(3) INDUSTRIAL DISEASES/(ii) Entitlement/155. Presumption that a disease is due to the nature of employment.

155. Presumption that a disease is due to the nature of employment.

In most cases, where a person has developed a disease which is prescribed<sup>1</sup> in relation to him, then, unless the contrary is proved<sup>2</sup>, that disease must be presumed to be due to the nature of the employed earner's employment<sup>3</sup> if that employment was in any occupation in relation to which that disease is prescribed, and he was so employed on the date on which he is treated as having developed the disease<sup>4</sup> or at any time within one month immediately preceding that date<sup>5</sup>.

This presumption is expressed not to apply to certain prescribed diseases<sup>6</sup>. In relation to five of them, it is replaced by specific presumptions more favourable to the claimant. Thus, in relation to tuberculosis<sup>7</sup> unless the contrary is proved, the disease is presumed to be due to the nature of the employment if the date on which the claimant is treated as having developed it is not less than six weeks after the date on which he was first employed in any occupation in relation to which tuberculosis is prescribed and not more than two years after the date on which he was last so employed<sup>8</sup>. In relation to pneumoconiosis<sup>9</sup>, unless the contrary is proved, the disease is presumed to be due to the nature of the employed earner's employment if he has been employed in one or other of the prescribed occupations<sup>10</sup> for a period or periods amounting in the aggregate to not less than two years which was either employed earner's employment or would have been had it taken place on or after 5 July 1948<sup>11</sup>. In relation to byssinosis<sup>12</sup>, occupational deafness<sup>13</sup>, and chronic bronchitis or emphysema<sup>14</sup>, there is a straightforward presumption, with no time limits, that the disease is due to the nature of the employment<sup>15</sup>.

In the case of the other excluded diseases<sup>16</sup>, however, there is no presumption at all and so a causal link must be proved in order for the claimant to succeed<sup>17</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'prescribed disease' see PARA 152 note 1 ante.

2 The onus is on the adjudication officer to prove on a balance of probabilities that the disease was not in fact due to the nature of the employment: Decision R(I)38/52; and see the application of this principle in Decision R(I)37/52.

3 For the meaning of 'employed earner's employment' for this purpose see PARA 154 note 1 ante.

4 See PARA 156 post.

5 See the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 4(1) (as amended).

155 Presumption that a disease is due to the nature of employment

NOTES 6-15--In relation to primary neoplasm of the epithelial lining of the urinary tract (ie the disease numbered C23 in SI 1985/967 Sch 1 Pt I Col 1), the disease is presumed to be due to the nature of employment if the claimant was employed in one or other of the prescribed professions within one month immediately preceding the date on which he was treated as having the disease: reg 4(7) (added by SI 2003/270).

NOTES 6, 14--SI 1985/967 Sch 1 Pt I col 1 disease numbered D12 amended: SI 2000/1588, SI 2008/1552. The prescribed diseases are also those numbered C1, C2, C4, C5A, C5B, C6, C7, C12, C13, C16, C19, C20, C21, C22, C23, C25, C26, C27, C29, C30 in SI 1985/967 Sch 1 Pt 1 (amended by SI 2003/270).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(3) INDUSTRIAL DISEASES/(ii) Entitlement/156. Date of development and recrudescence.

156. Date of development and recrudescence.

If on a claim for benefit in respect of a prescribed disease<sup>1</sup> a person is found to be or to have been suffering from the disease, or to have died as the result of it, the disease is, for the purposes of such claim, to be treated as having developed on a date, known as 'the date of onset'<sup>2</sup>. This date is determined by reference to the first claim for benefit made in respect of the prescribed disease for which the award of benefit is made and, once determined, is treated as the date of onset for the purposes of any subsequent claim in respect of the same disease, except where in certain cases<sup>3</sup> the claimant, after recovery, suffers a further attack<sup>4</sup>.

Where the claim is for disablement benefit (except in respect of occupational deafness<sup>5</sup>), the date of onset is the day on which the claimant first suffered from the relevant loss of faculty on or after 5 July 1948<sup>6</sup>. Where the claim is for disablement benefit in respect of occupational deafness, the date of onset is the day on which the claimant first suffered from the relevant loss of faculty on or after 3 February 1975; or, if later, 3 September 1979 in the case of a claim made before that date which results in the payment of benefit commencing on that date<sup>7</sup> and, in any other case, the date on which such claim is made as results in the payment of benefit<sup>8</sup>.

Where in respect of a prescribed disease<sup>9</sup> a person's disablement has been assessed at more than 1 per cent and he suffers from another attack of the same disease, then:

- 392 (1) if the further attack commences<sup>10</sup> during a period taken into account by that assessment (the 'relevant period') the disease is treated as a recrudescence of the original attack, unless it is otherwise determined<sup>11</sup>;
- 393 (2) if the further attack commences otherwise than during the relevant period, or it is determined that the disease was in fact contracted afresh, it is to be treated as having been so contracted<sup>12</sup>, in which case the date of onset is to be the date on which the person was first incapable of work or first suffered from the relevant loss of faculty (whichever is the earlier) as a result of the further attack<sup>13</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'prescribed disease' see PARA 152 note 1 ante.

2 Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 5. There are special rules for determining the date of onset if the claimant has been awarded or paid workmen's compensation in respect of the same disease: see reg 8.

3 See ibid reg 7 (as amended); and the text to notes 10-13 infra.

4 See ibid reg 6(1) (as amended). This does not preclude fresh consideration of the question whether the same person is suffering from the same disease on any subsequent claim for an award of benefit: reg 6(1)(a). If, on consideration of a claim, the degree of disablement is assessed at less than 1%, any date of onset determined is to be disregarded for the purposes of any subsequent claim: reg 6(1)(b) (amended by SI 1989/1207).

5 As to occupational deafness see PARA 159 post.

6 Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 6(2)(b).

7 Ibid reg 6(2)(c)(i).

8 Ibid reg 6(2)(c)(ii).

9 This does not apply to cases of pneumoconiosis, byssinosis, diffuse mesothelioma, occupational deafness, occupational asthma, primary carcinoma of the lung, bilateral diffuse pleural thickening or chronic bronchitis or emphysema: ibid reg 7(1) (amended by SI 1989/1207; SI 1993/862; and SI 1993/1985).

10 A further attack is deemed to commence on the date on which the person concerned was first incapable of work or first suffered from the relevant loss of faculty (whichever is the earlier) as a result of that further attack: Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 7(2).

11 Ibid reg 7(1)(a). Where a disease is treated as a recrudescence, any assessment of disablement in respect of recrudescence during a period taken into account by a previous assessment of disablement is by way of review of the assessment relating to the relevant period: see reg 7(4). The procedure for determining whether a further attack is a recrudescence or a fresh attack is contained in the Social Security (Adjudication) Regulations 1995, SI 1995/1801, Pt IV Section A (regs 43-54) (as amended). Regulation 51 provides for a review of the existing assessment if the decision is that there has been a recrudescence.

(iii) Special Provision for Certain Diseases

158. Prescription of pneumoconiosis.

Pneumoconiosis<sup>1</sup> is prescribed in relation to all persons who have been employed<sup>2</sup> on or after 5 July 1948 in employed earner's employment<sup>3</sup> in certain specified employments<sup>4</sup>, and in their case there is a presumption, unless the contrary is proved, that the disease is due to the nature of their employment if they have been so employed for a period or periods amounting in aggregate to not less than two years<sup>5</sup>. It is also prescribed in relation to all other persons who have been employed in any occupation involving exposure to dust, but who have not worked in any of the specified employments at any time, whether in employed earner's employment or not<sup>6</sup>. In their case, however, the presumption does not apply, so they have to prove affirmatively that the disease is due to the nature of their employment.

Where a person is found to be suffering from pneumoconiosis accompanied by tuberculosis, the effects of the tuberculosis are to be treated for these purposes<sup>7</sup> as if they were effects of the pneumoconiosis<sup>8</sup>. This also applies to emphysema and chronic bronchitis, but only in relation to a person who (1) is disabled by pneumoconiosis (alone or accompanied by tuberculosis) to an extent which would, if his physical condition were otherwise normal, be assessed at not less than 50 per cent; and (2) is not entitled to disablement benefit already in respect of the emphysema or chronic bronchitis<sup>9</sup>.

A person found to be suffering from pneumoconiosis is to be treated as suffering from a loss of faculty such that the assessed extent of the resulting disablement amounts to not less than 1 per cent<sup>10</sup>.

As respects pneumoconiosis, regulations<sup>11</sup> may provide:

394 (a) for requiring persons to be medically examined<sup>12</sup> before, or within a prescribed<sup>13</sup> period after, becoming employed in any occupation in relation to which pneumoconiosis is prescribed, and to be medically examined periodically while so employed, and to furnish information required for the purposes of any such examination;

395 (b) for suspending from employment in any such occupation, and in such other occupations as may be prescribed, persons found on such an examination to be suffering from pneumoconiosis or tuberculosis, or to be unsuitable for such employment, having regard to the risk of pneumoconiosis and such other matters affecting their susceptibility to pneumoconiosis as may be prescribed;

396 (c) for the disqualification for the receipt of benefit<sup>14</sup> in respect of pneumoconiosis of any person who fails without good cause to submit himself to any such examination or to furnish information required by the regulations or who engages in any employment from which he has been suspended as mentioned in head (b) above;

397 (d) for requiring employers:

44. (i) to provide facilities for such examinations;

45. (ii) not to employ in any occupation a person who has been suspended as mentioned in head (b) above from employment in that occupation or who has failed without good cause to submit himself to such an examination;

46. (iii) to give to such officer as may be prescribed the prescribed notice of the commencement of any prescribed industry or process;

398 (e) for the recovery on summary conviction of monetary penalties in respect of any contravention of or failure to comply with any such requirement as is mentioned in head (d) above<sup>15</sup>;

399 (f) for such matters as appear to the Secretary of State to be incidental to or consequential on provisions included<sup>16</sup> in the regulations<sup>17</sup>.

159. Prescription of occupational deafness.

Occupational deafness<sup>1</sup> is prescribed in relation to all persons who have been employed<sup>2</sup> in employed earner's employment<sup>3</sup> at any time on or after 5 July 1948, and for a period or periods (whether before or after that date) amounting in aggregate to not less than 10 years, in one or more of the specified occupations<sup>4</sup>. The assessment of the extent of disablement and the rate of disablement benefit in a case of occupational deafness are governed by special rules, depending on the measured hearing loss<sup>5</sup>.

1 'Occupational deafness' means the disease numbered A10 (as amended) in the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 2(a), Sch 1 Pt I (as amended): reg 1(2). The provisions relating to occupational deafness are contained in regs 25-35 (as amended), Sch 3 (as amended).

4 Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 2(c). There is provision for concurrent employment in certain of these occupations to be treated as a single occupation: see reg 2(c). The occupations are set out in Sch 1 Pt I col 2 category A10 (as amended).

5 See ibid reg 34, Sch 3 (as amended). The period to be taken into account by an assessment of the extent of disability in respect of occupational deafness may not commence before 3 February 1975: reg 35.

Cataract is not prescribed unless the person was employed<sup>1</sup> in employed earner's employment<sup>2</sup> in a specified occupation<sup>3</sup> for a period or periods amounting in aggregate to not less than five years<sup>4</sup>.

1 See PARA 153 NOTE 4.

2 For the meaning of 'employed earner's employment' for these purposes see PARA 154 NOTE 1.

160. Special provisions as to title to benefit.

Where a claim is made for disablement pension in respect of pneumoconiosis<sup>1</sup>, byssinosis or diffuse mesothelioma<sup>2</sup>, the threshold of resulting disablement is 1 per cent, not the normal 14 per cent<sup>3</sup>. On such a claim, where the extent of disablement is assessed at 1 per cent or more but less than 20 per cent, the pension is payable at the 20 per cent rate if the resulting degree of disablement is greater than 10 per cent and, if it is not, at one-tenth of the 100 per cent rate, with any fraction of a penny being treated as a penny<sup>4</sup>. There are specific provisions applying to cases of occupational deafness<sup>5</sup> and occupational asthma<sup>6</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'pneumoconiosis' see PARA 158 note 1 ante.

2 'Diffuse mesothelioma' means disease numbered D3 (as amended) in the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 2(a), Sch 1 Pt I (as amended): reg 1(2).

3 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 103(1); and the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 20(1) (substituted by SI 1986/1561). Where a person is found to be suffering from pneumoconiosis the loss of faculty is to be assessed for the resulting disablement as not less than 1%: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 110(3); and PARA 141 ante.

4 Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 20(1A) (added by SI 1986/1561). On a claim for byssinosis the period to be taken into account for the assessment (if not for life) is to be not less than one year: Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 20(3).

5 See ibid reg 25 (time for claiming); reg 26 (claims in respect of occupational deafness); reg 27 (as amended) (further claims); reg 28 (availability of disablement benefit); reg 29 (period to be covered by an assessment); regs 30, 31 (as amended) (unforeseen aggravation); reg 32 (no appeal against an initial provisional assessment); reg 33 (cases in which reassessment is final); and reg 35 (commencement of period of assessment). Several of these regulations refer to cases where claims were made under the provisions allowing a claim for sickness benefit by a person not satisfying the contribution conditions but suffering an industrial accident or disease (originally the Social Security Act 1975 s 50A (repealed); later the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 102 (repealed)). However, this provision was repealed by the Social Security (Incapacity for Work) Act 1994 s 11, Sch 1 para 29, Sch 2 as from 13 April 1995 (on the replacement of sickness benefit), and so the relevant parts of the regulations now only apply to old cases.

6 See the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 36 (time for claiming benefit in respect of occupational asthma). The agents exposure to which constitute occupational asthma are set out in Sch 1 Pt I col 1 category D7.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(4) DISCONTINUED BENEFITS AND OLD CASES/161. In general.

(4) DISCONTINUED BENEFITS AND OLD CASES

161. In general.

The benefits which may be claimed by a person suffering an industrial injury or disease have undergone significant change. Industrial injury benefit used to be payable instead of, and at a higher rate than, ordinary sickness benefit<sup>1</sup>. Disablement benefit, which is more in the nature of a compensation payment than an income substitute, has also undergone major changes. The lump sum disablement gratuity (payable where the disability was assessed at less than 20 per cent) was abolished in 1986<sup>2</sup>, and various supplements have been discontinued, leaving only the basic disablement pension and the allowances for constant attendance and exceptionally severe disablement<sup>3</sup>. The discontinued supplements are considered in outline only as they now solely apply to a diminishing number of claimants who were already in receipt of them.

In addition, the legislation has had to cater for claims which arose in relation to employment, accidents and diseases pre-dating the inception of the modern social security system in 1948<sup>4</sup>. This now only concerns a small and rapidly diminishing number of claimants, and is therefore considered in outline only.

1 See PARA 126 ante.

2 This now only applies to a claim for disablement benefit made before 1 October 1986: see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 106, Sch 7 Pt II para 9.

3 As to disablement pension see PARA 141 et seq ante. As to constant attendance allowance see PARAS 147-148 ante; and as to severe disablement allowance see PARA 149 ante.

4 This used to be contained in the Industrial Injuries and Diseases (Old Cases) Act 1975 (repealed), and is now consolidated in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 111, Sch 8 (as amended); see PARA 167 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(4) DISCONTINUED BENEFITS AND OLD CASES/162. Unemployability supplement.

162. Unemployability supplement.

Unemployability supplement is payable to a beneficiary<sup>1</sup> who is incapable of work and likely to remain so permanently as a result of the relevant loss of faculty<sup>2</sup>.

This only applies in relation to a person who was a beneficiary in receipt of such supplement immediately before 6 April 1987<sup>3</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'beneficiary' see PARA 21 note 2 ante.

2 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 106, Sch 7 Pt I (as amended). As to the rate and duration of the supplement see Sch 7 para 2. There are increases in the supplement available in respect of beneficiary's age (see Sch 7 para 3 (as amended)), in respect of the beneficiary's dependent children (see Sch 7 para 4 (as amended), Sch 7 para 5, 7, 8) and in respect of the beneficiary's adult dependants (see Sch 7 paras 6-8). 163. Increases of disablement pension during hospital treatment.

Where a person is awarded disablement benefit<sup>1</sup>, but the extent of his disablement is assessed for the period taken into account by the assessment at less than 100 per cent, it is treated as assessed at 100 per cent for any part of that period (whether before or after the making of the assessment or the award of benefit) during which he receives, as an in-patient in a hospital or similar institution, medical treatment<sup>2</sup> for the relevant injury or loss of faculty<sup>3</sup>.

This only applies to medical treatment which commenced before 6 April 1987<sup>4</sup>.

2 For the meaning of 'medical treatment' see PARA 149 note 1 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(4) DISCONTINUED BENEFITS AND OLD CASES/164. Reduced earnings allowance.

164. Reduced earnings allowance.

Reduced earnings allowance<sup>1</sup> is payable, where a person is entitled to a disablement pension<sup>2</sup> (on a disablement assessed at more than 1 per cent) and, while capable of some work, is incapable permanently of following his usual occupation or one of an equivalent standard, in order to compensate for the lost earnings<sup>3</sup>.

This only applies where the loss of faculty resulted from an accident<sup>4</sup> happening before 1 October 1990<sup>5</sup>.

1 Reduced earnings allowance was previously known as a special hardship allowance but was renamed a reduced earnings allowance in 1986: see the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Reduced Earnings Allowance and Transitional) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/415 (as amended).

2 As to disablement pension see PARA 141 et seq ante.

3 See the Social Security and Benefits Act 1992 s 106, Sch 7 Pt IV paras 11, 12. Due largely to the difficult nature of the comparison that had to be made between pre-accident earnings and post-accident earning capacity, this allowance produced a large volume of commissioners' decisions: see Neligan Social Security Case Law: Digest of Commissioners' Decisions Ch 11.

4 This was extended to include the contraction of a prescribed disease by the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Prescribed Diseases) Regulations 1985, SI 1985/967, reg 11, Sch 2.

5 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 7 para 11(1). If an existing beneficiary ceases to be entitled to it for one or more days the entitlement lapses altogether: see Sch 7 para 11(2). For the meaning of 'beneficiary' see PARA 21 note 2 ante.

Such a person is then entitled to retirement allowance for life<sup>5</sup>.

This only applies where the loss of faculty resulted from an accident happening before 1 October 1990<sup>6</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'pensionable age' see PARA 562 post.

2 For the meaning of 'employment' see PARA 32 note 1 ante. As to regular employment see the Social Security (Industrial Injuries) (Regular Employment) Regulations 1990, SI 1990/256 (as amended); and Decision R(I)2/93.

Although the workmen's compensation scheme was superseded by the modern social security system as from 5 July 1948, there are still what are in effect transitional provisions in force in relation to accidents or diseases occurring in relation to employment before that date. This is done in two ways. First, the repealed provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Acts continue to apply to cases where a right to compensation arose in respect of employment before 5 July 1948<sup>1</sup>. Secondly, the powers have been exercised by the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> to provide state-financed schemes<sup>3</sup> to (1) allow supplementation of the pre-1948 rights to bring them more into line with the current rights<sup>4</sup>; and (2) establish new rights to benefit in relation to pneumoconiosis, byssinosis and certain other (primarily carcinogenic) illnesses attributable to employment before the relevant date and in respect of which the claimant would not otherwise have had a right to benefit<sup>5</sup>.

1 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 111, Sch 8 para 1.

2 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

3 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 8 paras 2-6 (as amended). As to the provision of benefit see Sch 8 para 7. Interpretation provisions are set out in Sch 8 para 8.

169. Lump sum payments to dependants of deceased disabled persons.

If, on a claim by the dependant<sup>1</sup> of a person who, immediately before he died, was disabled by pneumoconiosis, byssinosis, diffuse mesothelioma or other specified disease<sup>2</sup>, the Secretary of State<sup>3</sup> is satisfied that the appropriate conditions are fulfilled<sup>4</sup>, he is to make to that dependant<sup>5</sup> a payment of a prescribed amount<sup>6</sup>. For these purposes, the following are dependants of such a person:

- 400 (1) if he left a spouse who was residing with him or was receiving or entitled to receive from him periodical payments for her maintenance, that spouse<sup>7</sup>;
- 401 (2) if head (1) above does not apply but he left a child<sup>8</sup> or children who satisfies or satisfy certain requirements<sup>9</sup>, that child or those children<sup>10</sup>;
- 402 (3) if neither head (1) or head (2) above applies but he left a reputed spouse who was residing with him, that reputed spouse<sup>11</sup>;
- 403 (4) if none of heads (1) to (3) above applies, any relative<sup>12</sup> or relatives of his who satisfies or satisfy certain requirements<sup>13</sup> and who was or were, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, wholly or mainly dependent on him at the date of his death<sup>14</sup>.

The conditions of entitlement are (a) that no payment under the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979 has been made to the deceased in respect of the disease<sup>15</sup>; (b) that death benefit<sup>16</sup> is payable to or in respect of the dependant by reason of the deceased's death as a result of the disease, or that disablement benefit was payable to the deceased in respect of the disease immediately before he died or would have been payable to him but for certain circumstances<sup>17</sup>; (c) that every relevant employer<sup>18</sup> of the deceased has ceased to carry on business<sup>19</sup>; and (d) that neither he nor his personal representatives nor any relative of his has brought any action<sup>20</sup>, or compromised any claim, for damages in respect of the disablement or death<sup>21</sup>.

Any claim by a disabled person or the dependant of a deceased disabled person for a lump sum payment is to be made in the manner prescribed by regulations<sup>1</sup> within the period of 12 months beginning with the relevant date<sup>2</sup> or within such further period as the Secretary of State may allow<sup>3</sup>. Before determining the claim the Secretary of State may, if he thinks fit, appoint a person to hold an inquiry into any question arising on the claim, or any matter arising in connection with it, and to report on the question or those matters to him<sup>4</sup>. Appeal on a question of law lies from any determination of the Secretary of State of such a claim<sup>5</sup>.

171. Reconsideration of determinations.

On application or of his own motion<sup>1</sup> the Secretary of State<sup>2</sup> may reconsider a determination that a payment should not be made, on the ground (1) that there has been a material change of circumstances since the determination was made<sup>3</sup>; or (2) that it was made in ignorance of, or based on a mistake as to, some material fact<sup>4</sup>. If, whether fraudulently or otherwise, any person misrepresents or fails to disclose any material fact, and in consequence of the misrepresentation or failure a payment is made, the person to whom the payment was made is liable to repay the amount of the payment to the Secretary of State<sup>1</sup> unless he can show that the misrepresentation or failure occurred without his connivance or consent<sup>2</sup>.

Any person who, for the purpose of obtaining a payment, whether for himself or for some other person, knowingly makes a false statement or representation, or produces or furnishes or causes or knowingly allows to be produced or furnished any document or information which he knows to be false in a material particular, is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

2 Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979 s 5(4). Except as provided under s 5(4), no payment is recoverable by virtue of reconsideration of a determination under s 5: s 5(5). Any sums repaid to the Secretary of State by virtue of s 5(4) are to be paid into the Consolidated Fund: s 9(2). ### 168-172 Payments under the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979

As to lump sum payments to sufferers of mesothelioma who are not eligible under the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979, see the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 Pt 4 (ss 46-54); and PARA 172A.

172 Misrepresentation

NOTE 3--1991 Act s 18, consolidated in the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 s 128, repealed: Criminal Justice Act 2003 Sch 37 Pt 7. See now s 162.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/6. INDUSTRIAL INJURIES BENEFIT/(5) PAYMENTS UNDER THE PNEUMOCONIOSIS ETC (WORKERS' COMPENSATION) ACT 1979/172A. Payments under the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008.

172A. Payments under the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008.

1. Lump sum payments

A claim for a payment under the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 Pt 4 (ss 46-54) may be made by a person with diffuse mesothelioma, or a dependant of a person who, immediately before death, had diffuse mesothelioma: s 46(1). For these purposes 'dependant' has the meaning given by the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979 s 3 (see PARA 169); and 'diffuse mesothelioma' has the same meaning as in that Act (see PARA 168): Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 46(4). The Secretary of State must make the payment to the claimant if satisfied that the conditions of entitlement in s 47 are fulfilled: s 46(2). Regulations may prescribe the amount of any payment and may prescribe different amounts for different cases or classes of cases or for different circumstances: s 46(3). As to such regulations, see the Mesothelioma Lump Sum Payments (Conditions and Amounts) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/1963, reg 5, Schedule (Schedule amended by SI 2010/1105), which set out the amounts payable based on the age of the person with mesothelioma. Where, because of the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979 s 3(1)(b) or (d) (children, siblings etc) (see PARA 169), a payment may be claimed by two or more persons, the payment is to be made to one of them or divided between some or all of them as the Secretary of State thinks fit: Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 46(5).

In the case of a person who has diffuse mesothelioma, the conditions of entitlement are (1) that no payment within s 47(3) has been made in consequence of the disease; (2) that the person is not eligible for any payment in consequence of the disease that is of a description prescribed by regulations (see SI 2008/1963 reg 2(2)); (3) that such requirement, if any, as may be prescribed by regulations as to the person's connection with the United Kingdom is satisfied (see SI 2008/1963 reg 4): Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 47(1). In the case of a dependant of a person who, immediately before death, had diffuse mesothelioma, the conditions of entitlement are (a) that no payment within s 47(3) has been made in consequence of the disease to that or another dependant or to the deceased or the deceased's personal representatives; (b) that the dependant is not, and the deceased was not, eligible for any payment in consequence of the disease that is of a description prescribed by regulations (see SI 2008/1963 reg 2(2)); (c) that such requirement, if any, as may be prescribed by regulations as to the deceased's connection with the United Kingdom is satisfied (see SI 2008/1963 reg 4): Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 47(2). The payments referred to in heads (1) and (a) are (i) a payment under Pt 4 or under corresponding provision made for Northern Ireland; (ii) a payment under the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979 or under corresponding provision made for Northern Ireland; (iii) an extra-statutory payment; (iv) damages or a payment in settlement of a claim for damages; (v) a payment of a description prescribed by regulations (see SI 2008/1963 reg 2(1) (amended by SI 2008/2365)): Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 47(3). A payment is to be disregarded for the purposes of heads (1) and (a) if it has been, or is liable to be repaid under s 49, the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979 s 5 or corresponding provision made for Northern Ireland, under the terms of an extra-statutory payment, or in circumstances prescribed for these purposes by regulations: s 47(4). 'Extra-statutory payment' has the meaning given by the Social Security (Recovery of Benefits) Act 1997 s 1A(5)(d): Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 47(5). A payment made in error and which in consequence is liable to be repaid in accordance with statutory provision or rule of law, is to be disregarded for the purposes of heads (1) and (a): SI 2008/1963 reg 3.

2. Determination of claims

A claim under the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 46 (see PARA 172A.1) must be made in the manner and within the period prescribed by regulations and such regulations may prescribe different periods for different cases or classes of cases or for different circumstances: s 48(1), (2). Regulations may in particular provide that no claim may be made in cases where the prescribed period expired before the commencement of s 46 (ie before 1 October 2008: see SI 2008/1476) (or would have done but for any discretion to extend it): Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 48(3). As to such regulations see the Mesothelioma Lump Sum Payments (Claims and Reconsiderations) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/1595, regs 2, 3 which set out the form and the time limits for claims. The Secretary of State may, before determining any claim under the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 46, appoint a person to inquire into any question arising on the claim, or any matters arising in connection with it, and to report on the question, or on those matters, to the Secretary of State: s 48(4).

3. Reconsideration

Subject as follows, the Secretary of State (1) may reconsider a determination that a payment not be made under the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 Pt 4 (ss 46-54), on the ground that there has been a material change of circumstances since the determination was made; and (2) may reconsider a determination either that a payment ought to be made or that a payment ought not to be made under Pt 4, on the ground that the determination was made in ignorance of, or was based on a mistake as to, a material fact: s 49(1). Regulations must prescribe the manner in which and the period within which an application may be made to the Secretary of State for reconsideration of a determination, or the Secretary of State may institute such a reconsideration without an application: s 49(2). As to such regulations, see the Mesothelioma Lump Sum Payments (Claims and Reconsiderations) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/1595, reg 4. The Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 48(4) (see PARA 172A.2) applies in relation to any reconsideration of a determination as it applies in relation to the determination of a claim: s 49(3). If, whether fraudulently or otherwise, any person misrepresents or fails to disclose any material fact, and in consequence of the misrepresentation or failure, a payment is made under Pt 4, the person to whom the payment was made is liable to repay the amount of that payment to the Secretary of State unless that person can show that the misrepresentation or failure occurred without that person's connivance or consent: s 49(4), (5). Otherwise, no payment under Pt 4 is recoverable by virtue of a reconsideration of a determination: s 49(6). Any sums repaid to the Secretary of State by virtue of s 49(5) are to be paid into the Consolidated Fund: s 49(7).

4. Appeals

A person who has made a claim under the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 46 (see PARA 172A.1) may appeal against a determination made by the Secretary of State on the claim, or on reconsideration under s 49 (see PARA 172A.2) of a determination made on the claim: s 50(1). Subject to regulations under s 50(4)(c) (see head (3)), the Secretary of State must refer any appeal to the First-tier Tribunal constituted under the Social Security Act 1998 Pt 1 Ch 1 (ss 1-7): Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 50(2) (amended by SI 2008/2833). On an appeal the tribunal may substitute for the determination concerned any determination which could have been made in accordance with the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 Pt 4 (ss 46-54): s 50(3). Regulations may make provision (1) as to the manner in which, and the time within which, an appeal may be made; and (2) for the purpose of enabling an appeal against a determination to be treated as an application for reconsideration under s 49 of the determination made on the claim: s 50(4) (amended by SI 2008/2833). As to such regulations, see the Mesothelioma Lump Sum Payments (Claims and Reconsiderations) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/1595, regs 5, 6 (reg 5 amended, reg 6 added by SI 2008/2706).

5. Minors and people who lack capacity

Where a payment under the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 Pt 4 (ss 46-54) falls to be made to a person aged under 18, or a person who lacks capacity within the meaning of the Mental Capacity Act 2005 in relation to financial matters, subject to the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 s 46(5) (see PARA 172A.1), the payment is to be made for that person's benefit by paying it to such trustees as the Secretary of State may appoint: s 52(1), (2). The trustees are to hold the payment on such trusts or, in Scotland, for such purposes and on such conditions as the Secretary of State may declare: s 52(3).

As to lump sum payments to sufferers of mesothelioma who are not eligible under the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979, see the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 Pt 4 (ss 46-54); and PARA 172A.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(1) IN GENERAL/173. The benefits.

7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS

(1) IN GENERAL

173. The benefits.

Schemes are prescribed<sup>1</sup> for what are referred to in the legislation<sup>2</sup> as 'income-related benefits', namely:

- 404 (1) income support<sup>3</sup>;
- 405 (2) family credit<sup>4</sup>;
- 406 (3) disability working allowance<sup>5</sup>;
- 407 (4) housing benefit<sup>6</sup>; and
- 408 (5) council tax benefit<sup>7</sup>.

The Secretary of State must make copies of schemes relating to income support, family credit and disability working allowance available for public inspection at local offices of the Department of Social Security at all reasonable hours without payment<sup>8</sup>.

Income-based jobseeker's allowance is the appropriate benefit, once contribution-based jobseeker's allowance has expired, for those who are unemployed but are required to remain available for work as a condition of entitlement<sup>9</sup>. Means-tested income support remains the benefit for those of no means, or restricted means, who are not required to be available for work<sup>10</sup>. Family credit may be claimed by those with family responsibilities who are in work but on incomes lower than the prescribed thresholds<sup>11</sup>. Disability working allowance enables a disabled person to take up work and yet remain eligible for an element of benefit if his income is lower than the prescribed thresholds<sup>12</sup>.

In addition, there is the extra-statutory Earnings Top-Up Scheme 1996, which has been introduced on an experimental and temporary basis and applies only in certain areas<sup>13</sup>. The purpose of the scheme is to provide a supplement to single persons or couples on low wages; and its main innovation is that it applies to people without responsibilities for children or young persons<sup>14</sup>.

1 'Prescribed' means specified in or determined in accordance with regulations: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 137(1). Under s 137(2) (amended by the Jobseekers Act 1995 s 41(4), Sch 2 para 35), regulations may make provision:

- 32 (6) as to circumstances in which a person is or is not to be treated as receiving relevant education;
- 33 (7) specifying the descriptions of pension increases under war pension schemes or industrial injuries schemes that are analogous to the benefits mentioned in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 129(2)(b)(i)-(iii) (as amended) (see PARA 221 post);
- 34 (8) as to circumstances in which a person is or is not to be treated as occupying a dwelling as his home;
- 35 (9) for treating any person who is liable to make payments in respect of a dwelling as if he were not so liable;
- 36 (10) for treating any person who is not liable to make payments in respect of a dwelling as if he were so liable;
- 37 (11) for treating as included in a dwelling any land used for the purposes of the dwelling;
- 38 (12) as to circumstances in which persons are to be treated as being or not being members of the same household;
- 39 (13) as to circumstances in which one person is to be treated as responsible or not responsible for another.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(1) IN GENERAL/174. Income, capital and the applicable amount.

174. Income, capital and the applicable amount.

A person is not entitled to an income-related benefit<sup>1</sup> if his capital or a prescribed part of it exceeds the prescribed amount<sup>2</sup>. Further, the income of the claimant has to be set off against the applicable amount for the benefit in question for that claimant, in order to ascertain the benefit payable<sup>3</sup>.

Income and capital must be calculated or estimated in such manner as may be prescribed<sup>4</sup>.

Where the amount of any income-related benefit would be less than a prescribed amount, it is not payable except in prescribed circumstances<sup>5</sup>.

1 For the meaning of 'income-related benefit' see PARA 173 ante.

2 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 134(1).

3 The applicable amount, in relation to any income-related benefit, is such amount or the aggregate of such amounts as may be prescribed in relation to that benefit: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 135(1). The power to prescribe applicable amounts includes power to prescribe nil as an applicable amount: s 135(2).

In prescribing, for the purposes of income support, amounts under s 135(1) in respect of accommodation in any area for qualifying persons in cases where prescribed conditions are fulfilled, the Secretary of State must take into account information provided by local authorities or other prescribed bodies or persons with respect to the amounts which they have agreed to pay for the provision of accommodation in relevant premises in that area: s 135(3). 'Accommodation' includes any board or care: s 135(4). 'Qualifying person' means any person who falls within the National Assistance Act 1948 s 26A(1) (as added) or who would fall within that provision apart from any regulations made under s 26A(3) (as added) (see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 1034): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 135(4). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante. 'Local authority', in relation to areas in England and Wales, has the same meaning as it has in the National Assistance Act 1948 Pt III (ss 21-36) (as amended) (see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 1005): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 135(4). 'Relevant premises', in relation to areas in England and Wales, has the meaning given by the National Assistance Act 1948 s 26A(2) (as added) (see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 1034): Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 135(4). As to the applicable amount in relation to income support see PARA 184 post.

In relation to income support, housing benefit and council tax benefit, the applicable amount for a severely disabled person is to include an amount in respect of his being a severely disabled person: s 135(5) (amended by the Local Government Finance Act 1992 s 103, Sch 9 para 8). Regulations may specify circumstances in which persons are to be treated as being or not being severely disabled: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 135(6).

4 Ibid s 136(3). As to the calculation of income see PARA 187 et seq, 208 et seq, 224 et seq post. As to the calculation of capital see PARA 194 et seq, 213 et seq, 226 post.

Regulations may prescribe that capital not exceeding the amount prescribed under s 134(1) (see the text and note 2 supra) but exceeding a prescribed lower amount is to be treated, to a prescribed extent, as if it were income of a prescribed amount: s 136(2). See PARAS 194, 213 post.

A person's income in respect of a week must be calculated in accordance with prescribed rules; and the rules may provide for the calculation to be made by reference to an average over a period, which need not include the week concerned: s 136(4).

Circumstances may be prescribed in which (1) a person is treated as possessing capital or income which he does not possess ('notional' capital or income); (2) capital or income that a person does possess is to be disregarded; (3) income is to be treated as capital; and (4) capital is to be treated as income: s 136(5).

Except in prescribed circumstances (1) the entitlement of one member of a family<sup>1</sup> to any one income-related benefit<sup>2</sup> excludes entitlement to that benefit for any other member for the same period<sup>3</sup>; and (2) where a person claiming an income-related benefit is a member of a family, the income and capital of any member of that family is to be treated as the income and capital of that person<sup>4</sup>.

1 'Family' means (1) a married or unmarried couple; (2) a married or unmarried couple and a member of the same household for whom one of them is or both are responsible and who is a child or a person of a prescribed description; (3) except in prescribed circumstances, a person who is not a member of a married or unmarried couple and a member of the same household for whom that person is responsible and who is a child or a person of a prescribed description: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 137(1). 'Married couple' means a man and woman who are married to each other and are members of the same household: s 137(1). 'Unmarried couple' means a man and a woman who are not married to each other but are living together as husband and wife (as to which see PARA 83 ante) otherwise than in prescribed circumstances: s 137(1). 'Household' is not defined in the Act, but it must be given its normal everyday meaning: Decision R(SB)4/83. In the case of a child, there must be an actual tie (as opposed to a merely formal one) to that particular household, but that tie may subsist through temporary absence: England v Secretary of State for Social Services [1982] 3 FLR 222; Decisions R(FIS)4/83; R(SB)28/84; R(SB)14/87. There may be more than one household in one premises (Decision R(SB)13/82); and this may be so even if the persons concerned remain married (Decision CIS/72/1994). 'Child' means a person under the age of 16: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 137(1). Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(i) Entitlement/178. Trade disputes.

178. Trade disputes.

There are limitations on the entitlement to income support of a person<sup>1</sup> who is prevented from being entitled to a jobseeker's allowance<sup>2</sup> by virtue of a trade dispute at his place of work<sup>3</sup> (or would be so prevented if otherwise entitled to that benefit), except during any period shown by the person to be a period of incapacity for work or to be within the maternity period<sup>4</sup>. The limitations are that:

- 437 (1) the person is treated as still engaged in remunerative work (and so not entitled to income support) for the first seven days of the stoppage of work or, if no stoppage occurs, of his withdrawal of labour<sup>5</sup>;
- 438 (2) for the purpose of calculating income support, the applicable amount is reduced or disregarded<sup>6</sup>;
- 439 (3) in calculating the entitlement to income support of the person or a member of his family, certain sums are to be treated as his income and are not to be disregarded<sup>7</sup>;
- 440 (4) any payment by way of income support for the period of the trade dispute or any part of it which apart from this provision would be made to the person, or to a person whose applicable amount is aggregated with his, is not made if the weekly rate of payment is equal to or less than the relevant sum<sup>8</sup> and, if it is more than the relevant sum, is made at a weekly rate equal to the difference<sup>9</sup>.

If a person returns to work<sup>10</sup> with the same employer after a period during which these provisions applied to him, the provisions cease to apply to him at the commencement of the day on which he returns to work; and he is eligible for income support for a period of 15 days from that day, although any benefit actually paid is recoverable from future earnings<sup>11</sup>.

1 le a person other than a child or a person of a prescribed description: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 126(1). For the meaning of 'child' see PARA 175 note 1 ante. As to the meaning of 'person of a prescribed description' see PARA 182 note 1 post.

'The maternity period' means the period commencing at the beginning of the sixth week before the expected week of confinement and ending at the end of the seventh week after the week in which confinement takes place: Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 126(2). 6 See the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 126(3). As to the applicable amount see PARA 184 post.

In the case of a person who is not a member of a family, the applicable amount is disregarded: s 126(3)(a). In the case of a person who is a member of a family but is not a member of a married or unmarried couple, the portion of the applicable amount which is included in respect of him is disregarded: s 126(3)(b). In the case of a member of a married or unmarried couple (1) if the applicable amount consists only of an amount in respect of them, it is reduced to one-half; and (2) if it includes other amounts, the portion of it which is included in respect of them is reduced to one-half and any further portion of it which is included in respect of the member of the couple to whom these provisions apply is disregarded: see s 126(3)(c), (4). Where both the members of a married or unmarried couple are involved in the trade dispute (a) if neither of them is responsible for a child or a person of a prescribed description who is a member of the same household, the applicable amount is disregarded; and (b) in any other case, the portion of the applicable amount which is included in respect of them and any further portion of it which is included in respect of either of them is disregarded: s 126(3)(d). For the meaning of 'family', 'married couple', 'unmarried couple' and 'child', and as to the meaning of 'household', see PARA 175 note 1 ante.

7 See ibid s 126(5)(a), (6). The sums treated as income and which are not to be disregarded are: (1) any payment which the person or a member of his family receives or is entitled to obtain by reason of the person involved in the trade dispute being without employment for that period; and (2) any income tax rebate which becomes or would on an application duly made become available to him in that period: see s 126(5)(a)(i), (ii).

8 As to the 'relevant sum', which was introduced to represent notional strike pay from the person's union, see ibid s 126(7) (amended by the Social Security Benefits Up-rating Order 1997, SI 1997/543, art 20). This sum is deductible whether or not a trade union actually pays some or all of it to the claimant; but if a union actually does make such a payment (up to the level of the relevant sum), that is to be disregarded when calculating the claimant's earnings: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 40(2), Sch 9 para 34.

UPDATE

176-201 Income Support

As from 6 April 2005, the child-related elements of income support are abolished and replaced: see Tax Credits Act 2002 s 1, SI 2003/962; and PARA 227A.1.

For the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, for any period commencing with or falling after 2 March 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in either the Full-time Education and Training Option, the Voluntary Sector Option or the Environment Task Force Option, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). of training allowance made in respect of such training: SI 1998/217 art 2(1), (3), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). See further PARA 31-46.

'The intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged under 25 years immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work: SI 1999/779 reg 1(2).

Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

Also, for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 13 September 2001 a person is participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents within the self-employment route and that person receives, or is eligible to receive, either a top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, any such payments made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of those facilities are to be treated (1) for the purposes of reg 6(1)(d) as a training allowance; and (2) for all other purposes as a training premium: New Deal (Lone Parents) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/2915, art 2(1), (2), Schedule. Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(ii) Defining the Conditions of Entitlement/179. The meaning of remunerative work.

(ii) Defining the Conditions of Entitlement

179. The meaning of remunerative work.

Remunerative work<sup>1</sup> is work in which a person is engaged or, where his hours of work fluctuate<sup>2</sup>, he is engaged on average for not less than 16 hours a week<sup>3</sup>, being work for which payment is made or which is done in expectation of payment<sup>4</sup>. In the case of a partner of the claimant, the figure is raised to 24 hours a week<sup>5</sup>.

A person is to be treated as engaged in remunerative work during any period in which he is absent from work either without good cause or by reason of a recognised, customary or other holiday<sup>6</sup>; but not so treated if on maternity leave or absent from work because that person is ill<sup>7</sup>.

Where a person leaves remunerative work with a payment in lieu of remuneration or notice or in respect of holiday pay or compensation<sup>8</sup>, that person is to be treated as engaged in remunerative work for the period for which those earnings are to be taken into account as income or capital<sup>9</sup>.

1 It is a condition of entitlement that neither the claimant nor a partner be in remunerative work: see PARA 176 ante. For the meaning of 'partner' see PARA 182 note 5 post.

2 The number of hours for which a person is engaged in work is to be determined (1) where there is no recognisable cycle, by reference to the number of hours (or, where they are likely to fluctuate, the average of the hours) which he is expected to work in a week; (2) where the number of hours fluctuates, by reference to the average of hours worked over either a recognisable cycle or, in any other case, over the five weeks immediately before the date of claim or review, or such other length of time as may, in the particular case, enable the person's average hours of work to be determined more accurately: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 5(2). Where a person's recognisable cycle of work at a school, other educational establishment or other place of employment is one year and includes periods of school holidays or similar vacations during which he does not work, those periods and any other periods not forming part of such holidays or vacations during which he is not required to work are to be disregarded in establishing the average hours for which he is engaged in work: reg 5(3B) (added by SI 1995/516). The Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 5(2) only applies in the particular circumstances which it is expressed to cover: Decision R(IS)8/95.

3 In determining the number of hours in which a person is engaged or treated as engaged in remunerative work (1) no account is to be taken of any hours spent in an employment or scheme to which the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 6 (as amended: see PARA 180 post) applies: reg 5(6) (added by SI 1988/1445; and amended by SI 1993/2119); (2) the number of hours is to include any time allowed by the employer for a meal or for refreshment, but only where the person is, or expects to be, paid earnings in respect of that time: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 5(7) (added by SI 1990/547).

Most of the case law generally on the hours to be counted has arisen in the context of the equivalent provision on family credit (where the claimant must be in remunerative work for not less than 16 hours per week): see PARA 206 post. As to the position where a claimant works for his own small company, of which he is also a director, see Decision R(IS)5/95; and as to a share fisherman who is engaged in work for the whole time the boat is at sea see Decision R(IS)12/95. Hours simply on call may not count, depending on the facts: Decision CIS815/1992.

4 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 5(1) (amended by SI 1991/1559). 'Expectation' means more than hope, desire or intention: Decision R(IS)1/93 (unsuccessful writer held not to be working in expectation of payment). In the case of a business, preparatory work in setting it up, or carrying on with it for some other purpose (eg to sell it as a going concern) may not come within the definition: Smith v Chief Adjudication Officer (11 October 1994, unreported), CA; Chief Adjudication Officer v Ellis (15 February 1995, unreported), CA. However, once a business is operating, the fact that it is unprofitable does not necessarily mean that the work is not in expectation of payment: Perrot v Supplementary Benefits Commission [1980] 3 All ER 110, [1980] 1 WLR 1153, CA (decided under previous legislation).

5 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 5(1A) (added by SI 1996/1944).

6 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 5(3). The inclusion of the phrase 'or other' means that the origin of the holiday is unimportant: see Decision R(SB)7/84. This provision treats a person as in remunerative work during holidays, but is irrelevant to the separate question of the calculation of that person's average weekly hours: see Decision R(IS)15/94. There cannot be a holiday within this provision if the employment has in fact been terminated: Decision R(U)2/87 (decided under previous equivalent provisions on unemployment benefit). As to the position where a person leaves with holiday pay see the text and notes 8-9 infra.

7 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 5(3A) (added by SI 1993/2119).

8 ie a payment of earnings to which the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 35(1)(b)-(d) (as amended) or reg 35(1)(i) (as added) applies (see PARA 188 post).

9 See ibid reg 5(5) (amended by SI 1988/2022; SI 1989/1323).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(ii) Defining the Conditions of Entitlement/182. The treatment of families.

182. The treatment of families.

The general rules relating to families and income-related benefits apply for the purposes of income support<sup>1</sup>.

A person is to be treated as responsible for a child or young person for whom he is receiving child benefit<sup>2</sup>. In general, only one person may be considered responsible in any benefit week<sup>3</sup>. If no child benefit is being received by anyone, the person to be treated as responsible is the person (if any) who has made the only claim for child benefit, or otherwise the person with whom the child or young person usually lives<sup>4</sup>.

The persons to be treated as members of the same household are the claimant, any partner<sup>5</sup>, any child or young person for whom the claimant or the partner are treated as responsible, and any child of that child or young person; this is so notwithstanding that any of them is temporarily living away from the other members of the family<sup>6</sup>.

1 As to the general rules relating to families and income-related benefits see PARA 175 ante. For the meaning of 'family' see PARA 175 note 1 ante. For the purposes of that definition in relation to income support, a person of a prescribed description is a person (a 'young person') aged 16 or over but under 19 who is treated as a child for the purposes of the Child Benefit Act 1975 s 2 (repealed: see now the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 142; and PARA 239 post), and is not receiving advanced education nor is or would (apart from the provision against dual entitlement of members of a family) be entitled to income support in his own right: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 14 (amended by SI 1988/1445; SI 1990/547). For the meaning of 'receiving advanced education' see PARA 176 note 6 ante. As to a young person's entitlement to income support see PARA 184 note 4 post.

2 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 15(1) (substituted by SI 1993/2119). As to child benefit see PARA 237 et seq post. Where a child is himself in receipt of child benefit in respect of another child, the person responsible for the first child is also to be treated as responsible for the second child: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 15(1A) (added by SI 1993/2119).

3 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 15(4). There is provision, however, for a child or young person to be treated as the responsibility of a claimant for any part of a benefit week when he is treated as being a member of the claimant's household: see reg 15(3). 'Benefit week' has the meaning prescribed in the Social Security (Claims and Payments) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1968, Sch 7 para 4 (as amended) (ie if the beneficiary is entitled to incapacity benefit (see PARA 59 et seq ante), severe disablement allowance (see PARA 92 et seq ante), retirement pension (see PARA 561 et seq post) or widow's benefit (see PARA 80 et seq ante) or would be so entitled but for failure to satisfy the contribution conditions or had not exhausted his entitlement, the week corresponding to the week in respect of which that benefit is paid, and in any other case a period of seven days beginning or ending with such day as the Secretary of State may direct; and post) and for the purposes of calculating any payment of income and of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 74(2)(a), benefit week' also means the period of seven days ending on the day before the first day of the first benefit week following the date of claim or the last day on which income support is paid if it is in payment for less than a week: reg 2(1) (definition amended by SI 1988/1445).

4 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 15(2) (substituted by SI 1993/2119).

5 'Partner' means (1) where the claimant is a member of a married or unmarried couple, the other member of that couple; (2) where the claimant is married polygamously to two or more members of his household, any such member: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 2(1). For the meaning of 'married couple' and 'unmarried couple' see PARA 175 note 1 ante.

6 Ibid reg 16(1) (amended by SI 1988/663; SI 1993/2119). However, this provision does not apply to a person living away from the other members of his family where (1) that person does not intend to resume living with them; or (2) his absence is likely to exceed 52 weeks, unless there are exceptional circumstances (especially where he has no control over the length of the absence, eg hospitalisation) and the absence is unlikely to be substantially more than 52 weeks: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 16(2) (substituted by SI 1993/2119). Nor does it apply to any member of a couple or a polygamous marriage where (a) one, both or all are patients detained in a special hospital; (b) one, both or all are in custody or on temporary release; (c) the claimant is abroad and does not satisfy the conditions of temporary absence from Britain (see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 4 (as amended); and PARA 176 note 1 ante); or (d) one of them is permanently in residential accommodation or a residential care home or residential nursing home: reg 16(3) (amended by SI 1992/3147; SI 1996/1944). For these purposes, a person in a bail hostel is not in custody: Decision R(IS)17/93. As to residential accommodation see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 1029 et seq; as to residential care homes see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE; and as to nursing homes see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE.

There are also special provisions setting out a series of exceptional cases where a child or young person is not to be treated as part of the claimant's household: (i) where the child or young person is placed with the claimant or his partner (see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 16(4) (amended by SI 1992/468)); (ii) in certain circumstances, where the child or young person is not living with the claimant (see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 16(5) (amended by SI 1988/663; SI 1989/534; SI 1990/547; SI 1992/468; SI 1996/206), Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 16(5A) (added by SI 1996/206), Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 16(6)); (iii) where, for the purposes of attending the educational establishment at which he is receiving relevant education, the child or young person is living with the claimant or his partner and neither of them is treated as responsible for him (see reg 16(7)). As to the meaning of 'relevant education' see PARA 176 note 6 ante.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(iii) Calculation of the Amount of the Award/183. Amount of the award.

(iii) Calculation of the Amount of the Award

183. Amount of the award.

Where a person is entitled to income support<sup>1</sup>, if he has no income the amount of his income support benefit is to be the applicable amount<sup>2</sup>; if he has income<sup>3</sup>, the amount is to be the difference between his income and the applicable amount<sup>4</sup>.

Where (1) an award of income support is in force in favour of any person ('the recipient'); and (2) there is an alteration<sup>5</sup> in any of the relevant amounts<sup>6</sup>; and (3) the alteration affects the computation of the amount of income support to which the recipient is entitled, the following provisions have effect<sup>7</sup>. Where, in consequence of the alteration in question, the recipient becomes entitled to an increased or reduced amount of income support ('the new amount'), then, as from the commencing date<sup>8</sup>, the amount of income support payable to or for the recipient under the award must be the new amount, without any further decision of an adjudication officer, and the award must have effect accordingly<sup>9</sup>. Where, notwithstanding the alteration in question, the recipient continues on and after the commencing date to be entitled to the same amount of income support as before, the award continues in force accordingly<sup>10</sup>.

In any case where (a) there is an alteration in any of the relevant amounts; and (b) before the commencing date (but after that date is fixed) an award of income support is made in favour of a person, the award either may provide for income support to be paid as from the commencing date, in which case the amount must be determined by reference to the relevant amounts in force on that date, or may provide for an amount determined by reference to the amounts in force at the date of the award<sup>11</sup>.

Where an award of income support is in force in favour of the recipient and there is a component<sup>12</sup> which becomes applicable, or applicable at a particular rate, in his case if he or some other person attains a particular age, then the following provisions apply<sup>13</sup>. If the recipient or other person attains that particular age and, in consequence (i) the component in question becomes applicable, or applicable at a particular rate, in the recipient's case (whether or not some other component ceases, for the same reason, to be applicable, or applicable at a particular rate, in his case); and (ii) after taking account of any such cessation, the recipient becomes so entitled, the amount of income support payable to or for him under the award must be that increased amount, without any further decision of an adjudication officer, and the award must have effect accordingly<sup>14</sup>. However, this does not apply in any case where, in consequence of the recipient or other person attaining the age in question, some question arises in relation to the recipient's entitlement to any benefit<sup>15</sup>, other than (A) the question whether the component concerned, or any other component, becomes or ceases to be applicable, or applicable at a particular rate, in his case; and (B) the question whether, in consequence, the amount of his income support falls to be varied<sup>16</sup>.

1 As to entitlement to income support see PARA 176 et seq ante.

2 As to the applicable amount see PARA 184 post.

3 As to the calculation of income see PARA 187 et seq post.

4 Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 124(4). Provision is made for calculating the amount payable in respect of a part week: see s 124(5), (6); and the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, regs 73-77 (as added and amended).

5 'Alteration', in relation to the component rates of income support or any other sums specified in regulations under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt VII (ss 123-137) (as amended), means their alteration by or under any enactment whether or not contained in that Part; and, in relation to a person's benefit income, means the alteration of any of the sums referred to in the Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 150 (as amended) (see PARA 17 ante) by any enactment or by an order under s 150 (as amended) or s 152, to the extent that any such alteration affects the amount of his benefit income: s 159(5). 'Component rate', in relation to income support, means the amount of (1) the sum referred to in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 126(5)(b)(i), (ii) (see PARA 178 head (4) ante); or (2) any of the sums specified in regulations under s 135(1) (see PARAS 174 ante, 184 post): Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 159(5). 'Benefit income', in relation to any person, means so much of his income as consists of benefit under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992, other than income support, or a war disablement pension or war widow's pension: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 159(5).

6 'Relevant amounts' means (1) any of the component rates of income support; (2) any of the other sums specified in regulations under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Pt VII (as amended); or (3) the recipient's benefit income: Social Security Administration Act 1992 s 159(1), (5).

UPDATE

176-201 Income Support

As from 6 April 2005, the child-related elements of income support are abolished and replaced: see Tax Credits Act 2002 s 1, SI 2003/962; and PARA 227A.1.

As to the entitlement of certain persons who are, or who are members of families of persons, entitled to income support to receive welfare foods, see the Welfare Food Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1434; and SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 680.

For the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, for any period commencing with or falling after 2 March 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in either the Full-time Education and Training Option, the Voluntary Sector Option or the Environment Task Force Option, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). If, for any period commencing with or falling after 3 July 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in the Employment Option in a capacity other than that of employee, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the 1973 Act s 2; and accordingly any payment, other than a trading receipt, made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: SI 1998/217 art 2(1), (3), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). See further PARA 31-46.

Also for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 2 April 1999, a person is participating in the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus within the self-employment route (see PARA 189) and that person receives either a mandatory top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed and any such payments made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated as a grant and not as a training allowance: New Deal (25 plus) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1999, SI 1999/779, reg 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged over 25 years immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work: SI 1999/779 reg 1(2).

Further, for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, for any period or periods commencing with or falling after 9 April 2001, during which a person is participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus, that person receives, or is eligible to receive, a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period or those periods and in respect of his participation as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of facilities is to be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/970, art 2(2). Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

Also, for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 13 September 2001 a person is participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents within the self-employment route and that person receives, or is eligible to receive, either a top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, any such payments made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of those facilities are to be treated (1) for the purposes of reg 6(1)(d) as a training allowance; and (2) for all other purposes as a training premium: New Deal (Lone Parents) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/2915, art 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The New Deal for Lone Parents' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are lone parents are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'lone parent' means a person who has no partner and who is responsible for, and a member of the same household as, a child or young person; 'the self-employment route' means receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents: SI 2001/2915 art 1(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(iv) The Applicable Amount/185. Allowable housing costs.

185. Allowable housing costs.

Allowable housing costs<sup>1</sup> are those which the claimant or, where he is a member of a family<sup>2</sup>, he or any member of the family is liable to meet<sup>3</sup> in respect of the dwelling<sup>4</sup> which he or any other member of his family is treated as occupying, and which come within the following categories<sup>5</sup>:

- 463 (1) a loan taken out for the purpose of acquiring an interest in the dwelling occupied as the home (or paying off another loan to the extent that the other loan would have qualified)<sup>6</sup>;
- 464 (2) a loan taken out, with or without security, for the purpose of carrying out repairs and improvements, or paying any service charge imposed to meet the cost of repairs and improvements (or paying off another loan to the extent that the other loan would have qualified)<sup>7</sup>;
- 465 (3) other allowable housing costs, namely payments by way of rent or ground rent relating to a long tenancy, service charges<sup>8</sup>, payments by way of rent charge, payments under a co-ownership scheme, payments under or relating to a tenancy or licence of a Crown tenant and, where the dwelling occupied as the home is a tent, payments in respect of the tent and the site on which it stands<sup>9</sup>.

A deduction is made in respect of any non-dependant<sup>10</sup> aged 18 or over, the amount of which depends on whether the non-dependant is engaged in any remunerative work or not and, if so, on the level of his income<sup>11</sup>.

1 No amount may be met in respect of expenditure of a kind for which housing benefit may be granted, or where the claimant is in a residential care home or nursing home (unless he is in such a home only temporarily): see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 17 (as amended), Sch 3 para 4(1) (Sch 3 substituted by SI 1995/1613). As to residential care homes see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE; and as to nursing homes see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE.

2 For the meaning of 'family' see PARA 175 note 1 ante.

3 A person is liable to meet housing costs where (1) the liability falls upon him or his partner (but not where the liability is to a member of the same household); (2) because the person liable to meet the costs is not meeting them, the claimant has to meet them in order to continue to live there and it is reasonable in all the circumstances to treat the claimant as liable to meet those costs; (3) he in practice shares the housing costs with other members of the household (none of whom are close relatives of the claimant or his partner), one or more of those members is liable to meet those costs, and it is reasonable in the circumstances to treat him as sharing responsibility: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 2(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). For the meaning of 'partner' see PARA 182 note 5 ante.

4 Ie the dwelling occupied as the home: see ibid Sch 3 para 1(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). 'Dwelling occupied as the home' means the dwelling together with any garage, garden and outbuildings normally occupied by the claimant as his home including any premises not so occupied which it is impracticable or unreasonable to sell separately: reg 2(1). This includes a dwelling to be occupied as the home: Decision R(IS)11/94 (house being built on acquired land).

5 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 1(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). A person is to be treated as occupying as his home the dwelling normally occupied as his home by himself or, if he is a member of a family, by himself and his family; and he is not to be treated as occupying any other dwelling as his home: Sch 3 para 3(1) (as so substituted). As to when a person is to be treated as occupying a dwelling as his home (the normal rule being that up to 13 weeks absence is permissible) see Sch 3 para 3(2)-(13) (as so substituted; Sch 3 para 3(11) amended by SI 1995/2927). As to the apportionment of housing costs in the case of a composite hereditament see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 5 (as so substituted).

6 Ibid Sch 3 para 15(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). This also applies to money borrowed under a hire purchase agreement for these purposes: Sch 3 para 15(2) (as so substituted). A loan applied only partly for these purposes is to be apportioned: Sch 3 para 15(3) (as so substituted). As to whether a transfer between the claimant and his partner constitutes an acquisition of an interest see Decision R(IS)1/95; as to replacement of an interest-free loan from friends with a commercial loan see Decision R(IS)11/95.

The weekly amount of housing costs in respect of a qualifying loan is determined by applying the standard interest rate: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 paras 10, 12 (both as so substituted; Sch 3 para 12 amended by SI 1995/2927; SI 1996/2903; SI 1997/944 (revoked with savings); and, with effect from 2 September 1997, by SI 1997/2055). The actual rate of interest is only now used where, as at the day the housing costs first fall to be met, it was less than 5% per annum, and it ceases to apply when it reaches 5% or more: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 12(2), (3) (as so substituted). As to the applicable amount in respect of housing costs for income support when the claimant or his partner was previously in receipt of, or treated as being in receipt of, income-based jobseeker's allowance (as to which see PARA 271 et seq post), see Sch 3 para 1A (added by SI 1997/2305).

7 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 16(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). The loan must have been used for that purpose, or be used for that purpose within six months of the date of receipt or such further period as is reasonable in the particular circumstances: Sch 3 para 16(1) (as so substituted). 'Repairs and improvements' means any of the following measures undertaken with a view to maintaining the fitness of the dwelling for human habitation: (1) provision of a fixed bath, shower, wash basin, sink or lavatory, and necessary associated plumbing, including the provision of hot water not connected to a central heating system; (2) repairs to existing heating systems; (3) damp proof measures; (4) provision of ventilation and natural lighting; (5) provision of drainage facilities; (6) provision of facilities for preparing and cooking food; (7) provision of insulation of the dwelling occupied as the home; (8) provision of electric lighting and sockets; (9) provision of storage facilities for fuel or refuse; (10) repairs of unsafe structural defects; (11) adapting a dwelling for the special needs of a disabled person; or (12) provision of separate sleeping accommodation for children of different sexes aged ten or over who are part of the same family as the claimant: Sch 3 para 16(2) (as so substituted). A loan used partly for a qualifying purpose or purposes is to be apportioned: Sch 3 para 16(3) (as so substituted).

As to the determination of the amount of housing costs in respect of a qualifying loan see note 6 supra.

8 This may apply not only to a leaseholder, but also to a freeholder: Decision R(IS)4/91. See the interpretation set out in the appendix added jointly to Decisions R(IS)4/91; R(IS)3/91. Building insurance levied by a landlord may be included: Decisions R(IS)4/92; R(IS)19/93. However, this does not apply to ordinary building insurance premiums paid by an owner-occupier as a condition of a mortgage: Dunne v Department of Health and Social Security (10 September 1993, unreported, CA).

9 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 17(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). Certain deductions may be made under Sch 3 para 17(2) (as so substituted).

10 'Non-dependant' means any person who normally resides with a claimant, or with whom a claimant normally resides, except (1) a member of the claimant's family; (2) a child or young person living with the claimant but not treated as being a member of his household; (3) a person living with the claimant to care for him or for his partner, and who is provided, for a charge, by a charity or voluntary association; or (4) the partner of a person within head (3) supra: ibid reg 3(1) (amended by SI 1991/2334; SI 1994/3061), Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 3(2) (substituted by SI 1991/2334; and amended by SI 1995/516). This exception also extends to persons (other than close relatives) in a commercial relationship with the claimant (see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 3(2A) (added by SI 1991/2334)); and to co-owners and those jointly liable for rent (see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 3(2B) (added by SI 1991/2334)). For the meaning of 'child' see PARA 175 note 1 ante. For the meaning of 'young person' see PARA 182 note 1 ante. As to the meaning of 'household' see PARA 182 ante.

11 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 18 (as substituted: see note 1 supra; and amended by SI 1995/2927; SI 1996/2518; SI 1997/543; SI 1997/827).

UPDATE

176-201 Income Support

As from 6 April 2005, the child-related elements of income support are abolished and replaced: see Tax Credits Act 2002 s 1, SI 2003/962; and PARA 227A.1.

As to the entitlement of certain persons who are, or who are members of families of persons, entitled to income support to receive welfare foods, see the Welfare Food Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1434; and SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 680.

For the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, for any period commencing with or falling after 2 March 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in either the Full-time Education and Training Option, the Voluntary Sector Option or the Environment Task Force Option, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). If, for any period commencing with or falling after 3 July 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in the Employment Option in a capacity other than that of employee, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the 1973 Act s 2; and accordingly any payment, other than a trading receipt, made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: SI 1998/217 art 2(1), (3), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). See further PARA 31-46.

Also for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 2 April 1999, a person is participating in the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus within the self-employment route (see PARA 189) and that person receives either a mandatory top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed and any such payments made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated as a grant and not as a training allowance: New Deal (25 plus) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1999, SI 1999/779, reg 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged over 25 years immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work: SI 1999/779 reg 1(2).

Further, for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, for any period or periods commencing with or falling after 9 April 2001, during which a person is participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus, that person receives, or is eligible to receive, a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period or those periods and in respect of his participation as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of facilities is to be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/970, art 2(2). Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

Also, for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 13 September 2001 a person is participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents within the self-employment route and that person receives, or is eligible to receive, either a top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, any such payments made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of those facilities are to be treated (1) for the purposes of reg 6(1)(d) as a training allowance; and (2) for all other purposes as a training premium: New Deal (Lone Parents) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/2915, art 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The New Deal for Lone Parents' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are lone parents are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'lone parent' means a person who has no partner and who is responsible for, and a member of the same household as, a child or young person; 'the self-employment route' means receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents: SI 2001/2915 art 1(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(iv) The Applicable Amount/186. Restrictions on housing costs.

186. Restrictions on housing costs.

On a new claim for income support<sup>1</sup>, in the case of existing housing costs<sup>2</sup>, nothing is payable in relation to those costs for the first eight weeks, then only one-half for the next 18 weeks<sup>3</sup>; in the case of new housing costs, nothing is payable for the first 39 weeks<sup>4</sup>.

There is a statutory ceiling on the size of the loan or aggregate of loans in respect of which housing costs may be paid<sup>5</sup>.

Housing costs are not to be met on any loan incurred during any period when the person was entitled to income support, or was living as a member of a family one of whom was entitled to income support, after a certain date<sup>6</sup>. This restriction does not apply where a loan is taken out or an existing loan increased to acquire alternative accommodation more suited to the needs of a disabled person<sup>7</sup>, or where the loan commitment increased on a move of house made solely by reason of the need to provide separate sleeping accommodation for children of different sexes aged ten or over who belong to the same family as the claimant<sup>8</sup>. Where the claimant or a member of his family acquires an interest in a dwelling which he then occupies or continues to occupy as his home, and in the week preceding that acquisition housing benefit was payable to him or a member of his family, limited housing costs may be paid<sup>9</sup>.

Where (1) the dwelling occupied as the home, excluding any part of it which is let, is larger than is required by the claimant and his family (and any foster children) and any other non-dependants having regard, in particular, to suitable alternative accommodation occupied by a household of the same size<sup>10</sup>; or (2) the immediate area<sup>11</sup> in which the dwelling is located is more expensive than other areas in which suitable alternative accommodation exists; or (3) the outgoings of the dwelling which are normally met by housing costs are higher than the outgoings of suitable alternative accommodation in the area, the amount of the loan which falls to be met may be restricted and the excess over the amounts which he would need to obtain suitable alternative accommodation is not allowed<sup>12</sup>. This restriction does not apply where, having regard to certain factors<sup>13</sup>, it is not reasonable to expect the claimant and his family to seek alternative cheaper accommodation<sup>14</sup>. Moreover, where the claimant was able to meet the financial commitments<sup>15</sup> for the dwelling when they were entered into, no restriction is to be made during the first 26 weeks of any period of entitlement to income support or during the 26 weeks from the date of a review, nor during the next 26 weeks, if and so long as the claimant uses his best endeavours to obtain cheaper accommodation<sup>16</sup>.

1 In order to prevent the initial restriction applying repeatedly where a person's entitlement to income support is intermittent (eg where he has taken on short-term employment) there are 'linking rules': see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 17 (as amended), Sch 3 para 14 (Sch 3 substituted by SI 1995/1613; Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 14 amended by SI 1995/2927; SI 1996/206; SI 1996/1944). The general rule is that two periods of entitlement separated by a period of 12 weeks or less may be considered to be one period of entitlement, so that the initial restriction only applies once.

2 'Existing housing costs' means housing costs arising under an agreement entered into before 2 October 1995 or under a new agreement entered into after 1 October 1995 which replaces an existing agreement (which was entered into before 2 October 1995) between the same parties in respect of the same property and which is for a loan of the same amount or less: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 1(2) (as substituted: see note 1 supra; and amended by SI 1995/2927).

3 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 6(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra; and amended by SI 1995/2927). For these purposes, the eligible capital for the time being owing is to be determined on the date the existing housing costs are first met and thereafter on each anniversary of that date; but where a claimant or his partner ceases to be in receipt of or treated as being in receipt of income-based jobseeker's allowance (as to which see PARA 271 et seq post) and one of them becomes entitled to income support in a case to which these provisions apply, the eligible capital for the time being owing must be recalculated on each anniversary of the date on which the housing costs were first met for whichever of the benefits concerned the claimant or his partner was first entitled: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 6(1A), (1B) (added respectively by SI 1995/2927; and SI 1997/2305).

The rule may apply to what would otherwise be new housing costs where the claimant is caring for another person, is detained in custody or has been refused payments under a mortgage protection insurance policy because of a pre-existing medical condition or HIV infection, or where the claim is due to the death of the claimant's partner or the claimant being abandoned by his partner and the claimant's family includes a child: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 8(2)-(5) (as so substituted; and amended by SI 1996/206). 'New housing costs' means housing costs arising under an agreement entered into after 1 October 1995 other than an agreement which is referred to in note 2 supra: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 1(2) (as so substituted). For the meaning of 'partner' see PARA 182 note 5 ante. For the meaning of 'family', and for the meaning of 'child', see PARA 175 note 1 ante.

4 See ibid Sch 3 para 8(1) (as substituted: see note 1 supra; and amended by SI 1995/2927). For these purposes, the eligible capital for the time being owing is to be determined on the date the new housing costs are first met and thereafter on each anniversary of that date; but where a claimant or his partner ceases to be in receipt of or treated as being in receipt of income-based jobseeker's allowance and one of them becomes entitled to income support in a case to which these provisions apply, the eligible capital for the time being owing must be recalculated on each anniversary of the date on which the housing costs were first met for whichever of the benefits concerned the claimant or his partner was first entitled: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 8(1A), (1B) (added respectively by SI 1995/2927; and SI 1997/2305).

The restrictions in the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 paras 6, 8 (both as substituted and amended) do not apply where (1) the claimant or his partner is aged 60 or over; or (2) where the housing costs are payments under a co-ownership agreement, payments under or relating to a tenancy or licence of a Crown tenant or, where the dwelling occupied as the home is a tent, payments in respect of the tent and its site: Sch 3 para 9 (as so substituted).

5 See ibid Sch 3 para 11(4)-(11) (as substituted: see note 1 supra; and amended by SI 1995/2927). A loan taken out and used for the purpose of adapting a dwelling for the special needs of a disabled person is disregarded in determining whether the statutory limit has been exceeded: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 11(9) (as so substituted).

6 Ibid Sch 3 para 4(2)-(5) (as substituted: see note 1 supra; and amended by SI 1995/2927). Where the loan has been applied to pay off an earlier qualifying loan or to finance the purchase of a property where an earlier qualifying loan in respect of another property is paid off in whole or in part with moneys received from the sale of that property, the rule only applies to the amount (if any) by which the new loan exceeds the earlier one: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 4(6) (as so substituted; and amended by SI 1996/1944).

7 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 4(9) (as substituted: see note 1 supra).

9 See ibid Sch 3 para 4(8) (as substituted: see note 1 supra; and amended by SI 1995/2927). In practice, this is particularly applicable where a claimant exercises his right to buy his council house.

The amount is initially limited to the amount of the housing benefit plus any other housing costs to which he was already entitled (see PARA 184 head (6) ante); and the amount may be increased subsequently only to the extent that it is necessary to take account of any increase, arising after the date of the acquisition, in the standard rate of interest or in any other housing costs (ie under para 185 head (3) ante): see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 4(8) (as so substituted and amended). There is no provision for any decrease consequent on a decrease in the standard rate: Decision R(IS)8/94.

There is a similar restriction where the claimant acquires an interest in a dwelling where previously he had been entitled only to an amount representing other housing costs (ie under para 185 head (3) ante); in such a case, the amount is limited to the level of those existing housing costs: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 4(11) (as so substituted; and amended by SI 1995/2927).

10 For the meaning of 'non-dependant' see PARA 185 note 10 ante. As to the meaning of 'household' see PARA 182 ante.

11 'Area' denotes something more confined, restricted and more compact than a locality or district, and so the comparison must not be too widely drawn: Decision R(IS)12/91.

12 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 13(1), (3) (both as substituted: see note 1 supra). For these purposes, no regard is to be had to the capital value of the dwelling occupied as the home: Sch 3 para 13(2) (as so substituted).

The excess is to be calculated subjectively to the claimant: Decision R(IS)9/91, applying Decision R(SB)6/89 (where the sale of the original home meant that a suitable, smaller home could be bought without a mortgage, no housing costs were to be awarded).

13 The relevant factors are (1) the availability of suitable accommodation and the level of housing costs in the area; and (2) the circumstances of the family including in particular the age and state of health of its members, the employment prospects of the claimant and, where a change of accommodation is likely to result in a change of school, the effect on the education of any child or young person who is a member of his family, or any foster children: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 13(5) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). For the meaning of 'young person' see PARA 182 note 1 ante. While factor (1) is objective, it is balanced by factor (2) which must be considered subjectively to the claimant and may include matters not listed, such as financial hardship and difficulties in disposing of the property: Decision R(SB)6/89; Decision R(SB)7/89; Decision R(IS)10/93.

14 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 13(4) (as substituted: see note 1 supra).

15 The test is ability to meet the financial commitments, not whether it was wise to enter them in the first place: see Secretary of State for Social Security v Julien (1992) Times, 21 April, CA.

16 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 3 para 13(6) (as substituted: see note 1 supra). As to the calculation of these 26 week periods see Sch 3 para 13(7), (8) (both as so substituted).

The 'best endeavours' rule in Sch 3 para 13(6) (as substituted) is not to be applied to a claimant unless he has been notified in advance that the restriction of housing costs is likely to take place: Decision R(SB)7/89.

UPDATE

176-201 Income Support

As from 6 April 2005, the child-related elements of income support are abolished and replaced: see Tax Credits Act 2002 s 1, SI 2003/962; and PARA 227A.1.

As to the entitlement of certain persons who are, or who are members of families of persons, entitled to income support to receive welfare foods, see the Welfare Food Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1434; and SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 680.

For the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, for any period commencing with or falling after 2 March 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in either the Full-time Education and Training Option, the Voluntary Sector Option or the Environment Task Force Option, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). If, for any period commencing with or falling after 3 July 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in the Employment Option in a capacity other than that of employee, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the 1973 Act s 2; and accordingly any payment, other than a trading receipt, made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: SI 1998/217 art 2(1), (3), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). See further PARA 31-46.

Also for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 2 April 1999, a person is participating in the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus within the self-employment route (see PARA 189) and that person receives either a mandatory top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed and any such payments made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated as a grant and not as a training allowance: New Deal (25 plus) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1999, SI 1999/779, reg 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged over 25 years immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work: SI 1999/779 reg 1(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(v) Income/187. Calculation of income.

(v) Income

187. Calculation of income.

The income of a claimant is to be calculated on a weekly basis<sup>1</sup>. For this purpose, income includes capital treated as income and notional income<sup>2</sup>, and any tariff income from capital<sup>3</sup>.

Earnings derived from employment as an employed earner<sup>4</sup> and other income not consisting of earnings<sup>5</sup> are to be taken into account for the period in respect of which they were paid<sup>6</sup>. A payment of such income is generally treated as paid on the first day of the benefit week in which it is due to be paid, or the first succeeding benefit week in which it is practicable to take it into account<sup>7</sup>.

Where a claimant's income consists of earnings from employment as a self-employed earner<sup>8</sup>, the weekly amount of his earnings is to be determined by reference to his average weekly earnings from that employment over a period of one year or, where the claimant has recently become engaged in that employment or there has been a change likely to affect the normal pattern of business, over such other period as may enable the weekly amount of his earnings to be determined more accurately<sup>9</sup>.

1 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 28(1). Any income of the claimant's family must be taken into account: see PARA 175 ante. As to the calculation of such income see reg 23 (amended by SI 1988/1228; SI 1996/206). For the meaning of 'family' see PARA 175 note 1 ante.

There are special rules relating to the income of children and young persons: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 44 (amended by SI 1988/663; SI 1993/2119), Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, Sch 8 paras 14, 15 (amended by SI 1989/534; SI 1992/468). For the meaning of 'child' see PARA 175 note 1 ante; and for the meaning of 'young person' see PARA 182 note 1 ante.

2 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 28(2) (substituted by SI 1991/1559). As to capital treated as income see PARA 191 post; and as to notional income see PARA 192 post.

3 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 28(1). As to tariff income see PARA 194 post.

4 See PARA 188 post.

5 As to income other than earnings see PARA 190 post.

6 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 29(1) (amended by SI 1988/2022), Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 29(2)(a). See also Decision R(IS)3/93. As to payments not made in respect of a period see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 29(2)(b) (amended by SI 1990/547).

Where the periods in respect of which different kinds of earnings from the same source fall to be taken into account overlap, the earnings are to be taken into account for the aggregate length of those periods: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 29(3). As to the order of priority in which such earnings are to be taken into account see reg 29(4) (substituted by SI 1989/1323); and see eg Decision R(SB)11/85.

As to the period over which earnings paid in respect of or on the termination of employment are to be taken into account see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 29(4B), (4C) (both added by SI 1989/1323).

7 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 31(1)(b). A payment due to be paid before the first benefit week is treated as paid on the date on which it is due to be paid: reg 31(1)(a). For the meaning of 'benefit week' see PARA 182 note 3 ante.

Income support, jobseeker's allowance, maternity allowance, incapacity benefit or severe disablement allowance is to be treated as paid on the day of the benefit week in respect of which it is payable: reg 31(2) (amended by SI 1988/663; SI 1988/1445; SI 1995/482; SI 1996/206).

Where a contract of employment is terminated unlawfully by the employer, any outstanding amounts or in lieu payments are due at the date of the employer's repudiation of the contract: Decisions R(SB)23/84; R(SB)11/85.

As to translating payments made otherwise than on a weekly basis into the appropriate weekly amounts see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 32 (amended by SI 1988/663; SI 1988/1445; SI 1989/1323; SI 1995/482; SI 1996/206).

8 See PARA 189 post.

9 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 30(1) (amended by SI 1993/2119). Special rules apply to royalties and copyright payments: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 30(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(v) Income/188. Earnings of employed earners.

188. Earnings of employed earners.

In the case of employment as an employed earner, 'earnings' means any remuneration or profit derived from that employment<sup>1</sup>, and includes:

- 466 (1) any bonus or commission;
- 467 (2) any payment in lieu of remuneration<sup>2</sup>, except any periodic sum paid to a claimant on account of the termination of his employment by reason of redundancy;
- 468 (3) any payment in lieu of notice;
- 469 (4) any holiday pay, except any payable more than four weeks after the termination or interruption of employment<sup>3</sup>;
- 470 (5) any payment by way of a retainer<sup>4</sup>;
- 471 (6) any payment made by the claimant's employer in respect of expenses not wholly, exclusively and necessarily incurred in the performance of the duties of the employment, including any payment by the employer in respect of travelling expenses incurred by the claimant between his home and place of work, and expenses incurred by the claimant under arrangements made for the care of a member of his family owing to the claimant's absence from home<sup>5</sup>;
- 472 (7) an award of compensation for unfair dismissal<sup>6</sup>;
- 473 (8) any sum specified to be earnings for social security purposes<sup>7</sup>;
- 474 (9) where:
- 39 47. (a) a payment of compensation is made in respect of employment which is not part-time employment<sup>8</sup> and that payment is not less than the maximum weekly amount<sup>9</sup>, the amount of the compensation less the deductible remainder<sup>10</sup>, where that is applicable;
- 48. (b) a payment of compensation is made in respect of employment which is part-time employment, the amount of the compensation<sup>11</sup>.
- 40

Earnings do not include:

- 475 (i) any payment in kind<sup>12</sup>;
- 476 (ii) any remuneration paid by or on behalf of an employer to a claimant in respect of a period throughout which the claimant is on maternity leave or is absent from work because he is ill;
- 477 (iii) any payment in respect of expenses wholly, exclusively and necessarily incurred in the performance of the duties of the employment;
- 478 (iv) any occupational pension;
- 479 (v) any lump sum payment made under the Iron and Steel Re-adaptation Benefits Scheme<sup>13</sup>.

The earnings of a claimant derived from employment as an employed earner which are to be taken into account in calculating income are his net earnings<sup>14</sup>. These are to be calculated by taking into account the gross earnings less (A) income tax; (B) primary Class 1 contributions; and (C) one-half of the claimant's contributions towards an occupational or personal pension scheme<sup>15</sup>. In order to ascertain the gross income in the first place, necessary expenses may be deducted<sup>16</sup>. Certain specified sums ('disregards') are to be disregarded from the claimant's net earnings<sup>17</sup>.

1 'Derived from' applies a broad causative test and means 'having their origin in': Decision R(SB)21/86. A cash payment to a miner in lieu of concessionary coal has been held to be remuneration or profit derived from his employment: Decision R(SB)2/86.

2 This may apply to any award of compensation which includes an element of loss of earnings: Decision R(SB)21/86 (compensation for unfair dismissal); Decision CIS/590/1993 (compensation for sex discrimination).

3 This exception does not apply to a claimant subject to the trade dispute provisions (see PARA 178 ante). The payable date is the date when the amount is first due to be paid (not necessarily when it is actually paid); on termination, holiday pay normally becomes immediately payable: Decision R(SB)11/85. Any holiday pay not in fact payable until more than four weeks afterwards is treated as capital: see PARA 195 post.

4 This includes a guarantee payment under the Employment Rights Act 1996 s 28 (see EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 237 et seq): see Decision CIS/743/1992.

5 As to the treatment of the expenses, including travelling expenses, of a local councillor see Decision R(IS)6/92. As to the apportionment of expenses generally see the text and note 16 infra. For the meaning of 'family' see PARA 175 note 1 ante.

6 For the meaning of 'compensation' see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 35(3)(a) (added by SI 1989/1323; and amended by SI 1990/774; SI 1997/454).

7 ie any sum referred to in the Social Security (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1977 s 18(2) (repealed) (maternity pay etc).

8 'Part-time employment' means employment in which a person is not to be treated as engaged in remunerative work (see PARAS 179-180 ante): see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 35(3)(c) (added by SI 1989/1323).

9 'Maximum weekly amount' means the maximum weekly amount that may be used in employment law for the purpose of calculating a statutory redundancy payment: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 35(3)(b) (added by SI 1989/1323); and EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 121.

10 The 'deductible remainder' applies in cases where dividing the amount of the compensation by the maximum weekly amount produces a whole number plus a fraction, and it is equal to the difference between (1) the amount of the compensation; and (2) the product of the maximum weekly amount multiplied by the whole number: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 35(1A) (added by SI 1989/1323).

11 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 35(1) (amended by SI 1988/663; SI 1989/1323).

12 Eg concessionary coal provided to miners and their dependants: see R v Doncaster Metropolitan Borough Council, ex p Boulton (1992) 25 HLR 195. However, a cash payment in lieu of a payment in kind does not qualify for the exemption: see Decision R(SB)2/86; and note 1 supra.

13 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 35(2) (amended by SI 1993/2119; SI 1997/454). Any payments falling within the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 35(2) (as amended) are deemed to be income other than earnings: see reg 40(4); and PARA 190 post.

Head (iii) in the text (necessary expenses) only relates to the reimbursement of expenses by an employer; expenses paid out by the employee himself must be deducted (if at all) under reg 36 (as amended) (see the text and notes 14-17 infra): Decision R(IS)16/93.

14 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 36(1).

15 Ibid reg 36(3) (amended by SI 1994/2139). As to income tax see generally INCOME TAXATION; as to primary Class 1 contributions see PARAS 34-36 ante; and as to occupational or personal pension schemes see PARA 710 et seq post.

16 The same principle that was applied to the former family income supplement provisions in Parsons v Hogg [1985] 2 All ER 897, sub nom Chief Adjudication Officer v Hogg [1985] 1 WLR 1100, CA, (ie that the gross amount is the amount of earnings before deduction of tax, etc, but after the deduction of allowable expenses, on a similar principle to that used for income tax purposes) should be applied to the income support calculation:

Decision R(IS)16/93. Where expenses are incurred partly for employment purposes and partly for private purposes, those incurred wholly, exclusively and necessarily for the production of the earnings should be allowed, and the expenses should be apportioned accordingly: Decision R(IS)13/91 (self-employed earner; but the same principle should apply to employed earners), applying Decision R(FC)1/91. Child minding costs are not allowable: Decision R(FIS)2/88; and see Joined Cases C-63/91, 64/91 Jackson v Chief Adjudication Officer [1993] QB 367, [1993] 3 All ER 265, ECJ (not contrary to EC law). As to EC social security law see PARA 451 et seq post.

17 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 36(2). As to the disregards see reg 36(2), Sch 8 paras 1-13 (as amended). The disregards are the same as those applicable to self-employed earners: see PARA 189 post.

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(v) Income/189. Earnings of self-employed earners.

189. Earnings of self-employed earners.

In the case of employment as a self-employed earner, 'earnings' means the gross receipts of the employment<sup>1</sup>. The earnings of a claimant who is engaged in employment on his own account which are to be taken into account in calculating income are the net profit<sup>2</sup>. The net profit is to be calculated by taking into account the earnings of the employment over the appropriate period<sup>3</sup>, less:

- 480 (1) any expenses wholly and exclusively defrayed in that period for the purposes of that employment<sup>4</sup>;
- 481 (2) an amount in respect of income tax and social security contributions<sup>5</sup>; and
- 482 (3) one-half of any premium paid in that period in respect of a retirement annuity contract or a personal pension scheme<sup>6</sup>.

Certain specified sums ('disregards') are to be disregarded from the net profit<sup>7</sup>.

Where a claimant is engaged in employment as a self-employed earner and is also engaged in one or more other employments (on the same basis or as a employed earner), any loss incurred in any one of his employments may not be offset against his earnings in any other of his employments<sup>8</sup>.

1 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 37(1). Allowances paid to the claimant for the purpose of assisting him in carrying on his business under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 (as substituted and amended) (see EMPLOYMENT vol 40 (2009) PARA 563) are included: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 37(1). However, where a claimant is involved in providing board and lodging accommodation for which a charge is payable, any payment by way of such a charge is excluded from the claimant's earnings; and certain payments for fostering and temporary care are also excluded: see reg 37(2) (substituted by SI 1992/2155; and amended by SI 1994/2139). Any payments falling within the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 37(2) (as substituted and amended) are deemed to be income other than earnings: see reg 40(4); and PARA 190 post.

'Gross receipts' do not include business loans made to the claimant, or the proceeds of sale of capital assets: see Decision CFC/3/1992 (decided under the equivalent provisions of the family credit legislation: see PARA 210 post).

2 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 38(1)(a). As to the equivalent provisions applying to self-employed earners who are members of a partnership or who are share fishermen, where the net profit is shared, see reg 38(1)(b), (4) (reg 38(1)(b) amended by SI 1993/2119; SI 1994/2139).

3 The period determined under the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 30 (as amended): see PARA 187 ante. However, an adjudication officer may assess any item of income or expenditure over another period if that would, in the particular case, enable the weekly amount to be determined more accurately: see reg 38(10).

4 No deduction may be made in respect of (1) any capital expenditure; (2) the depreciation of any capital asset; (3) any sum employed or intended to be employed in the setting up or expansion of the employment; (4) any loss incurred before the beginning of the appropriate period (see note 3 supra); (5) the repayment of capital on any loan taken out for the purposes of the employment; (6) any expenses incurred in providing business entertainment: ibid reg 38(5). However, a deduction is to be made in respect of the repayment of capital on any loan used for (a) the replacement in the course of business of equipment or machinery; and (b) the repair of an existing business asset, except to the extent that any sum is payable under an insurance policy for its repair: reg 38(6). Where a permissible item of expenditure has both business and personal purposes (eg telephone or car expenses) it may be apportioned and the business-related part allowed as a deduction, in much the same way as for income tax purposes: see Decision R(IS)13/91, applying Decision R(FC)1/91 (decided under the equivalent provisions of the family credit legislation: see PARA 210 post). An adjudication officer must refuse to make a deduction in respect of any expenses if he is not satisfied that it has been defrayed or, having regard to its nature and amount, that it has been reasonably incurred: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 38(7). A deduction is not to be made in respect of any sum unless it has been expended for the purposes of the business; and a deduction is to be made for (i) any excess of VAT paid over VAT received in the appropriate period; (ii) any income expended in the repair of an existing asset, except to the extent that any sum is payable under an insurance policy for its repair; (iii) any payment of interest on a loan taken out for the purposes of the employment: reg 38(8).

5 As to the calculation of the amounts to be deducted in respect of income tax and social security contributions see ibid reg 39 (amended by SI 1992/2155; SI 1993/2119; SI 1994/2139).

6 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 38(3) (amended by SI 1993/2119; SI 1994/2139). Special provisions exist for assessing the net profit of a claimant engaged in employment as a child minder: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 38(9) (amended by SI 1993/2119).

7 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 38(2). As to the disregards see reg 38(2), Sch 8 paras 1-13 (as amended). The disregards are the same as those applicable to an employed earner: see PARA 188 ante.

8 Ibid reg 38(11).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(v) Income/192. Notional income.

192. Notional income.

For income support purposes, a claimant may be treated as possessing certain income ('notional income') even though he does not do so<sup>1</sup>. Such notional income includes:

- 488 (1) income of which the claimant has deprived himself for the purpose of securing entitlement to income support or increasing the amount of that benefit<sup>2</sup>;
- 489 (2) income which would become available to the claimant on application being made, but which has not been acquired by him<sup>3</sup>;
- 490 (3) income foregone by a claimant of 60 or over who fails to take advantage of certain benefits of his personal pension scheme or retirement annuity contract<sup>4</sup>;
- 491 (4) any income which is due to be paid to the claimant but has not been paid to him<sup>5</sup>;
- 492 (5) certain payments made to a third party in respect of the claimant or a member of his family, or to the claimant or a member of his family in respect of a third party<sup>6</sup>;
- 493 (6) payments made by a third party in respect of the cost of maintaining the claimant or a member of his family in a residential care home or nursing home<sup>7</sup>.

Where a claimant's earnings are not ascertainable at the time of determination of the claim (or any subsequent review) the adjudication officer is to treat the claimant as possessing such earnings as are reasonable in the circumstances of the case, having regard to the number of hours worked and the earnings paid for comparable employment in the area<sup>8</sup>.

Where a claimant performs a service for another person and that person makes no payment of earnings, or pays less than that paid for a comparable employment in the area, the adjudication officer is to treat the claimant as possessing such earnings (if any) as are reasonable for that employment unless the claimant satisfies him that the means of that person are insufficient for him to pay, or pay more, for the service; but this does not apply to a claimant who is engaged by a charitable or voluntary organisation or is a volunteer<sup>9</sup>, if the adjudication officer is satisfied that it is reasonable for him to provide his services free of charge<sup>10</sup>.

1 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 42 (as amended). Where this is the case, the amount of the notional income is to be calculated as if a payment had actually been made and as if it were actual income which he does possess, ie subject to the normal rules on the calculation of income (see PARA 187 et seq ante): reg 42(7).

2 Ibid reg 42(1). As to similar provisions relating to notional capital, which is where the case law has arisen, see PARA 196 post.

3 See ibid reg 42(2) (amended by SI 1988/663; SI 1992/468; SI 1995/2303; SI 1996/206; SI 1996/1803; SI 1996/1944; and SI 1997/2197). This only applies from the date on which the income could be expected to be acquired were an application made; and does not apply in the case of a discretionary trust, a trust derived from a payment made in consequence of a personal injury, jobseeker's allowance, an increase of child benefit, child benefit payable for the only, elder or eldest child of a lone parent, family credit, disability working allowance, a personal pension scheme or retirement annuity contract where the claimant is under 60, or earnings top-up: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 42(2) (as so amended).

4 See ibid reg 42(2A)-(2C) (added by SI 1995/2303).

5 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 42(3) (amended by SI 1992/1198). This does not apply to a discretionary trust or a trust derived from a payment made in consequence of a personal injury, or a payment prescribed in the Social Security (Payments on account, Overpayment and Recovery) Regulations 1988, SI 1988/664, reg 8 (as amended) or reg 9: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 42(3) (as so amended). Further, it does not apply to amounts due under an occupational pension scheme which are either not paid out or which fall short of what is due, where the reason for the non-payment or the shortfall is that the trustees or managers have insufficient funds to meet the scheme's liabilities: see reg 42(3A), (3B) (both added by SI 1992/1198; and amended by SI 1993/315).

Where the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 42(3) (as amended) applies, there may be an application for an urgent cases payment: see PARA 200 post.

6 See ibid reg 42(4) (substituted by SI 1988/1445; and amended by SI 1990/127; SI 1991/1175; SI 1991/1559; SI 1992/1101; SI 1993/315; SI 1993/963; SI 1993/1249; SI 1994/527; SI 1995/2792; SI 1995/3282). Payments from certain named trusts are exempted: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 42(4) (as so substituted and amended).

10 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 42(6) (amended by SI 1995/516). See note 8 supra.

The provisions relating to notional earnings may apply to family relationships (see eg Decision R(IS)12/92 (family shop)); but a person caring for a disabled relative may be excepted as a volunteer (see Sharrock v Chief Adjudication Officer (reported as an appendix to Decision R(SB)3/92), CA; Decision CIS/93/1991).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(v) Income/193. Maintenance and child support payments.

193. Maintenance and child support payments.

There are special provisions relating to certain maintenance payments<sup>1</sup>.

Liable relative payments<sup>2</sup> are in general to be treated as income<sup>3</sup>. Liable relative payments are calculated as a weekly amount<sup>4</sup>, and are treated as paid on a prescribed date<sup>5</sup>.

Child support maintenance<sup>6</sup> is also to be treated as income<sup>7</sup>. It is to be taken into account on a weekly basis<sup>8</sup>, and treated as paid on a prescribed date<sup>9</sup>.

1 Where these provisions apply, the general provisions relating to calculation of income and capital (see PARA 187 et seq ante, 194 et seq post) do not apply: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, regs 25, 25A (added by SI 1993/846).

2 'Liable relative' means (1) a spouse or former spouse of a claimant or of a member of the claimant's family; (2) a parent of a child or young person who is a member of the claimant's family or of a young claimant; (3) a person who has not been adjudged to be the father of a child or young person who is a member of the claimant's family or of a young claimant where that person is contributing towards the maintenance of that child, young person or young claimant and by reason of that contribution he may reasonably be treated as the father of that child, young person or young claimant; (4) a person liable to maintain another person where the latter is the claimant or a member of the claimant's family: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 54. In this definition, a reference to a child's, young person's or young claimant's parent includes any person in relation to whom the child, young person or young claimant was treated as a child or a member of the family: reg 54. For the meaning of 'family', and for the meaning of 'child', see PARA 175 note 1 ante. For the meaning of 'young person' see PARA 182 note 1 ante. 'Young claimant' means a person aged 16 or over but under 19 who makes a claim for income support: reg 54.

'Payment' means a periodical payment or any other payment made by or derived from a liable relative including, except in the case of a discretionary trust, any payment which would be so made or derived upon application being made by the claimant but which has not been acquired by him (but only from the date on which it could be expected to be acquired were an application made): reg 54 (amended by SI 1988/663). It does not include any payment:

- 47 (a) arising from a disposition of property made in contemplation of, or as a consequence of, an agreement to separate or any proceedings for judicial separation, divorce or nullity of marriage (Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 54);
- 48 (b) made after the death of the liable relative (reg 54);
- 49 (c) made by the way of a gift but not in aggregate or otherwise exceeding a specified sum in the period of 52 weeks beginning with the date on which the payment, or if there is more than one such payment, the first payment, is made; and, in the case of a claimant who continues to be in receipt of income support at the end of the period of 52 weeks, this provision continues to apply with the modification that any subsequent period of 52 weeks begins with the first day of the benefit week in which the first payment is made after the end of the previous period of 52 weeks (reg 54);
- 50 (d) by a third party to an educational establishment in respect of the maintenance of a children or young person (ie a payment to which reg 44(2) applies) (see PARA 187 ante) (reg 54);
- 51 (e) made to a third party in respect of the claimant or a member of the claimant's family, or to the claimant or to a member of the claimant's family in respect of a third party, where (having regard to the purpose of the payment, the terms under which it is made and its amount) it is unreasonable to take it into account (reg 54);
- 52 (f) in kind (reg 54);

- 53 (g) to, or in respect of, a child or young person who is to be treated as not being a member of the claimant's household (ie under reg 16 (as amended)) (see PARA 182) (reg 54);
- 54 (h) which is not a periodical payment, to the extent that any amount of that payment (i) has already been taken into account by virtue of a previous claim or determination; or (ii) has been recovered under the provisions relating to prevention of duplication of payments (see PARA 394 post) or is currently being recovered; or (iii) at the time the determination is made, has been used by the claimant except where he has deprived himself of that amount for the purpose of securing entitlement to income support or increasing the amount of that benefit (reg 54).

'Periodical payment' means:

- 55 (A) a payment which is made or is due to be made at regular intervals in pursuance of a court order or agreement for maintenance;
- 56 (B) in a case where the liable relative has established a pattern of making payments at regular intervals, any such payment;
- 57 (C) any payment not exceeding the amount of income support payable had that payment not been made;
- 58 (D) any payment representing a commutation of payments to which head (A) or (B) supra applies whether made in arrears or in advance, but does not include a payment due to be made before the first benefit week pursuant to the claim which is not so made: reg 54(1). As to the interpretation of the exclusion in the proviso see McCorquodale v Chief Adjudication Officer [1989] FCR 82, CA (decided under the previous supplementary benefit provision). For the meaning of 'benefit week' see PARA 182 note 3 ante.

3 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 55 (amended by SI 1996/940). However, where the Secretary of State collects maintenance payments and treats any payment as not being relevant income, that payment is to be disregarded in calculating a claimant's income: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 55A (added by SI 1996/940). As to the Secretary of State see PARA 1 ante.

Where a liable relative makes a periodical payment concurrently with any other payment, and the weekly amount of the periodical payment is equal to or greater than a specified amount, the other payment is to be treated as capital: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 60.

4 See ibid reg 58. As to the period over which periodical payments are to be taken into account see reg 56. As to the period over which payments other than periodical payments are to be taken into account see reg 57 (amended by SI 1990/1776; SI 1996/1803).

5 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 59. In the case of periodical payments, this is generally the first day of the benefit week in which the payment is due to be paid; and, in the case of other payments, the first day of the benefit week in which it is paid: see reg 59.

6 'Child support maintenance' means such periodical payments as are referred to in the Child Support Act 1991 s 3(6) (see CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS vol 5(3) (2008 Reissue) PARA 553 et seq): Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 60A (added by SI 1993/846).

7 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 60B (added by SI 1993/846; and amended by SI 1996/940). Where the Secretary of State collects maintenance payments and treats any payment of child support maintenance as not being relevant income, that payment is to be disregarded in calculating a claimant's income: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 60E (added by SI 1996/940).

8 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 60B (as added and amended: see note 7 supra). As to the calculation of the weekly amounts of payments of child support see reg 60C (added by SI 1993/846).

9 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 60D (added by SI 1993/846; and amended by SI 1996/1944). This is generally the first day of the benefit week in which it is due to be paid: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 60D (as so added and amended).

Capital for this purpose includes any income treated as capital under the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 48 (as amended) (see PARA 195 post) or reg 60 (see PARA 193 ante): reg 53(3) (amended by SI 1988/2022; SI 1996/462).

See further PARA 31-46.

Also for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 2 April 1999, a person is participating in the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus within the self-employment route (see PARA 189) and that person receives either a mandatory top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed and any such payments made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated as a grant and not as a training allowance: New Deal (25 plus) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1999, SI 1999/779, reg 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged over 25 years immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work: SI 1999/779 reg 1(2).

Further, for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, for any period or periods commencing with or falling after 9 April 2001, during which a person is participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus, that person receives, or is eligible to receive, a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period or those periods and in respect of his participation as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of facilities is to be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/970, art 2(2). Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

Also, for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 13 September 2001 a person is participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents within the self-employment route and that person receives, or is eligible to receive, either a top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, any such payments made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of those facilities are to be treated (1) for the purposes of reg 6(1)(d) as a training allowance; and (2) for all other purposes as a training premium: New Deal (Lone Parents) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/2915, art 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The New Deal for Lone Parents' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are lone parents are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'lone parent' means a person who has no partner and who is responsible for, and a member of the same household as, a child or young person; 'the self-employment route' means receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents: SI 2001/2915 art 1(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(vi) Capital/195. Calculation of capital.

195. Calculation of capital.

For the purposes of income support, the capital of a claimant<sup>1</sup> to be taken into account is the whole of his capital and any income treated as capital<sup>2</sup>. Certain specified capital, however, is to be disregarded in calculating a claimant's capital<sup>3</sup>.

Capital which the claimant possesses in the United Kingdom is to be calculated at its current market or surrender value, less (1) where there would be expenses attributable to sale, 10 per cent; and (2) the amount of any incumbrance secured on it<sup>4</sup>. The same rule applies to capital in a country outside the United Kingdom, except that if there is a prohibition in that country against the transfer to the United Kingdom of an amount equal to its current market or surrender value in that country, the value is to be the price which it would realise if sold in the United Kingdom to a willing buyer<sup>5</sup>.

1 The capital of a child or young person who is a member of the claimant's family is not to be treated as capital of the claimant: Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 47. Any capital of the claimant's partner must, however, be taken into account: see PARA 175 ante. As to the calculation of such capital see reg 23 (amended by SI 1988/1228; SI 1996/206). For the meaning of 'child', and for the meaning of 'family', see PARA 175 note 1 ante. For the meaning of 'young person' see PARA 182 note 1 ante; and for the meaning of 'partner' see PARA 182 note 5 ante.

2 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 46(1) (amended by SI 1988/2022). The income which is to be treated as capital includes, inter alia, annual bounties from employment, tax rebates, holiday pay not treated as earnings, certain forms of income derived from capital, advances of earnings, certain local authority payments and certain charitable or voluntary payments: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 48 (amended by SI 1988/663; SI 1988/1445; SI 1988/2022; SI 1989/1323; SI 1990/127; SI 1991/1175; SI 1992/468; SI 1992/1101; SI 1993/963; SI 1993/1249). Capital given away by the claimant subject to a condition which is not satisfied remains the capital of the claimant: Ellis v Chief Adjudication Officer [1997] TLR 264, CA.

3 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 46(2). As to the capital to be disregarded see reg 46(2), Sch 10 (subject to frequent amendment). Where on a claimant's divorce he was ordered to transfer his entire interest in the former matrimonial home to his ex-wife in return for a charge on the property, to be enforced only when she died, remarried or cohabited for a period of six months or more, he had no interest in the property but a secured debt payable at a future date; this was not a reversionary interest and thus his rights did not fall to be disregarded altogether under Sch 10 (as amended); but in valuing his rights a discount should be applied for the fact that the debt was not payable immediately and possibly not for many years: see Decision R(IS)4/96.

4 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 49(a). There are special rules applying to National Savings Certificates: see reg 49(b). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.

The basic test of current market or surrender value is the price that a willing buyer would pay to a willing seller: Decision R(SB)57/83. However, any restrictions on saleability have to be taken into account and may depress the value, especially as what is envisaged for income support purposes is a relatively rapid sale (so that a longer term valuation such as one used for Inland Revenue purposes may not be appropriate): see Decisions R(IS)2/90; R(IS)8/92 (both cases concerning the valuation of share holdings subject to restrictions on sale). Any incumbrance is to be ignored in fixing the valuation, but then deducted specifically under head (2) in the text: Decision R(SB)2/83. As to the meaning of 'incumbrance' see Decision R(IS)21/93.

For the position where capital is shared see PARA 197 post.

5 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 50.

UPDATE

176-201 Income Support

As to the entitlement of certain persons who are, or who are members of families of persons, entitled to income support to receive welfare foods, see the Welfare Food Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1434; and SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 680.

For the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, for any period commencing with or falling after 2 March 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in either the Full-time Education and Training Option, the Voluntary Sector Option or the Environment Task Force Option, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). See further PARA 31-46.

Also for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 2 April 1999, a person is participating in the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus within the self-employment route (see PARA 189) and that person receives either a mandatory top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed and any such payments made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated as a grant and not as a training allowance: New Deal (25 plus) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1999, SI 1999/779, reg 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged over 25 years immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work: SI 1999/779 reg 1(2).

Further, for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, for any period or periods commencing with or falling after 9 April 2001, during which a person is participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus, that person receives, or is eligible to receive, a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period or those periods and in respect of his participation as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of facilities is to be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/970, art 2(2). Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

Also, for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 13 September 2001 a person is participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents within the self-employment route and that person receives, or is eligible to receive, either a top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, any such payments made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of those facilities are to be treated (1) for the purposes of reg 6(1)(d) as a training allowance; and (2) for all other purposes as a training premium: New Deal (Lone Parents) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/2915, art 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The New Deal for Lone Parents' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are lone parents are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'lone parent' means a person who has no partner and who is responsible for, and a member of the same household as, a child or young person; 'the self-employment route' means receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents: SI 2001/2915 art 1(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(vi) Capital/196. Notional capital.

196. Notional capital.

For income support purposes, a claimant may be treated as possessing certain capital ('notional capital') even though he does not do so<sup>1</sup>. Notional capital includes:

- 494 (1) capital of which the claimant has deprived himself for the purpose of securing entitlement to income support or increasing the amount of that benefit<sup>2</sup>;
- 495 (2) capital which would become available to the claimant on application being made, but which has not been acquired by him<sup>3</sup>;
- 496 (3) certain payments of capital made to a third party in respect of the claimant or his family, or to the claimant or his family in respect of a third party<sup>4</sup>.

Where a claimant stands in relation to a company in a position analogous to that of a sole owner or partner in the business of that company<sup>5</sup>, he is to be treated as if he were such a sole owner or partner and in such a case (a) the value of his holding in that company is to be disregarded; and (b) he is to be treated as possessing an amount of capital equal to the value of the capital of that company (or his share of it), which is to be calculated as if it were actual capital that he possessed<sup>6</sup>. However, for so long as he undertakes activities in the course of the business of the company, the amount which he is treated as possessing under this provision is to be disregarded<sup>7</sup>.

Where a claimant is treated as possessing notional capital under head (1) above, the amount which he is treated as possessing may be reduced if he would otherwise have been entitled to income support<sup>8</sup>.

1 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 51 (as amended). Where this is the case, the amount of the notional capital is to be calculated as if it were actual capital which the claimant does possess (see PARA 195 ante): reg 51(6).

2 Ibid reg 51(1) (amended by SI 1990/1776). This does not, however, apply to capital derived from a payment in consequence of any personal injury and placed in trust for the benefit of the claimant or where the notional capital is treated as reduced under the diminishing notional capital rule (see the text and note 8 infra): Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 51(1) (as so amended).

A claimant is to be treated as possessing capital under reg 51(1) (as amended) only if the capital of which he has deprived himself is actual capital: reg 51(7) (added by SI 1988/663).

In applying the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 51(1) (as amended) it is still appropriate to look at the case law on the previous equivalent provision in supplementary benefit law: Decision R(IS)1/91. Particularly relevant are Decisions R(SB)38/85 and R(SB)40/85, which together establish the following points: (1) 'deprive' is an ordinary English word which is not to be given a technical meaning; (2) there may be a deprivation even if the capital is spent on some other asset (see also Decision R(IS)13/94); (3) on the question of purpose, there may be little direct evidence and so it is necessary to consider all the circumstances and draw any appropriate inferences; (4) the obtaining or increasing of benefit need not be the only purpose and so it will be sufficient if that was a subsidiary purpose, provided it was a significant operative purpose, and one significant factor may be the extent of the claimant's knowledge of the capital limit (see also Decision R(SB)12/91). The repayment of debts out of capital suddenly received may not constitute 'deprivation', but this will normally mean legally binding debts which need to be substantiated by evidence; vague assertions about repaying money owed to members of the family may not be sufficient: Decision R(IS)12/91. As to the position where an elderly claimant has to enter residential care, and sells his house giving the proceeds to his children see Decision R(SB)9/91.

3 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 51(2). The notional capital under this head is treated as possessed by the claimant only from the date on which it could be expected to be acquired were an application made: see reg 51(2) (amended by SI 1988/663).

The Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 51(2) (as amended) does not apply in the case of a discretionary trust, a trust derived from a payment made in respect of a personal injury, any loan which would be obtainable only if secured against disregarded capital, or a personal pension scheme or retirement annuity contract: reg 51(2)(a), (b), (c), (d) (added by SI 1995/2303). As to personal pension schemes see PARA 710 et seq ante; and as to retirement annuity contracts see PARA 677 et seq ante.

4 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 51(3) (substituted by SI 1988/1445; and amended by SI 1988/1445; SI 1989/534; SI 1990/127; SI 1990/547; SI 1990/1776; SI 1991/1175; SI 1991/1559; SI 1992/1101; SI 1993/315; SI 1993/963; SI 1993/1249; SI 1997/65). For the meaning of 'family' see PARA 175 note 1 ante.

5 As to the meaning of this phrase see Decision R(IS)8/92.

6 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 51(4). What has to be valued is the net worth of the total assets, not the value of any individual items: Decision R(IS)13/93.

7 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 51(5). As to what activities are sufficient for this purpose see Decision R(IS)13/93.

8 le under the diminishing notional capital rule: see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 51A (added by SI 1990/1776; and amended by SI 1993/315). The general principle is that the notional capital is to be treated as diminished each week by the weekly amount of benefit that the claimant would have received but for the application to him of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 51(1) (as amended: see note 2 supra).

UPDATE

176-201 Income Support

As from 6 April 2005, the child-related elements of income support are abolished and replaced: see Tax Credits Act 2002 s 1, SI 2003/962; and PARA 227A.1.

As to the entitlement of certain persons who are, or who are members of families of persons, entitled to income support to receive welfare foods, see the Welfare Food Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1434; and SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 680.

For the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, for any period commencing with or falling after 2 March 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in either the Full-time Education and Training Option, the Voluntary Sector Option or the Environment Task Force Option, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). See further PARA 31-46.

Also for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 2 April 1999, a person is participating in the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus within the self-employment route (see

Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

Also, for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 13 September 2001 a person is participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents within the self-employment route and that person receives, or is eligible to receive, either a top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, any such payments made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of those facilities are to be treated (1) for the purposes of reg 6(1)(d) as a training allowance; and (2) for all other purposes as a training premium: New Deal (Lone Parents) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/2915, art 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The New Deal for Lone Parents' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are lone parents are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'lone parent' means a person who has no partner and who is responsible for, and a member of the same household as, a child or young person; 'the self-employment

197. Capital jointly held.

Where a claimant and one or more persons are beneficially entitled in possession to any capital asset<sup>1</sup>, they are to be treated as if each of them were entitled in possession to an equal share of the whole beneficial interest<sup>2</sup>. The value of that equal share is to be calculated by taking the value of the whole beneficial interest<sup>3</sup> as though that interest were solely owned by the claimant and, in the case of a dwelling, none of the other joint owners occupied the dwelling concerned, and dividing the same by the number of persons who have a beneficial interest in the capital in question<sup>4</sup>.

1   Ie except where a claimant possesses disregarded notional capital under the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 51(4): see PARA 196 ante.

2   Ibid reg 52 (amended by SI 1995/2303). The 1995 amendment was in order to reverse the effects of Chief Adjudication Officer v Palfrey [1995] TLR 92, CA, where the Court of Appeal (upholding the commissioners' decisions in Decisions CIS/391/1992 and CIS/417/1992) had negated the harsher aspects of this automatic division rule by holding that, although the shares had to be equal, what was to be valued was the artificial equal share, ie the interest; where there were others beneficially interested (eg co-owners of a house who had the right to live there) the market value might be very low, or even nil. The statutory amendment makes it clear that the whole beneficial interest is to be valued (ie in effect the property itself) and then divided equally among the people beneficially interested, without the fact of shared ownership affecting the value. This makes it clear that the rule is entirely artificial and meant to operate independently of any normal principles of property law.

3   Ie calculated on the ordinary principles: see PARA 195 ante.

UPDATE

176-201 Income Support

As from 6 April 2005, the child-related elements of income support are abolished and replaced: see Tax Credits Act 2002 s 1, SI 2003/962; and PARA 227A.1.

As to the entitlement of certain persons who are, or who are members of families of persons, entitled to income support to receive welfare foods, see the Welfare Food Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1434; and SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 680.

For the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, for any period commencing with or falling after 2 March 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in either the Full-time Education and Training Option, the Voluntary Sector Option or the Environment Task Force Option, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). If, for any period commencing with or falling after 3 July 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in the Employment Option in a capacity other than that of employee, that person receives a

See further PARA 31-46.

Also for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if, during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 2 April 1999, a person is participating in the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus within the self-employment route (see PARA 189) and that person receives either a mandatory top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed and any such payments made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated as a grant and not as a training allowance: New Deal (25 plus) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1999, SI 1999/779, reg 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'The intensive activity period of the New Deal Pilot for 25 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged over 25 years immediately prior to entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work: SI 1999/779 reg 1(2).

Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

Also, for the purposes of the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, if during any period or periods commencing with or falling after 13 September 2001 a person is participating in the New Deal for Lone Parents within the self-employment route and that person receives, or is eligible to receive, either a top-up payment or other payment made to him in order to assist with the expenses of participation, any such payments made to such a person during that period or those periods in connection with his use of those facilities are to be treated (1) for the purposes of reg 6(1)(d) as a training allowance; and (2) for all other purposes as a training premium: New Deal (Lone Parents) (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 2001, SI 2001/2915, art 2(1), (2), Schedule. 'Modular course' means a course of study which consists of two or more modules, the successful completion of a specified number of which is required before a person is considered by the educational establishment to have completed the course: SI 1987/1967 reg 61(4). NOTE 2--SI 1987/1967 reg 61 now reg 61(1).

Now, head (2)(a) the day before the start of the next year of the course in a case where the student's grant or loan is assessed at a rate appropriate to his studying throughout the year or, if he does not have a grant or loan, where a loan would have been assessed at such a rate had he had one: SI 1987/1967 reg 61(1) (amended by SI 2000/1922).

Definition of 'year' replaced by definition of 'academic year' which means the period of 12 months beginning on 1 January, 1 April, 1 July or 1 September according to whether the course in question begins in the winter, the spring, the summer or the autumn respectively but if students are required to begin attending the course during August or September and to continue attending through the autumn, the academic year of the course is considered to begin in the autumn rather than the summer: SI 1987/1967 reg 61(1) (as amended by SI 2001/2319).

TEXT AND NOTE 4--For 'urgent cases' read 'immigration control': SI 1987/1967 reg 4ZA(3) (a) (amended by SI 2000/636). The provisions referred to are those set out in SI 2000/636 Schedule Pt I para 1: SI 1987/1967 reg 4ZA(3)(a).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(vii) Students/199. Calculation of grant income.

199. Calculation of grant income.

The provisions relating to the calculation of income and capital have effect in relation to students and their partners<sup>1</sup> subject to the following modifications<sup>2</sup>. The grant income<sup>3</sup> of a student to be taken into account is to be the whole of his grant income<sup>4</sup>, but disregarding any payment:

- 500 (1) intended to meet tuition fees or examination fees<sup>5</sup>;
- 501 (2) intended to meet additional expenditure incurred by a disabled student in respect of his attendance on a course<sup>6</sup>;
- 502 (3) intended to meet additional expenditure connected with term time residential study away from the student's educational establishment<sup>7</sup>;
- 503 (4) on account of the student maintaining a home at a place other than that at which he resides while attending his course but only to the extent that his rent or rates is or are not met by housing benefit<sup>8</sup>;
- 504 (5) on account of any other person but only if that person is residing outside the United Kingdom and there is no applicable amount in respect of him<sup>9</sup>;
- 505 (6) intended to meet the cost of books and equipment or if the payment is not so intended a specified amount towards such costs<sup>10</sup>;
- 506 (7) intended to meet travel expenses incurred as a result of his attendance on the course<sup>11</sup>.

Where a student is in receipt of a grant in respect of maintenance, a sum in respect of travel costs may also be excluded from his grant income<sup>12</sup>.

The grant income is to be apportioned equally between the weeks in the period of study<sup>13</sup> or other period to which it is attributable<sup>14</sup>; however, any amount intended for the maintenance of dependants or for an older student is to be apportioned equally over a period of 52 weeks<sup>15</sup>.

A student loan is treated as income<sup>16</sup>; and a student is treated as possessing the maximum amount of any loan which he could, by taking reasonable steps, acquire<sup>17</sup>. In calculating the weekly amount of the student loan to be taken into account as income, the loan is to be apportioned equally between the weeks in the academic year in respect of which it is payable (or, in the case of the final year or a one year course, over the period from the beginning of the academic year to the last day of the course<sup>18</sup>); and the weekly amount so apportioned is subject to a specified disregard<sup>19</sup>.

UPDATE

176-201 Income Support

As from 6 April 2005, the child-related elements of income support are abolished and replaced: see Tax Credits Act 2002 s 1, SI 2003/962; and PARA 227A.1.

As to the entitlement of certain persons who are, or who are members of families of persons, entitled to income support to receive welfare foods, see the Welfare Food Regulations 1996, SI 1996/1434; and SALE OF GOODS AND SUPPLY OF SERVICES vol 41 (2005 Reissue) PARA 680.

that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2), Schedule (amended by SI 1998/1425). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(2) INCOME SUPPORT/(viii) Urgent Cases/200. Definition of urgent cases.

(viii) Urgent Cases

200. Definition of urgent cases.

Urgent cases are restricted to only two categories of claimant who would normally be precluded from benefit, namely (1) certain persons from abroad<sup>1</sup>; (2) claimants who are treated as possessing notional income<sup>2</sup>.

1 Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 70(2)(a). This provision applies to a person from abroad within the meaning of reg 21(3) (as amended) (see PARA 184 ante), who (1) having supported himself without recourse to public funds during any one period of limited leave, is temporarily without funds during that period of leave because remittances to him from abroad have been disrupted (provided that there is a reasonable expectation that his supply of funds will be resumed) (reg 70(3)(a)); (2) is an asylum seeker (reg 70(3)(b) (substituted by SI 1993/1679)); (3) is a sponsored immigrant, where the person or persons who gave the undertaking to provide for his maintenance and accommodation has or have died (Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 70(3)(c) (substituted by SI 1996/30)). As to the meaning of 'asylum seeker' for these purposes see the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 70(3A) (added by SI 1993/1679; and substituted by SI 1996/30), Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 70(3B) (added by SI 1993/1679; and amended by SI 1996/30). As to accommodation etc for asylum seekers see SOCIAL SERVICES AND COMMUNITY CARE vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 1029.

2 Ie under the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 42(3) (as amended) (see PARA 192 ante): reg 70(2)(b). However, in such a case the urgent cases provisions only apply where the income the claimant is treated as possessing is not readily available to him, he would otherwise have a lower income support entitlement and the adjudication officer is satisfied that, unless these provisions apply, the claimant or his family will suffer hardship: reg 70(4) (amended by SI 1989/1323). For the meaning of 'family' see PARA 175 note 1 ante.

201. Calculation of entitlement in urgent cases.

The applicable amount<sup>1</sup> in an urgent case is calculated under separate rules, the general approach of which is to permit 90 per cent of the normal applicable amount for the claimant and any partner and the full applicable amount for any child or young person who is a member of his family (provided that the child or young person does not have capital exceeding a specified amount), and any applicable premium and housing costs<sup>2</sup>. When determining entitlement under these rules, a wider approach is taken to the assessment of income and capital, with fewer disregards than under the normal rules<sup>3</sup>.

1 As to the applicable amount generally see PARA 184 ante.

2 See the Income Support (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1967, reg 71 (amended by SI 1988/663; SI 1988/1445; SI 1989/534; SI 1989/1034; SI 1992/3147; SI 1993/2119; SI 1994/527; SI 1996/30; SI 1996/206). ## 5. Secretary of State's duty to specify assessed income period

The following provisions<sup>1</sup> apply in either of the following two cases. The first is where (1) the Secretary of State determines the amount of a claimant's income for the purposes of a decision relating to state pension credit<sup>2</sup>; (2) the decision is a 'decision' for the purposes of certain social security provisions<sup>3</sup>; (3) the decision takes effect on or after the day on which the claimant attains the age of 65, or if earlier, in a case where the claimant is a member of a couple, the day on which the other member of the couple attains that age<sup>4</sup>; and (4) the decision is not to the effect that the claimant is not entitled to state pension credit<sup>5</sup>. The second is where (a) the amount of the claimant's income is determined on, or for the purposes of, an appeal against a decision that the claimant is not entitled to state pension credit<sup>6</sup>; (b) on the appeal, it is decided that the claimant is entitled to state pension credit<sup>7</sup>; and (c) the decision takes effect as mentioned in head (3) above<sup>8</sup>.

In either of the two cases, the Secretary of State must, on the making of the relevant decision<sup>9</sup>, specify a period as the assessed income period, unless prevented from doing so<sup>10</sup>, either (i) where the relevant decision takes effect at a time when an assessed income period is in force in the case of the claimant by virtue of a previous application of these provisions<sup>11</sup>; or (ii) in such other circumstances as may be prescribed<sup>12</sup>.

Where the Secretary of State specifies a period as the assessed income period the following provisions have effect for the purpose of determining, as at any time in the assessed income period: (i) the claimant's entitlement to state pension credit; or (ii) the amount of state pension credit to which the claimant is entitled<sup>13</sup>. Where the claimant's income, as determined for the purposes of the relevant decision, includes an amount (the 'assessed amount'<sup>14</sup>) in respect of an element of the claimant's retirement provision<sup>15</sup>, the amount of that element as at any time in the assessed income period is to be taken to be the assessed amount as for the time being varied in accordance with regulations<sup>16</sup>. Where it is determined for the purposes of the relevant decision that the claimant's income does not include any, or any further, elements of retirement provision, the claimant's income throughout the assessed income period is to be taken not to include those elements<sup>17</sup>. For the purposes of these provisions<sup>18</sup>, regulations may make provision (A) for treating income of any particular description as income of another description; or (B) for treating income from different sources as income from the same source<sup>19</sup>.

1 The State Pension Credit Act 2002 ss 6-10 (see infra; and PARA 201A.6). By virtue of s 6(7), ss 6-10 are to be construed as one. Section 6 is subject to s 9 (see infra; and PARA 201A.6): s 6(6).

2 Ibid s 6(3)(a).

3 Ibid s 6(3)(b). The provisions are the Social Security Act 1998 s 8(1) (see PARA 356A.1), 9 (see PARA 356A.2) or 10 (see PARA 356A.3).

4 State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 6(3)(c) (amended by Civil Partnership Act 2004 Sch 24 para 140). The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 173 (see PARA 19), applies for the purposes of the State Pension Credit Act 2002: s 17(3)(b). As to couples, see PARA 201A.1.

5 Ibid s 6(3)(d).

7 Ibid s 6(4)(b).

8 Ibid s 6(4)(c).

9 'The relevant decision' means the decision mentioned in head (1), ie under s 6(3)(a) (see TEXT AND NOTE 2) or the decision on appeal mentioned in head (b), ie under s 6(4)(b) (see TEXT AND NOTE 7): s 6(5)(a), (b).

10 Ibid s 6(1). 'Assessed income period' is to be construed in accordance with ss 6 and 9 (see PARA 201A.6): s 17(1).

11 Ibid s 6(2)(a).

12 Ibid s 6(2)(b). See the State Pension Credit Regulations 2002, SI 2002/1792; and PARA 201A.1 NOTE 2.

13 State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 7(1), (2). Section 7 is subject to s 8: s 7(9).

14 The assessed amount is deemed, except in prescribed circumstances, to increase, or, in the case of income from capital, to increase or decrease, on such date or dates and by such amounts as may be prescribed: ibid s 7(4). See SI 2002/1792; and NOTE 12.

Where an assessed income period is in force, and there is a variation in the amount of an element of the claimant's retirement provision in accordance with regulations under the State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 7(4) (an 'alteration'), which affects the computation of the amount of state pension credit to which the claimant is entitled to the extent that the amount of state pension credit to which the claimant is entitled is increased or reduced, then, as from the commencing date, the amount of state pension credit payable in the case of the claimant shall be the increased or reduced amount, without any further decision of the Secretary of State, and the award of state pension credit has effect accordingly: s 10(1), (2), (4). Where, notwithstanding the alteration, the claimant continues on and after the commencing date to be entitled to the same amount of state pension credit as before, the award continues in force accordingly: s 10(3). 'Commencing date', in relation to an alteration, means the date on which the alteration comes into force: s 10(4).

15 'Retirement provision' means (1) retirement pension income, other than benefit under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992; (2) income from annuity contracts (other than retirement pension income); (3) income from capital; (4) PPF periodic payments; and an 'element' of a person's retirement provision is income of any of those descriptions from a particular source: State Pension Credit Act 2002 ss 7(6), 17(1) (s 7(6) amended by SI 2006/343). 'PPF periodic payment' means (1) any periodic compensation payments made in relation to a person, payable under the pension compensation provisions specified in the Pensions Act 2004 s 162(2), or (2) any periodic payments made in relation to a person payable under s 166: State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 17(1) (definition added by SI 2006/343). As to 'retirement pension income' and 'capital', see PARA 201A.4.

16 Ibid s 7(3). As to variation of the assessed amount by regulations, see s 7(4); and NOTE 14.

17 Ibid s 7(5). Nothing in s 7(3)-(5) prevents the revision of the relevant decision under the Social Security Act 1998 s 9 (see PARA 356A.2) or of any earlier or later decision under s 10 (see PARA 356A.3): State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 7(8).

The provisions of s 7(3)-(5) do not prevent the making of fresh determinations as to the elements, or any of the elements, or the amount of any of the elements, of the claimant's retirement provision as at any time during the assessed income period, if (1) the fresh determinations are for the purpose of making a decision under the Social Security Act 1998 s 10 ('the new decision'); (2) the new decision increases the amount of state pension credit to which the claimant is entitled; and (3) the increase is in whole or in part the result of the fresh determinations (taken as a whole): State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 8(1). The conditions in heads (2) and (3) are taken to be satisfied if the new decision reduces the amount of state pension credit to which the claimant is entitled, but the reduction is less than it would have been apart from the fresh determinations (taken as a whole): s 8(2). Where a fresh determination is made by virtue of s 8(1), then, as respects the part of the assessed income period that begins with the day on which the new decision takes effect, s 7(3)-(5) have effect in accordance with the fresh determination, instead of the determination which it replaces, but as if (i) the fresh determination were (and the determination which it replaces were not) a determination for the purposes of the relevant decision; (ii) any assessed amount resulting from the fresh determination were not subject to variation under s 7(4) at any time before the day on which the new decision takes effect; and (iii) the claimant's income, as determined for the purposes of the relevant decision, were constituted accordingly: s 8(3)(a)-(c).

18    Ibid s 7.

19    Ibid s 7(7); SI 2002/1792 (see NOTE 12).

6. Duration of assessed income period

An assessed income period must (subject to certain exceptions<sup>1</sup>) be (1) in the case of a claimant who is under the age of 75 on the day on which the relevant decision takes effect, the period of five years beginning with that day; (2) in the case of a claimant who is aged 75 or over on that day, an indefinite period beginning with that day<sup>2</sup>. If the Secretary of State considers that the particulars of the claimant's retirement provision<sup>3</sup> as determined for the purposes of the relevant decision are not likely, after taking account of any assumed variations<sup>4</sup>, to be typical of the claimant's retirement provision throughout the period of 12 months beginning with the day on which that decision takes effect, then he need not specify an assessed income period<sup>5</sup>, or if he does so, he must specify a period that is shorter than five years but still beginning with the day on which the relevant decision takes effect<sup>6</sup>. An assessed income period is brought to an end, except in prescribed circumstances, by any of the following events taking place: (a) the claimant becoming a member of a couple; (b) the claimant ceasing to be a member of a couple; (c) the claimant attaining the age of 65; or (d) in a case where the claimant is a member of a couple, the other member of the couple attaining the age of 65<sup>7</sup>. Regulations may prescribe further times at which, or circumstances in which, an assessed income period will end<sup>8</sup>.

Where (i) an assessed income period is brought to an end by the expiry of a period of five years or more, and (ii) the claimant is aged 80 or over at that time, the assessed income period must be treated as not ending at that time but<sup>9</sup> as continuing indefinitely<sup>10</sup>.

2    State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 9(1) (substituted by Pensions Act 2008 s 105(2)). As to 'the relevant decision', see PARA 201A.5.

The amendment made by s 105(2) applies only where the relevant decision (within the meaning given by the State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 6(5)) takes effect on or after 6 April 2009: Pensions Act 2008 s 105(5).

3    As to 'retirement provision', see PARA 201A.5.

4    Ibid variations assumed to be made under the State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 9(3). It is assumed for the purposes of s 9(2) that the same variations fall to be made in relation to the amount of an element of the claimant's retirement provision as determined for the purposes of the relevant decision as would fall to be made under s 7(4) (see PARA 201A.5) if an assessed income period were to be specified in accordance with s 9(1): s 9(3).

5    Ibid s 9(2)(a).

6    Ibid s 9(2)(b) (amended by Pensions Act 2008 s 105(3)). The amendment made by s 105(3) applies only where the relevant decision (within the meaning given by the State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 6(5)) takes effect on or after 6 April 2009: Pensions Act 2008 s 105(5).

As to couples, see PARA 201A.1. The Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 173 (see PARA 19), applies for the purposes of the State Pension Credit Act 2002: s 17(3)(b).

8    Ibid s 9(5); SI 2002/1792 (see NOTE 7).

9    Subject to the State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 9(4) and provision made under s 9(5).

10 State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 9(6) (added by Pensions Act 2008 s 105(4)). The State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 9(6) ceases to have effect on 6 April 2014: Pensions Act 2008 s 105(6).

7. Disclosure of information relating to state pension credit recipients

The Secretary of State may by regulations make provision authorising the Secretary of State, or a person providing services to the Secretary of State, to supply relevant persons<sup>1</sup> with social security information<sup>2</sup> about persons in receipt of state pension credit<sup>3</sup>.

1 In the Pensions Act 2008 s 142 'relevant person' means (1) a person who holds a licence under the Electricity Act 1989 s 6(1)(d) or the Gas Act 1986 s 7A(1) (supply of electricity or gas to premises), or (2) a person providing services to the Secretary of State or to a person within head (1): Pensions Act 2008 s 142(2).

2 In the Pensions Act 2008 s 142 'social security information' means information held by or on behalf of the Secretary of State and obtained as a result of, or for the purpose of, the exercise of the Secretary of State's functions in relation to social security: s 142(6).

3 Pensions Act 2008 s 142(1). 'State pension credit' has the meaning given by the State Pension Credit Act 2002 s 1(1): Pensions Act 2008 s 142(6).

Regulations under s 142 must specify the purposes for which information may be supplied by virtue of s 142(1), which must be purposes in connection with enabling the provision of assistance to persons in receipt of state pension credit: s 142(3). Regulations under s 142 may authorise the supply of information by a relevant person to the Secretary of State or another relevant person (1) for the purpose of determining what information is to be supplied by virtue of s 142(1), or (2) to enable information supplied to a relevant person by virtue of s 142(1) to be used by that or another relevant person for purposes within s 142(3): s 142(4). Regulations under s 142 may (a) make provision as to the use or disclosure of information supplied under the regulations (including provision creating criminal offences); (b) provide for the recovery by the Secretary of State of costs incurred in connection with the supply or use of information under the regulations: s 142(5). As to the regulations so made see the State Pension Credit (Disclosure of Information) (Electricity Suppliers) Regulations 2010, SI 2010/227.

8. Pilot schemes

Provision is made to pilot, for a period of up to twelve months, ways in which state pension credit entitlement may be calculated and paid in order to increase the numbers of eligible persons receiving benefit<sup>1</sup>.

For the purposes of the Family Credit (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1973, if, for any period commencing with or falling after 2 March 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in either the Full-time Education and Training Option, the Voluntary Sector Option or the Environment Task Force Option, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2; and accordingly any payment made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: New Deal (Miscellaneous Provisions) Order 1998, SI 1998/217, art 2(1), (2), Schedule (art 2 substituted by SI 1998/1425). If, for any period commencing with or falling after 3 July 1998, during which a person is a New Deal participant and is participating in the Employment Option in a capacity other than that of employee, that person receives a training allowance, he is to be treated for that period as not being employed but as participating in arrangements for training under the 1973 Act s 2; and accordingly any payment, other than a trading receipt, made to such a person during that period in connection with his use of facilities must be treated in the same manner as a payment of training allowance made in respect of such training: SI 1998/217 art 2(1), (3), Schedule. Article 2(2) does not apply in respect of any trading payment made to a person receiving assistance in pursuing self-employed earner's employment while participating in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus: art 2(3). 'Facilities' means facilities provided for the participant in pursuance of the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus; 'the Intensive Activity Period' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 25 years or over and less than 50 years on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; 'the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus' means the arrangements known by that name and made under the Employment and Training Act 1973 s 2 for which only persons who are aged 50 years or over on the day of entry are eligible and which are designed to help participants to obtain work or to improve their prospects of obtaining work; and 'training allowance' means a payment made directly by the Secretary of State to a participant in the Intensive Activity Period or the Intensive Activity Period for 50 plus in connection with his participation: SI 2001/970 art 1(2).

NOTE 11--SI 1987/1973 reg 6(1) amended: SI 1999/2487, SI 2001/1082. SI 1976/965 now replaced by the Child Benefit (General) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/223 (amended by SI 2007/2150, SI 2008/1879, SI 2009/3268).

Halsbury's Laws of England/SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS (VOLUME 44(2) (REISSUE))/7. INCOME-RELATED BENEFITS/(3) FAMILY CREDIT/(i) Entitlement/203. Duration of an award of family credit.

203. Duration of an award of family credit.

Family credit is payable for a period of 26 weeks or such other period as may be prescribed<sup>1</sup> and, subject to regulations, an award of family credit and the rate at which it is payable are not affected by any change of circumstances during that period or by any up-rating order<sup>2</sup> under statutory provision<sup>3</sup>. There are specific exceptions to this rule in the case of the death of the claimant<sup>4</sup>, duplication of awards<sup>5</sup>, a reduced benefit direction under the child support legislation<sup>6</sup>, or the cessation of full-time education by the only young person in the household<sup>7</sup>. Regulations may provide that an award of family credit must terminate:

- 511 (1) if a person who was a member of the family at the date of the claim becomes a member of another family and some member of that family is entitled to family credit; or
- 512 (2) if income support, an income-based jobseeker's allowance or a disability working allowance becomes payable in respect of a person who was a member of the family at the date of the claim for family credit<sup>8</sup>.

<sup>4</sup> An award of family credit ceases to have effect upon the death of the claimant: see the Family Credit (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1973, reg 49(1). However, where a claimant dies and is survived by a partner who was the claimant's partner at the date of claim, an award of family credit made in the claimant's favour has effect for its unexpired period as if originally made in favour of the partner: see reg 49(2).

<sup>6</sup> A reduced benefit direction given by a child support officer (or its cessation, cancellation, suspension or the removal of its suspension) are changes of circumstances which affect an award of family credit and the rate at which it is payable: see ibid reg 51A (as added). As to child support see CHILDREN AND YOUNG PERSONS vol 5(3) (2008 Reissue) PARA 553 et seq.

205. Presence in Great Britain.

A person is treated as being in Great Britain<sup>1</sup> if, on the date of claim:

- 518 (1) he is present and ordinarily resident in Great Britain; and
- 519 (2) his right to reside or remain in Great Britain is not subject to any limitation or condition<sup>2</sup>; and
- 520 (3) his partner, if any, is ordinarily resident in the United Kingdom; and
- 521 (4) his earnings or the earnings of his partner, if any, derive at least in part from remunerative work in the United Kingdom; and
- 522 (5) his earnings do not wholly derive from remunerative work outside the United Kingdom nor do the earnings of his partner, if any<sup>3</sup>.

<sup>2</sup> He is subject to the Family Credit (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1973, reg 3(1A) (as added): see reg 3(1)(aa) (added by SI 1996/30). For the purposes of the Family Credit (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1973, reg 3(1)(aa), a person's right to reside or remain in Great Britain is not to be treated as if it were subject to a limitation or condition if: (1) he is a person recorded by the Secretary of State as a refugee; (2) he is a person who has been granted exceptional leave outside the provisions of the immigration rules within the meaning of the Immigration Act 1971 to remain in the United Kingdom by the Secretary of State; (3) he is a national, or a member of the family of a national, of a state contracting party to the European Economic Area Agreement (Oporto, 21 May 1992; OJ L1, 3.1.94, p 3; Cm 2073); or (4) he is a person who is: (a) lawfully working in Great Britain and is a national of a state with which the Community has concluded an agreement under the EC Treaty (Treaty establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179)) art 238 providing, in the field of social security, for the equal treatment of workers who are nationals of the signatory state and their families; or (b) a member of the family of, and living with, such a person: see the Family Credit (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1973, reg 3(1A) (added by SI 1996/30).

<sup>3</sup> See the Family Credit (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1973, reg 3(1) (amended by SI 1996/30). A person is treated as not being in Great Britain during any period for which he, or his partner, is entitled to be paid family credit or disability working allowance under the law of Northern Ireland: see the Family Credit (General) Regulations 1987, SI 1987/1973, reg 3(2) (amended by SI 1991/2742). For the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 15 note 4 ante.
